800 JAPANESE SLAIN IN FIGHT, CHINESE CLAIM

Tokyo, However, Says Troops Are Advancing, Not Losing.

NEW BATTLE UNDER WAY NEAR TSITSIHAR

Nanking's Hopes for Strong League Action Apparently Are Dashed.

Mukden (Wednesday), Nov. 18 (U. P.).—Two thousand Chinese cavalrymen attacked the Japanese right wing at daybreak today in the Nonni River sector below Tsitsihar.

Reports reaching here said the clash continued during the morning. The Chinese attacking force is from the Heilungkiang Province army under command of Gen. Ma Chan-Shan.

Casualties were reported to be extremely heavy as the main bodies of Chinese and Japanese forces were engaged north of Tahsing in the Tsitsihar area.

Shanghai, Wednesday, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Chinese claims of decisive victories in the Nonni River zone during the last three days were contradicted by reports today that Japanese troops, instead of being driven back, had pushed farther northward.

200 Reported Captured.

Official Chinese advices from Harbin said Gen. Mah Chan-Shan had routed Japanese forces, killing 800 Japanese and capturing 200, after repulsing a strong Japanese attack.

A Harbin dispatch to the North China Daily News, local British newspaper, on the other hand, said the Japanese had pushed farther northward toward the Russian sphere of influence, driving back Gen. Mah's forces.

Japanese airplanes were bombing the town of Fularki on the Chinese Eastern Railway west of Tsitsihar, the dispatch said, damaging the railway warehouses and other buildings.

Tsitsihar Raid Expected.

Japanese bombers were expected to turn their attention next on Tsitsihar, with a raid in prospect, the report said.

Police put down attempts by Chinese mobs to organize anti-Japanese riots Tuesday night, it was added.

Nanking, Wednesday, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Hope here of strong action by the League of Nations regarding Japanese occupation of Manchuria apparently was dashed today by reports from Paris.

An almost gloomy feeling was prevalent in official circles and the Nanking government was far from elated, judging from its reaction. Reports of what occurred in Paris were received in virtual silence. Its reaction was attributed to a growing belief among Chinese that China after all would have to work out her own salvation.

China Sends Note.

China will regard any Manchurian government headed by Hsuan Tung, the former boy emperor, as a "seditious institution" and will repudiate all its acts, the government declared today in a note to the League of Nations.

The note was sent after reports had been received that the former emperor, who has been living in Tientsin as Mr. Henry Pu-Yi, had been taken to Mukden, Manchuria, where he was to be enthroned.

China declared in her communication to the league that such an administration would be regarded as "an auxiliary organization of the Japanese government."

The Central Daily News, organ of the National government, assumed a pessimistic outlook.

"The people of China should be prepared for a final sacrifice," the newspaper said, apparently meaning either severance of all relations with Japan or the latter's annexation of Manchuria.

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 17.—Japanese authorities intend to wait until November 25 before taking overt action against Gen. Mah Chan-Shan Chinese commander in the Nonni area, it was learned today.

This was made clear after a reply had been received from Gen. Mah to the demands made by the Japanese as their conditions of peace. In those demands the general was given ten days, expiring November 25, to comply.

The Chinese general's answer, delivered to the Japanese military commission at Harbin, is considered by the Japanese to be tantamount to a rejection. Gen. Mah offered to evacuate the district south of Tsitsihar provided the Japanese first evacuated the Nonni area.

Retains Liberty.

In withdrawing from the region south of Tsitsihar it was to be un-

Report of Royal Divorce Plans Not Confirmed

Bucharest, Roumania, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—Reports published abroad that former King George of Greece planned to seek a divorce from his wife, the former Princess Elizabeth of Roumania, lacked confirmation here today.

Roumanian circles professed to have no knowledge of any such intention on the part of the former Greek king.

Disabilities to Force Lieut. Van Winkle Out

LIEUT. MINA C. VAN WINKLE.

Lieut. Mina C. Van Winkle, director of the Women's Bureau of the Metropolitan Police Department, and former president, for several years, of the International Association of Policewomen, is scheduled for retirement in the next few weeks because of physical disability.

Lieut. Van Winkle, who is internationally known because of her furtherance of the women's police cause, is in Emergency Hospital undergoing a physical examination. For the past several months she has been unable to give her full time to the work of the bureau.

Her successor will probably be Sergt. Rhoda Milliken, who has been the understudy of Lieut. Van Winkle for several years.

For the past 13 years, since her appointment by Maj. Raymond W. Pullman, Lieut. Van Winkle, who is a social registerite in both Washington and New York, has labored toward the fulfillment of her ideals in women's police work.

After she had served as a "dollar a year woman" for the United States Food Administration during the World War, Lieut. Van Winkle accepted the apointment of Maj. Pullman. In the succeeding years she achieved national recognition for her work with the local policewomen.

In 1923 Lieut. Van Winkle went to England to aid Lady Astor in a fight

5 DEMOCRATS SNARL HOUSE RACE IN TEXAS

Party Leaders Fear Split in Vote May Aid Republican Next Tuesday.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The contest over the House seat of the late Representative Harry Wurzbach (Republican), Texas, threatened to develop in a political dog fight yesterday, with five or more Democrats arrayed against one Republican.

Republicans here were cheered by the prospect, and Democrats were equally saddened by it.

The Republicans were hopeful that the Democratic votes would be so distributed among the five or more Democratic candidates as to insure a majority for the lone Republican.

The election is to be held next Tuesday. Inasmuch as it is a special election, unusual rules will prevail. For one thing, there will be no primaries—anybody will be allowed to run—and all names will be listed on one ballot, without any party affiliations being designated.

The standing in the House of Representatives as of today is Democrats, 217; Republicans, 214; Farmer-Labor, 1, and three vacancies.

The vacancies are in congressional districts in Texas, New Jersey, and New Hampshire. Two of these are to be filled before Congress convenes, the vacancies in Texas and New Jersey. The remaining vacancy, that in New Hampshire, is not to be filled until January 5, nearly a month after the gavel falls on Capitol Hill.

If Republicans should be elected in Texas and New Jersey, and if the lone Farmer-Laborite, Representative Paul Kvale, of Minnesota, should line up with the Republicans, the result on the opening day, December 7, would be a tie—Democrats, 217, and Republicans, 217.

That is assuming, of course, that all members would be present, which is hardly a good assumption. There are two members right now, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, whose physical condition makes doubtful their presence next month.

The Democrats have been hopeful that they would win both in Texas and New Jersey, thus strengthening their numerical grip on the House so that the figures would read like this: Democrats, 219; Republicans, 214; Farmer-Labor, 1, and 1 vacancy.

Thus the Democrats would have a plurality of five, a clear majority of four, and would seem to be in a fool-proof position to organize the House and elect Representative John N. Garner, of Texas, as Speaker.

That is why the spectacle of three and possibly five Democrats fighting over the seat of the late Representative Wurzbach caused a certain

POLICE TRIAL HANGS ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Harker Cruelty Claim May Develop as Hearing on Lunchroom Holdup.

Outcome of the trial of four First Precinct policemen on third degree charges may hinge on a decision of Trial Justice James Proctor this morning.

The point, vital to the defense, brought early adjournment yesterday afternoon. Attorney O'Shea, representing three of the officers, contends that, in the event James Henry Harker, complaining witness, denies complicity in the robbery which led to his arrest last August, the defense should be allowed to offer testimony contradicting his denial.

Harker testified yesterday that he was beaten in a room in the precinct by Officers James Mostyn and William Laflin, while the other two defendants, W. C. Grooms and W. T. Burroughs stood by.

He made the confession to escape further painful torture, he said. When United States Attorney Leo Rover objected to questions of O'Shea in cross-examining Harker, the defense contended that it should be allowed the greatest latitude and that it should be permitted to present evidence to show that Harker did rob the lunchroom and that his motive in complaining of third degree tactics by the officers was to avoid prosecution.

Justice Proctor will rule on the plea tomorrow.

In continuation of his presentation, Rover examined nine witnesses, last of which was Harker.

First three heard, Dewey Stewart, Charles E. Sanford and Raymond Weedon, all from the bakery where Harker worked, testified that he was not bruised and did not show evidences of a beating when they last saw him prior to his arrest. Sanford said he saw bruises on Harker's back and a black eye when he saw him at his home following his release on bond.

George G. Price, friend of Harker, testified that he was with Harker until about an hour before his arrest and that he saw him immediately after his release. The marks of beating apparent when Harker came from the police station were not present before, he said.

Under cross-examination by O'Shea, Price said that Mostyn came to his room at the Atlas Hotel asking that he turn over to police $40 borrowed from Harker, which the officer claimed was stolen from the lunchroom.

Two other bakery employes and a counterman at a nearby restaurant

Cold Wave in West Leaves Capital Near Heat Record

High Temperatures Here Unusually Consistent, But Not Unknown.

Unless a cold wave breaks the present spell of warm weather before the end of November, Washington is expected to hang up a record for an excessively warm fall. As it is, high temperatures have been unusually consistent—but no record has been broken.

Figures at the United States Weather Bureau yesterday reveal that the average of warm weather in October has been exceeded only seven times for this month since 1871 when the Weather Bureau was established.

The temperature nine of the first sixteen days of November has been above normal. Greatest departures from the normal temperature were November 12 and 16, last Thursday and Monday of this week. Temperature both these days was 75 degrees, 17 above normal.

Temperature Monday has been exceeded only twice on this date since Winter's First Blasts End Springlike Weather in Midwest.

Chicago Nov. 17 (U.P.).—Winter's first blast swept in tonight from the Far West, where some 50 persons were snowbound in the mountains.

The Weather Bureau predicted that temperatures would drop 30 degrees before morning, ending an unprecedentedly late autumn.

For the last several days the Middle West has been basking in spring-like temperatures of 60 and 70 and smiling over dispatches telling of more than twoscore citizens being marooned in the high Sierras, of zero temperatures in Montana, of 14 inches of snow in parts of Utah.

Before thermometers started to skid, wild ducks were eating at the bird breadline in Chicago's Lincoln Park, showing no desire to fly south. The suburbs reported robins still flitting about.

Pastures were green, strawberries were growing for the second time this

WORLD'S TRADE REVIVAL BEGUN, REPORTS SHOW

Eight Countries Confirm Upturn Shown by More Exports.

AMERICA'S SELLING ABROAD INCREASES

Europe and Latins Record Buying and Firming of Commodity Prices.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Cable reports from eight countries in Europe, Asia and South America informed Commerce Department officials yesterday of a continued tendency toward business expansion the world round. A note of optimism in all the surveys reflected a general restoration of confidence in the stability of international exchange.

Reflecting the world-wide return of buyers to the market places, American exports for October were reported at $205,000,000, an increase of $25,000,000 over September and $41,000,000 over August. The October shipments were the largest since last April, but were still approximately 30 per cent under the same month last year, as measured in dollar values.

"The general outlook has improved in Argentine," said a cable summary from Commercial Attache Alexander V. Dye, at Buenos Aires. Total exports during the first ten months of 1931 increased 1 per cent over the same period of 1930, but in certain meats, exports were 50 to 60 per cent above last year.

Brazil Reports Encouraging.

Brazil likewise reported a rift starting in the clouds of depression. Foreign exchange at Rio and Sao Paulo were firm. "Coffee prices were slightly higher, and Santos shipments were nearly normal," the Rio weekly cable said.

At the other side of the world, Chinese industries, especially the cotton mills, are "working at full capacity." Australia reported a marked improvement in retail trade, and stock prices advanced sharply last week for the first time in four months.

The first encouraging report this year from the Far East rubber-producing countries was contained in yesterday's trade summary from Trade Commissioner R. P. Hendren, at Batvala, Netherland East Indies. Crude rubber prices advanced slightly as a result of renewed inquiry from both the United States and Japan.

Upturns in Belgium.

Marked upturns in the Belgian industrial situation were partially offset by apprehensions concerning the probable effects of the projected British tariff. Despite this uneasiness, however, coal, metals and glass

New Jersey Wet Wins Nomination

Donald McLean, Republican Leads Opponents With 263 Districts In.

Elizabeth, N. J., Nov. 17 A.P.).—Donald McLean, an avowed anti-prohibitionist, apparently had won the Republican nomination for representative in Congress tonight when all except 35 of the 298 precincts in today's four-cornered race in the Fifth New Jersey District had been tabulated.

His nomination assures the selection of a "wet" at the special election on December 1 to choose the successor to the late Ernest R. Ackerman, dry Republican.

Percy H. Stewart, unopposed candidate for the Democratic nomination, also has expressed himself as favoring a change in the eighteenth amendment. With 263 of the 298 election districts completed, McLean had polled 8,313 votes. Kenneth C. Hand, the only prohibitionist in the field of four, had 6,180; Wesley A. Stanger, 1,642, and John Nicol, 3,807.

Morgan Says Times Better in England

Banker, However, Is Silent Concerning Conditions in America.

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—J. P. Morgan unexpectedly broke his usual silence upon his return from Europe tonight to observe that "things are looking a good deal better in England. The financier spoke briefly as he neared port on the fog-delayed liner Mauretania.

"Things are looking a good deal better in England," he said. "It was a marvelous election and it looks as if the Nationalist government will be in for a long time. No party has ever had that majority before. The government is stable."

"Isn't unemployment in England decreasing?" he was asked.

"Yes," he said, "I think that is the case."

He would not discuss world economics or American affairs, but listened closely to word of the latest news and said: "Now I am back I want to get down to work."

GRANDI AND HOOVER TO OPEN TALKS ON ARMS CUT TODAY; U. S. CLARIFIES DEBTS STAND

American View Amplified in Note Reputedly Sent to Europe.

GERMANY AND FRANCE ARE NEAR AGREEMENT

U. S. Held Ready to Consider Issue When Other Powers Agree on Reparations.

(Copyright, 1931, by the United Press.)

The State Department last night took a forward step toward revision of the postwar financial structure by dispatching to Europe a memorandum clarifying and amplifying the American position on reduction of war debts and reparations. The note is understood to have gone to the American Embassy in Paris.

State Department officials worked late into the evening on the note and then took it to the White House for approval before it was dispatched. The communication was regarded as an extension of the recent Hoover-Laval communique. It was understood to state that the United States was ready to consider the question of reducing war debts as soon as European nations had agreed among themselves as to what they would do on reparations.

Dispatch of the memorandum followed receipt here of official word that France and Germany were near agreement on conditions under which Germany may ask for a revision of reparations. Conversations between the French foreign office and German Amabassador von Hoesch in Paris, have been proceeding for some weeks.

Separate Treatment.

The American position was understood to be that the question of war debts and reparations would have to be treated separately. The United States Congress, which, in the last analysis would have to approve any reduction of war obligations, is in no way legally concerned with reparations. This does not mean, however, that the congressional attitude toward cutting the obligations of the allies will not be influenced by what they do toward reducing German reparations. Officials pointed out last night that the Hoover-Laval communique, stating that steps toward the adjustment of the post-war financial structure would have to originate in Europe, left many unanswered questions. Since the communique was issued the State Department has dispatched some 20 memoranda to Europe expounding the American position.

Summary and Clarification.

The note last night represented a summary and clarification of the previous dispatches which would reveal the American position in a nutshell and provide a basis of information as to what this country is prepared to do.

When Germany and France have fully agreed, as it is believed they will shortly, Germany is expected to apply to the Bank for International Settlement, as it is premitted to do under the Young plan, for a committee to examine its capacity to pay. The bank then will establish a committee of eleven members to make the examination and to report.

Raid on Postoffice Uncovers 2 Stills

Postmaster at Jarboesville, Md., Is Cited to Court After Dry Seizure.

Leonardtown, Md., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Postmaster Anton Lang, of Jarboesville, near here, today was cited to appear for a hearing on charges preferred following a raid on the postoffice which netted two stills, a quantity of rye liquor, mash and nearly 200 bottles of beer.

Prohibition agents raided the postoffice last night and arrested Michael C. Zelianski, found in attendance on the stills, which were located in a back room. Lang was not present and the citation for his hearing was issued by the dry agents today.

The stills, one of 250 gallons and the other 150 gallons capacity, were destroyed. The agents held 235 gallons of liquor and 192 bottles of beer as evidence and destroyed 1,500 gallons of mash. Lang's hearing was scheduled before a United States commissioner at Upper Marlboro tomorrow.

Senator Oddie to Seek Embargo on Red Goods

(United Press.)

An embargo against Soviet Russian products will be sought in the coming session of Congress by Senator Tasker L. Oddie (Republican), of Nevada.

Oddie yesterday informed manganese producers that he will introduce an embargo measure as soon as Congress convenes. "The complete shutdown of the American manganese industry and serious curtailment in the output of other domestic industries which have resulted from dumping into the United States of Soviet products at slave labor prices are contributing greatly to unemployment in this country," he said.

FESS PLANS TO BALK G. O. P. WET FORCES

Senator Writes, in Response to Wadsworth, Repeal Would Be Fatal.

Geneseo, N. Y., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The statement that he would use his influence "to prevent the party from committing a fatal blunder in asking for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment," was contained in a letter received from United States Senator Simeon D. Fess and made public today by former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth.

The letter from the chairman of the national Republican committee was written in response to a letter from Mr. Wadsworth, in which the former senator urged the Republican party to advocate a referendum on the prohibition question. The letter follows:

"My Dear Mr. Wadsworth:

"I have received your letter of November 12 addressed to me as chairman of the national Republican committee. I assume that this letter is written in good faith, although it has the element of propaganda which is carried out by the fact that it was given to the press before it was received by me.

"In reply to your specific recommendation that the Republican party recommend the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, I am stating to you that I shall use my influence to prevent the party from committing a fatal blunder in asking for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"Yours very truly,

"SIMEON D. FESS."

In a statement to the Associated Press Senator Wadsworth said:

"The senator seems not to understand the proposal contained in my letter to him. I did not urge upon him that the Republican party recommend the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. I urged that the Republican party employ the constitutional machinery which would give the people of the States an opportunity to vote yes or no on the question. Let the people decide."

TAX SCRUTINY TURNS TO LARGER INCOMES

Capitol Hill Leaders Include Inheritance, Gift and Luxury Levies.

(Associated Press.)

Congressional leaders yesterday set about the disagreeable business of determining who shall pay the increased taxation necessary to wipe out another billion dollar Treasury deficit this year.

Democratic chieftains joined the Republican pilots in peering into the financial status of the American pocketbook, for it became certain that President Hoover is going to follow a recommendation by Secretary Mellon for new revenue.

While Mr. Mellon guarded his program, Capitol Hill leaders focused on the big incomes—incomes from $20,000 upward—as the first objective for additional money. Increased rates for large inheritances also appeared certain. Restoration of the gift tax looked like the third point in the plan.

Some form of sales tax, applying only on luxuries, came into the discussion and seemed likely to be made a part of the new revenue scheme.

The administration wants to raise about $800,000,000 by new taxation. It is content to meet the remainder of the deficit by borrowing, in the belief that return of prosperity will wipe out this margin hereafter.

Representative Hawley, of Oregon, Republican chairman of the House ways and means committee last session, came back to the Capital still unconvinced new taxation is unavoidable. That was before he called on Mr. Mellon.

Political leaders don't like the idea of raising taxes on the eve of a presidential campaign, but Mr. Mellon has his figures to contend with and he is getting very restless over a second consecutive billion dollar deficit.

Taking the cue from the announcement by Republican leaders Monday that further taxation is "inescapable," Democratic organizers are busying themselves. If the Democrats control the House it will be up to them to originate the new tax bill.

Senator Harrison, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, called in

Mrs. Wilson-Greene Loses $2,400 in Theft at Recital

While Lily Pons Sings, Baltimore Society Patrons Are Kept Unaware of Robbery in Ticket Office of Lyric Theater.

Baltimore, Nov. 17.—While a colorful gathering of Baltimore society heard Lily Pons, Metropolitan coloratura soprano, at a recital tonight at the Lyric, detectives were examining the theater ticket office for fingerprints of a robber who entered it unobserved between 5 and 6 p. m. and escaped with $2,400, of which $2,100 represented the seat sale.

Precautions were taken to keep news of the robbery from the fashionable throng which crowded the Lyric lobby before and during the concert.

The robbery was discovered at 6 o'clock by Edwin Crabbs, ticket seller for Mrs. Wilson-Greene, of Washington, who is sponsoring a series of concerts at the Lyric, of which tonight's was the first.

Crabbe told police he left the ticket office, which is easily visible to passersby on Mount Royal avenue, at 5 o'clock.

He said he locked the door leading to the ticket office and another door which opens on the foyer of the theater. Police, however, said that neither of these was forced and advanced the theory that the ticket seller neglected to lock them.

The robber, who apparently had studied the ticket seller's methods, found $300 in a cabinet drawer on the right of the ticket office window. He also discovered a key in this cabinet and, fitting it to a small cash box, opened that and looted it of $2,100.

The $300 taken from the cabinet was money received on advance sale of tickets for concerts yet to be held. The $2,100, being money received for tickets to the Pons recital, is a loss

GRANDI-HOOVER TALKS ON ARMS CUT TODAY

MINISTER DESCRIBES HOPES BEFORE PRESS

Confers With Stimson and Places Wreath on Tomb of Unknown Soldier.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Realization of an Italo-American entente on arms reduction for the forthcoming Disarmament Conference at Geneva in 1932 will be the burden of Italian Foreign Minister Dino Grandi's conversations with President Hoover this morning. Signor Grandi will go to the White House after breakfast at Secretary Stimson's home at Woodley for his first lengthy conversation with the President. Out of today's talks may also come the basis of a Franco-Italian compromise on the naval reductions which the two nations failed to sign at the London conference.

The Grandi-Hoover interview was originally scheduled yesterday afternoon. However, at the hour he was supposed to be at the White House, the Italian foreign minister was also to be the guest of the Overseas Writers and the shifting of the White House appointment was arranged.

The United States and Italy are already at a virtual understanding on the fundamental points of arms reduction. President Hoover realizes the necessity of reducing military budgets to forestall increased taxation; Signor Mussolini will reduce Italian armaments to any figure if his neighbors do likewise.

Talks With Stimson.

The 56-year-old Italian diplomat spent two hours of his second day in Washington yesterday morning discussing phases of the disarmament problems after breakfast with Secretary Stimson. Then, after an impressive, touching tribute to the Unknown Soldier at Arlington Cemetery he came to the State Department and talked about it with the American correspondents in his first meeting with the press.

Perhaps the disarmament question sprang to his mind as he stood in the morning sun, in the shadow of the amphitheater and looking down at the marble slab which marked the American nameless hero, he raised his right arm in the Fascist salute and stood in this tribute to a fallen comrade-in-arms for perhaps a minute and a half.

The formal diplomatic dinner which Secretary Stimson offered the Italian statesman last night at the Pan-American Union afforded Signor Grandi another opportunity to go over with the French Ambassador, M. Claudel, and the German Ambassador, Baron von Prittwitz, some other aspects of the ever-present problem of arms reduction.

Dignified Impression.

In his first meeting with the press yesterday the Italian statesman made a very happy and dignified impression. His youth is offset by a Safscenic beard which lends an added air of dignity, sincerity and forcefulness to his words. He was dressed in a morning coat, gray trousers and cloth-topped varnished button shoes. His English was chosen and fluent and he spoke his words with that musical intonation that foreign speakers of Latin languages usually retain.

He announced that he considered the "moral effect" of his twelve months' arms holiday was already apparent.

"The practical results of the truce above all in the moral field have been achieved."

The full weight of the Minister's words in this connection were verified by reports from Geneva yesterday when French Foreign Minister Briand declared that 63 governments had accepted the Grandi proposal. The original proposal was to go into effect on November 1, and replies from 45 different countries, including the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and Russia, had already been forwarded. Some of these replies, it is true, qualified their ac-

GARNER SEES HOUSE ORGANIZED QUICKLY

Texas Democrat Declares Only Two Hours Will Be Necessary.

(Associated Press.)

From the Democrat who probably will be the next Speaker there came yesterday a prediction that the House will organize and be ready for business within two hours after it meets.

John N. Garner, the Texan who is unopposed for the Democratic Speakership nomination, made that "guess." It was the first public indication from him that he did not believe organization would consume several days, as it often has in the past when party strength was as closely divided as it now is.

When his remark was interpreted as meaning he expected to win the Speaker's chair immediately, Garner quickly added, "I didn't say that."

Meanwhile, the closely contested race for the Republican Speakership nomination between Snell, of New York, and Tilson, of Connecticut, in Republican ranks was further complicated by a prediction from Representative Hawley, of Oregon, chairman of the Republican conference. He said:

"As long as Tilson wants to he will remain as leader of the party. If he should be elected Speaker he would leave the floor leadership vacant; if not, he will remain leader of the minority." Tilson was elected floor leader in a caucus last February.

Hawley's interpretation of party rules, however, brought immediate denials from friends of Snell.

Representative Bacharach, of New Jersey, said that whoever wins the Republican speakership nomination will be the actual leader of his party if the Democrats win control, regardless of early party actions.

Garner predicted his party would win the special election in the Fourteenth Texas District, although there were three Democrats and one Republican running for the seat vacated by the death of Representative Wurzbach, Republican. This victory would give the Democrats an actual voting majority, bringing their House representation to 218 or 1 more than half the total.

Space in Navy Hospital Bars Racial Separation

(Associated Press.)

The surgeon general of the Navy, Rear Admiral C. E. Riggs, informed Senator Glass yesterday that segregation of patients along racial lines was "wholly beyond the capacity" of the Norfolk Naval Hospital at Portsmouth.

Rear Admiral Riggs said, however, he had recommended to the administrator of veterans' affairs that no more Negro patients be assigned to the institution. Of 118 Negroes in the hospital, he said 116 were sent there by the Veterans' Bureau.

His communication was in reply to resolutions of the Hopewell American Legion protesting the placing of white and Negro patients in the same wards.

Wholesale Food Costs Decrease 17 Per Cent

(Associated Press.)

Retailers replenished their shelves during October at wholesale prices just about one-fifth lower than during the corresponding month a year ago.

The Department of Labor, in a report yesterday, placed the index of October prices this year at 17 per cent less than in October, 1930, and about 1 per cent lower than September, this year. Decreases in values for some agricultural products brought the agricultural group index down to 2¾ per cent lower than in September, with the large group of nonagricultural commodities prices also showing a downward movement.

FLETCHER RESIGNS; LAUDED BY HOOVER

Head of Tariff Commission Reports to President; No Successor Named.

(Associated Press.)

With an expression of "keen appreciation" for his services, President Hoover yesterday accepted the resignation of Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Tariff Commission.

Simultaneous with the final notification that he would retire from his post, Fletcher submitted to the President a report of the commission's activities since it was reorganized fourteen months ago.

"The most important investigation now pending," he said, "is that relating to raw and refined sugar which was recently ordered and which in the nature of the case may be protracted as growing as well as refining costs both at home and abroad are involved."

The commission's records showed a total of 92 cases would be disposed of by November 30. In addition, Fletcher reported, 19 investigations and surveys are in progress and 21 applications for investigations on file.

The resignation will become effective November 30. No successor has been named. In a letter to Fletcher yesterday the President said:

"Under your chairmanship the work of the commission has made great progress in consummation of the hopes which were placed in its reorganization and increased authority. That a large number of cases have been considered and disposed of and the heavy docket for the year almost completed, all bespeak the devotion and effectiveness of the commission's work."

Killer's Death Sentence Affirmed by Court

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The conviction of Francis "two gun" Crowley of murder in the first degree was affirmed by the court of appeals today. The court's decision means that Crowley will die in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison for the murder of Frederick S. Hirsch, Nassau County policeman, unless Gov. Roosevelt exercises executive clemency.

to Mrs. Wilson-Greene, and not the Lyric management, it was said.

As the concert was in progress, Detective Lieut. James P. Comen and Detective Sergt. Leo Vogelsang were taking photographs of fingerprints in the ticket office. The concertgoers in the foyer, however, were unaware of their presence.

Mrs. Wilson-Greene told detectives she believed the theft could be attributed to "the carelessness of my ticket seller." She was much upset over the affair.

Detectives said the robber also had taken an undetermined number of checks and that the exact loss would not be determined until tomorrow.

Staples Case Ends As Body Disbands

Lawyers' Committee Closes Work of Reporting to to Commissioners.

The sensational case of Orville A. Staples was closed as far as the District Commisioners are concerned yesterday when the lawyers' committee was disbanded. The commissioners had previously indicated that they would accept the report, which absolved certain policemen of charges of framing Staples while he was in the depamtrent.

Unless Staples brings some new action or unless an echo of the inquiry is heard in Congress, the case will probably never be brought to trial.

Frederick A. Schenck, former policeman and now a convict, whose original testimony started the investigation and led a District grand jury to recommend the reinstatement of Staples, will be returned to Leavenworth Penitentiary as soon as possible.

Peace Preservation Placed Up to U. S.

Newton D. Baker Declares U. S. Could Prevent War With Own Power.

Boston, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War in the Wilson Cabinet, today declared that decisive action for preservation of the world's peace was among the debts of the United States as the principal creditor nation of the world. Baker spoke before the Boston Chamber of Commerce and over a Nation-wide radio hook-up.

The United States can assume an imposing place in the move toward universal peace, Baker said, by various projects. They included entry of this country into the world court and reclamation from "oblivion" and adoption of the Capper resolution to prevent the United States from becoming a benevolent neutral in times of war between nations which had agreed to arbitrate international differences.

Reduction of tariff barriers to permit debtor nations to pay their debts, in part at least, through the exchange of products, and the strengthening of our domestic financial structure were advocated by Baker.

HONOR PAID WILSON AT BUST DEDICATION

Widow and Associates of War-Time President Attend Richmond Ceremonies.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—John Barton Payne today paid tribute to Woodrow Wilson as the man who died for the creation of the Covenant of the League of Nations that mankind might be forever saved from the horrors of war and that subject peoples might enjoy the right to live under a government which rests upon the consent of the governed.

The tribute was paid in an oration dedicating a bust of Wilson unveiled in the Virginia Capitol by Mrs. Wilson before five surviving members of the war President's cabinets, and a large gathering of distinguished persons.

Gov. Pollard, opening the ceremonies, likened Wilson to Washington. He said that with Washington the freedom of the United States was an issue; with Wilson it was the freedom of the whole world. With Washington the revolution was a struggle for a nation. With Wilson, the World War was for all nations; Washington sought a league of states, and Wilson a League of Nations; and, he concluded, Washington's ideals were crowned with victory, and "so shall it be with Wilson."

One-minute memorial addresses were delivered by Senator Carter Glass, Mitchell Palmer, Josephus Daniels, William C. Redfield, former members of Wilson cabinets, and Admiral Grayson, physician to the President. Other tributes were read from D. F. Houston, William G. McAdoo, T. W. Gregory, Newton D. Baker, A. S. Burleson and Bainbridge Colby, former Cabinet members, who could not be present, and Joseph P. Tumulty, former secretary to the President.

With the bust done in marble by Harriet W. Frishmuth, New York sculptor, placed in the niche at the capitol rotunda, seven busts of Virginia-born Presidents surround the Houdon Washington, and the series of ceremonies converting the capitol rotunda into the Hall of Virginian Presidents is completed.

Hoover Bank Plan Strongly Indorsed

Washington Chamber of Commerce Sees Protection Against Selfish Interests.

President Hoover's proposal for the establishment of a Federal mortgage bank was strongly indorsed by the executive committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

In taking this action, the executive committee expressed belief that the Hoover plan, if carried to successful conclusions, "will not only place banks, trust companies and savings institutions on a more liquid basis, but will fortify the American home owner against certain selfish interests which are insidiously attacking that bulwark of American stability—the home."

Satisfaction was expressed over the progress being made by the Washington Coal Dealers Association to secure a freight rate reduction on anthracite coal as originally proposed by the chamber. The sum of $250 was appropriated by the committee to aid local coal dealers in their fight which starts officially in January before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Rumrunner Is Believed Dead in Niagara Plunge

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—One rumrunner was believed to have gone to his death over the American falls tonight when he leaped from his beer-laden craft in the Niagara River. His companion was captured by immigration border patrolmen at the head of Goat Island.

The prisoner gave his name as Mike Pyzyski, 18, of this city. The young man who in eluding capture is supposed to have lost his life, was known to Pyzyski only as Louis.

TELEVISION'S VALUE TO ADVERTISING HIT

National Association Is Told It Still Is Experiment; Officers Elected.

Television, in its present stage of development, has virtually nothing to offer as an entertainment, much less as an advertising medium, Edgar H. Felix, radio consultant, last night told the Association of National Advertisers, in convention at the Wardman Park Hotel.

"Clearly, television is not here," Mr. Felix told his audience. "It is needless to discuss the program possibilities of television of this standard; you might as well try to start a symphony orchestra with a penny whistle."

Describing technical limitations yet to be overcome before advertising possibilities are opened, Mr. Felix declared the finest television outfit produced today has only "an information value to the eye equivalent to that contributed by a one-inch square newsprint half-tone."

Radical Change Necessary.

He held that only a radical change in television methods will bring "permanent high quality radio television service," and concluded that when it does "arrive" it will provide a medium for advertising "unapproached by any other."

"Only because of the ephemeral character of the radio and its limited capacity does the new combined visual and aural broadcasting fail to spell the doom of the printed word," he said.

The association also was addressed by Kenyon Stevenson, of the Armstrong Cork Co., of Lancaster, Pa., and B. Soby, sales promotion manager of Westinghouse Radio.

Lee H. Bristol, of the Bristol-Myers Co., of New York, was reelected president of the organization at yesterday morning's session.

Four directors were elected to fill vacancies on the board. They were Bennett Chappie, American Rolling Mills Co., Middltown, Ohio; Paul B. West, National Carbon Co., New York; William B. Griffin, William Rogers Manufacturing Co., Meriden, Conn., and W. L. Schaeffer, National Tubing Co., of Pittsburgh.

Other Officers Chosen.

Other officers reelected were: Vice presidents, Stuart Peabody, the Borden Co., New York; W. A. Grove, Edison General Electric Appliance Co., Chicago, and P. J. Kelly, the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., Akron; managing director and secretary-treasurer, Albert E. Haase, New York, and assistant managing directors, G. S. McMillan and A. W. Lehman, New York.

Wives of the delegates were received by Mrs. Hoover at the White House during the election of officers. Following the business meeting, the convention broke up into group meetings, open only to members, with various selling and distribution problems under discussion.

No sentiment favoring curtailment of advertising developed at the sessions. Leaders estimate that $300,000,000, or more, will be spent on advertising during the coming year. Readjustments in methods of placing advertising, to provide a greater return on investment, were favored.

Army Officers Are Guests.

High Army officers, active and retired, were guests yesterday afternoon at a luncheon of the Selective Service Advertising Group, recently commissioned in the Reserve Corps as the nucleus of an organization for dissemination of selective service information in the event of a national emergency. Although not affiliated with the Association of National Advertisers, members were guests at the advertisers' banquet. Lieut Col. William H. Rankin is president.

Billy B. Van, formerly widely known on the stage, now with the Pinetree Products Co., of Vermont, will address the closing session this morning. Other speakers will include Charles L. Low, of Charles L. Low, Inc., Chicago, and Frederick E. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune. Afterward the resolutions committee will report.

PRESIDENT WRITES CLERKS TO AID IDLE

Messages From Hoover and Civil Service Head Seek Jobless Fund.

Machinery to collect $1,600,000 from Government employes in Washington to relieve unemployment was set in motion yesterday by President Hoover and Thomas E. Campbell, president of the Civil Service Commission and chairman of the special Government employes committee, appointed by the President to collect employment relief funds from Government workers.

"I believe," President Hoover said in a letter addressed to the officers and employes of the Government service in Washington, "that we will be brought closer together in this unified effort to relieve the distress of our fellow citizens, and will learn lessons of future fruitfulness in meeting the social problems of the country."

Government employes gave generously last year to the Community Chest and he believed they would contribute as generously, or more so, in response to the current appeal, President Hoover told the Government workers under him.

"It is understood," Mr. Hoover said, "that an integral part of the plan includes provisions for creating work as far as possible to give to unemployed persons, and that direct relief will be accorded only in necessitous cases."

The President's letter was sent to each department, bureau and division, accompanied by a letter from Mr. Campbell outlining the forecast plan of having a collection chairman in each division.

Organization for the drive to collect money was not haphazard. Each collection agent is to be equipped with the name and the salary of every employe in his realm. Each is to be solicited for three days pay, one day for each of three months, beginning with January. Those who want to give more to specific charitable or relief organizations, it was made clear in the correspondence, should do so by outside arrangement.

Irish Republican Chieftain, Hidden in Hills, Tells Plans

America Revealed Big Source of Funds as Communist Aid Is Denied; Complete Independence Aim of 20,000 Men Drilling Secretly.

Editor's note—W. G. Quisenberry, United Press staff correspondent stationed in London, was sent to Dublin recently to report on the recurrence of Irish Republican activity. He was accorded not only the privilege of watching the new "Irish Republican army" at its secret drill in the hills, but of interviewing the commander of the rebellious forces, who, in the following article, outlines his reasons for opposition to what he terms "British control" over Ireland.

By W. G. QUISENBERRY.

(Copyright, 1931, by the United Press.)

Somewhere in the Wicklow Mountains, Ireland, Nov. 17 (U.P.).—In a lonely shanty in the hills, lighted only by the glow from the hearth and a single oil lamp, I talked for two hours with the commander in chief of the Irish Republican party, who told me he had 20,000 men trained and ready to fight Great Britain in the cause of complete Irish independence.

First, he pledged me to secrecy regarding any plans that might endanger his men. It is the only interview he has given since the recurrence of Republican activity.

The commander is a dynamic, well-educated man in his thirties. Once he began to talk, he spoke freely and agreeably, explaining the army's aims and methods.

Holds Free State Forced.

"Great Britain," he said, "forced the Free State status upon Ireland just when Ireland was within sight of its goal—complete liberation. Force has been used ever since to maintain her political and economic hold on us.

"President Cosgrave and his politicians now can resort to coercion—the public safety act—and anything else, but they can not kill a sentiment that is 1,800 years old.

"Ireland never will relinquish the hope of freedom, and the coercion act hasn't frightened us. It only means we must be more cautious for a while."

The promises I had given prevented my seeking the name of any person I met on this journey into the secret places where the republican army is conducting its nightly drills. I also promised not to dispatch any stories of occurrences I witnessed save by courier.

Coercion Bill Scored.

"When do you think you will call your army into action?" I asked the commander in chief.

"I'll explain that in this way," he replied. "In the first place, it is necessary to impress you with the fact that, despite appearances, the Irish republican army does not want civil war. It does not want to fight our own people. Cosgrave and his ministers are the ones who are resorting to force. Backed by the British army, they are trying to destroy Irish nationalism and tighten their grip whenever they see their away weakening.

"The recent months have witnessed a great surge of nationalistic feeling, and Cosgrave had his coercion bill passed purely to provoke forcible opposition and thereby raise the specter of another civil war. Thus he intended to antagonize the people against this new republican army.

Communist Charge Denied.

"At the same time they have uttered vicious propaganda unscrupulously asking the bishops to condemn us as 'communistic.' We are not communistic in the slightest respect, and we have not received any communistic money, although we would gladly accept from them, as from anybody else, any help for our cause. Nearly all of our donations come from America, and this aid is surprisingly large. Naturally, we have a few Communist supporters, and also a few capitalists.

"We are referred to as a secret society. Our constitution is open to anybody who wants to read it. We drilled in the open before the coercion bill was passed, and because a majority of Irishmen want a republic they will not inform against us.

"If a majority of Irishmen had a voice in the Irish Parliament, you would see that they do not want to be tied irrevocably to England, which is fast declining and dragging Ireland with her.

Older Folk Disheartened.

"English capital has a stranglehold on Ireland which prevents our own development. The Irish debt payments to Great Britain are more per capita than the German reparations to the allies of the World War. Our farmers are impoverished and have no chance to compete with the farmers of other nations. They have no modern machinery. There is no gold in the Irish banks, and even Irish currency is supported by British bonds, which are now depreciated.

"Our people realize all these things, but the older generations are sick of war and disheartened. We must look to the younger folks, who are eager to carry on the fight for independence, and who think that freedom is worth it.

"When we have an Ireland united and aroused, then it will be time to fight Great Britain. We are not falling into Cosgrave's trap now, by resisting. But there is nothing to stop us frdm preparing for the conflict."

Gold Standard Shakes Up EgyptianLover's Tradition

By JOHN J. DALY

WHERE the etesian winds blow over the Egyptian Sea, at the Port of Alexandria, all is not well; and true love which never runs smoothly, is having its difficulties—because England went off the gold standard.

As the story goes, a young Egyptian was strolling along the shore of the Lake Mareia, fed by waters of the Nile, his ladylove by his side. They were to be married and the young man was happy in the knowledge that the girl's father had settled upon her a dowry of 500 Egyptian argenteus, a coin kindred to the British pound sterling.

With this sizable fortune, the young lovers planned to wing their way on a honeymoon into the cinnamon country, through the Arabian Gulf. While booking passage, next day, the young gallant came across the latest news from England, brought in on a freighter, announcing the suspension of the gold standard. Immediately, his prospective father-in-law was apprised of the fact that there would be no wedding unless the ante was boosted to 700 pounds. Otherwise, the girl would be left waiting at the temple.

NOW here is rigid departure from the standards of old, when the Rameses presided over the destinies of Egypt. Then, a lover laid before his lady's feet heaps of incense resin, and ebony, and pure ivory, and gold and silver from the land of Amu, with tesep wood, and the cassia-bark, aham incense and mestamkohl, with the skins of leopards from the north, apes and monkeys, and a jug of wine; but these things happened before the days of the Egyptian miners, the gold-diggers.

At that time, as it is taken from the "oldest book in the world," written on papyrus, a man bothered himself not about a dowry from his wife's parents, but undertook to provide for the lady, to wit: "Take care of thy house; love thy wife purely; fill her stomach; clothe her back; these are the cares to give to her body. Caress her, fulfill her desire during the time of thine existence; it is a kindness which honors its master. Be not brutal; consideration will lead her better than force; * * * this is her breath, her aim, her gaze. This establishes her in thy house; if thou repellest her it is an abyss. Open thine arms to her for her arms; call her, show her thy love, and give to her of thy bounty, all thy worldly goods."

Now, what have we in Egypt? Because Great Britain suspends the gold standard there are a lot of sulky young men who will not marry unless their fathers-in-law-to-be dig down in their jeans and make up the loss on the bourse. Old Cheops would roll over in his grave, and the Regent Queen Mother of Thotmes III, who advised her son to shower upon his beloved all the precious woods of the Holy Land, with verdant incense trees, and all his household goods, would blush with very shame, were she not mummified.

GONE are the good old days in Egypt, when lovers came bearing gifts. The spirit of materialism has fallen upon the swain of the land. The code of the fortune hunter has taken the place of the tomes of Ptolemy who, advising the young men to marry, let loose this piece of wisdom, an inscription found at Abu-Simel: "Activity produces riches and riches do not last when activity slackens."

In the badinage of Broadway, a man who comes seeking remittances from his father-in-law is a bum. In the case of the Egyptians, it may be set down as a sad state of affairs when the romances of Cairo are blasted by the enactment of laws made in a London parliament, thus proving that it is a small world after all. Its smallness, in this instance, is best exemplified by the shriveled souls of the inamorati who postpone their weddings until their fathers-in-law recoup lost fortunes. These fellows must come from Lower Egypt, for in the higher life there is no gold standard attached to love.

TALKIE PROVES GUILT OF CAPONE RUM AID

Kansas City Bootlegger's Activities Recorded by Federal Agents.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The "movie-talkie" system — latest sleuthing method of Federal dry agents—proved a decided success at its premiere.

Even the bootlegger who unwittingly played the stellar role in an 8-reel Government-sponsored film exhibited in Federal Court which might be titled "rum running in Kansas City" was convinced that the directors had produced a hit with a powerful story.

The finale was a plea of guilty by Joe Pasano, alias Joe Pete, to liquor charges, and his sentence was two years in Leavenworth Penitentiary and a fine of $10,000.

Pasano, alleged by the Government to have been one of the heads of a liquor ring here which distributed Al Capone products, decided in the midst of his trial that it would be wholly unnecessary to wait for a verdict from the critics seated in the jury box.

Pasano's Ears Burn.

He had seen himself on the screen in the darkened courtroom in various episodes filmed around the alleged headquarters of the ring by dry agents who had secreted themselves with a movie camera in a wooded spot nearby.

Keeping abreast with progress in Hollywood, the agents added the talkie touch to the silent film. It was testified that wires were tapped at the headquarters.

Conversations, which caused Pasano's ears to burn in court, were repeated from the wire tapping records. For instance:

Pasano—"This is Joe Pete. Take two cases at 10 o'clock this morning and tell him to drive on the wash rack."

In pronouncing sentence, Judge A. L. Reeves said the evidence was plain that Pasano was guilty and scored him for permitting the trial to run five days before changing his plea.

"Swell Gag" Dispelled.

At the start of the trial, the snappily dressed and pomaded defendant declared the proceedings were just a "swell gag."

The case was the first in which the prohibition enforcement service has used movies in court. Pasano was the last of the 42 defendants indicted in connection with the liquor ring, described by Federal agents as a million dollar affair, to come into court. The other leaders were sentenced to 18 months and fined $7,500 each on pleas of guilty.

Prohibition officials were silent as to how extensively the new system of gathering evidence is being used in trapping bootleggers.

The Kansas City films were taken nearly a year ago. The performance in court was a surprise to the defense.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 109

THE above photograph depicts the old Bijou Theater, taken in days when Lily Langtry, the "Jersey Lily," thrilled packed houses with her rendition of the prima donna lead in "Unequal March," and a President of the United States applauded the performance of Mlle. Rhea, the beautiful Belgian, upon her Washington debut in "Adrienne Lacouvreur."

The original Bijou was first erected in 1869, being the third theater to open in Washington. It was first known as Wall's Opera House, and when it came under the management of John Ford in 1873 it was known to the theatrical world as Ford's Opera House. Under the regime of Mr. Ford the greatest dramatic luminaries of all time enthralled Washington audiences with their portrayal of the outstanding productions of the period. The most brilliant performance ever held in the building took place on the night of April 1, 1882, when Mlle. Rhea played the prima donna lead in "Adrienne Lecouvreur" to one of the most distinguished audiences ever assembled in a theater anywhere in the country. President Chester A. Arthur sat in a flag-draped and flower-strewn box surrounded by the cream of Washington officialdom and the Diplomatic Corps. As the last curtain fell the beautiful Belgian took bow after bow to the applause from the presidential box.

However, in 1886, the theater passed from the management of John Ford and was taken over by P. Harris, who turned it into a vaudeville house under which guise it lasted until a few years ago when it gave way to make room for a bus terminal, prior to which it was known as the Folly and also the Majestic.

SCHOOLS PROMISED ONE BUILDING BOSS

District and Education Board Agree on Cooperation in Construction.

A policy of better cooperation between school officials and the District Engineer Department and a centralized administrative agency will be adopted as a result of the protests of the Board of Education to the District Commissioners yesterday, Maj. D. A. Davison, acting Engineer Commissioner, announced.

There have been too many bosses in school construction, he said, and hereafter there will be only one so far as the engineer department is concerned; that will be Maj. H. L. Robb. Maj. Davison added that he hoped the Board of Education would likewise designate a single authority to deal with school construction.

The school delegation yesterday asked for an improved administration of the District Repair Shop so that school jobs can be speeded. They declared that the opening of certain schools has been delayed by failure of the repair shop to install available equipment.

"I'm sure that we will be able to work out a scheme acceptable to both the school authorities and the engineer department," Maj. Davison said. "Heretofore there has been too much uncertainty as to whose orders were to be taken first."

The delegation which called on the Commissioners consisted of Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, and George Whitwell, of the Board of Education; Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools; Sephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent; Jere J. Crane, business manager, and Robert Haycock, assistant superintendent.

Mate of Garroted Girl Denies Killing

Tire Treads Same as Marks Near Body Discovered in "Lovers' Lane."

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Although confronted with evidence that his automobile had been near the spot where the body of his estranged girl wife was found yesterday, Dudley Doyle, 17, of Moundsville, W. Va., insisted tonight that he knew nothing about her death.

The body of the girl was identified today as that of the former Marie Burch, 17, of Bellaire, Ohio. Shortly afterward Doyle was arrested at his home in Moundsville.

Police took his car to the place where the body was found on Chapline Hill, a lonely "lovers' lane" near here, and said that the tire tread tallied exactly with impressions made by automobile tires in the mud there.

The dead girl, who had been garroted with four strands of hempen rope, was identified by her father in the morgue here after 7,000 persons had viewed the body in an effort to establish her identity.

Rail Rates Revised For Canned Goods

I. C. C. Approves All but Few of Modifications Effective Feb. 22.

(Associated Press.)

With a few exceptions, the Inter-State Commerce Commission yesterday approved new rates on canned goods to, from and between Southern points and they will become effective February 22.

It found not justified certain rates to North Carolina destinations, all to the South from Green Bay, Oconto and Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and those to Florida points.

The commission fixed the rates from Green Bay at not to exceed 5 cents per 100 pounds over rates from Milwaukee to the same destinations. From Oconto 7 cents and from Sturgeon Bay 8 cents over Milwaukee. It said the decision would dispose of complaints regarding water and rail and rail-water-and-rail rates from the East through Norfolk to certain Southern destinations.

$500,000,000 POOL IS OVERSUBSCRIBED

Credit Corporation's Head Says Loan Demands of Banks Are Light.

New York, Nov. 17 (U.P.).—Subscriptions to National Credit Corporation gold notes will exceed the $500,000,000 originally estimated by those who formulated the plan on President Hoover's suggestion, Mortimer N. Buckner president of the corporation, announced tonight.

Mr. Buckner said the corporation would not find it necessary to call for subscriptions because of the light loan demand by banks throughout the country.

Funds now being used were provided through "the cooperation of certain individual banks, which are willing to make advances and hold funds available to the National Credit Corporation pending a call for payment of the subscriptions to the corporation's gold notes" Mr. Buckner said.

"When the advances to subscribing banks in fully organized associations accumulate to an amount that is deemed sufficient, a call for payment of subscriptions will be issued, and these advances will be repaid thereby."

In connection with making advances to banks in difficulty because of illiquid assets, the corporation, according to Mr. Buckner, will follow "the policy that normally governs the relationship between individual banks and their customers in respect to the confidential nature of any loans requested or the location of the borrowing banks and the associations through which advances are made."

Speaking of the indication that subscriptions to the corporation's gold notes would exceed the half billion dollar mark, Mr. Buckner said:

"The response of banks everywhere to the corporation's invitation to subscribe, not only is fully up to expectations, but also reflects a fine spirit of cooperation among the banks of the country.

"These subscriptions, as already announced, are on the basis of 2 per cent of the banks' net demand and time deposits, not exceeding 10 per cent of their capital and surplus, and no exceptions are being made to these requirements."

On November 6, the corporation announced instructions to officers in their discretion to issue an initial call for the payment of 10 per cent of the banks' subscriptions as soon as applications for loans from banks in fully organized associations were filed.

Fight Is Renewed Over Tank School

Goldsborough Again Seeks to Prevent Transfer Ordered by U. S.

Baltimore, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—United States Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough, of Maryland, today renewed his efforts to prevail upon the War Department to reconsider its order transferring the tank school from Fort Meade to Fort Benning, Georgia.

The Maryland Republican made his original request several weeks ago. Maj. Gen. Charles H. Bridges, the adjutant general, informed Senator Goldsborough that the department could not comply with his request, inasmuch as the transfer was to be made as an economy measure within the service and that it would be to the best interest of the service to move the tank school to Fort Benning.

Now, it was learned today, Senator Goldsborough wants to know from the War Department how much it will cost to transfer the tank school to Fort Benning, inasmuch as it is being done as an economy measure within the service. The Maryland senator, it is understood, insists that the transfer will cost considerable money and holds some doubt as to the economy of the move.

Grand Jury to Call General in Probe

Princess Anne Panel Inquiry Will Delve Into Alleged Beach Gaming.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Brig. Gen. S. Gardner Waller, adjutant general of Virginia, will be summoned to appear Thursday before the special grand jury conducting a double investigation of alleged election irregularities in Princess Anne County and alleged gambling at Virginia Beach.

That Gen. Waller will be called was learned today when the grand jury adjourned for the day and the clerk of court had been tendered a list of aditional witnesses to be summoned. It was understood unofficially that Gen. Waller would be questioned with reference to the gaming investigation. This was launched at the request of Gov. Pollard, who supplied a list of witnesses to be examined in that connection.

Others to be summoned to appear Thursday include C. C. Frizzell, chairman of the Princess Anne County electoral board; C. T. Moore, secretary of the board, and Bertha and Nash Vail, both of Norfolk.

SCIENCE USES PLANE TO STUDY METEORS

Astronomers View Greatest Leonid Shower Since 1866 Display.

Los Angeles, Nov. 17 ((A.P.).—Scientists, using an airplane as their observatory, early today saw what probably was the greatest shower of the age-old Leonid meteors since the historic display of 1866.

It was the hit show of the universe, coming only once in every 33 years and first seen just 1,000 years ago. The spectators were nine men, including Dr. Paul W. Merrill, noted astronomer of the Mount Wilson Observatory, Pasadena, who sat in a trimotored night mail plane of the Western Air Express and watched as it flew from Salt Lake City to Los Angeles.

The shower of flaming fragments appeared at one time with a frequency of more than one a minute for 39 minutes. In all, nearly 150 were counted and there probably were more hidden from sight by the wing of the big monoplane.

The most brilliant of these left a train that was visible for nearly four minutes. It diverted from the straight lines of its predecessors by turning at a right angle from its course as it flew through the air, probably 50 miles above.

To the spectators in the plane, it was as though some unseen director was providing the climax to a drama well founded in thrilling scenes. The display came as the plane broke its way into a clear sky after piercing a snowstorm which at first caused pilots Charles N. (Jimmy) James, and Bart Cox, veteran airmen, to turn back to the shelter of the Salt Lake City airport and await weather reports before the second and successful attempt was made.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—A flash of light in the sky believed to have been caused by a large meteor, was reported seen here about 5:30 o'clock this morning. Observers said they saw a gigantic trail of light, extending from the east around in a sharp angle to the north. This light was said to have appeared brighter than Halley's comet.

Clear Weather Reveals Display of Meteors Here

Early morning risers, and perhaps a few persons who had not retired as dawn began to break yesterday, were treated to an unusual sight, rivaling the best of Fourth of July celebrations, as clear weather for the first time permitted observance of the long-heralded Leonid meteors.

Harry E. Burton, chief of the Naval Observatory, said the display was visible from midnight until 5 a. m. However, a few scattered clouds partially concealed it at the beginning and those who were awake after 3 a. m. saw the display better.

The meteors, emanating from the constellation Leo, made their appearance in the sky from the northeast and at times a large portion of the heavens were ablaze with light. More than 75 of them were seen from the observatory. Starting in the east like shooting stars, the meteors traveled at a sharp angle to the north and suddenly burst, sending showers of flaming particles to disappear in space.

Treasury actuary experts to get the facts. He has consistently opposed new taxation at this session.

Senator Watson, Republican leader, also has opposed tax legislation now, but he said Monday that such a step is inevitable.

A clew to the possible plans of the administration was seen in a proposal advanced by Senator Reed, high ranking Republican on the finance committee, who usually sees eye to eye with Mr. Mellon on fiscal affairs. The Pennsylvanian advocated an excise tax on as broad a base as possible, excluding necessities.

Bacharach Gives Tip.

"I would like to see it extend as far as possible and at as low a rate as possible," he said.

Reed also said he would favor increasing surtax rates applying on larger incomes to a degree, but he expressed the view that too great a step-up in these rates would prove unprofitable by driving money into tax exempt securities.

Representative Bacharach, a ranking Republican on the ways and means committee, which originates revenue legislation, gave the tip to an administration program with advocacy of a raise in rates on incomes from $20,000 upward. He also proposed increased rates on the estate tax, restoration of the gift levy and some luxury taxes. His program contemplates raising $750,000,000.

Garner Challenges Hawley.

Last summer Bacharach proposed raising the rates only on incomes of $100,000 and more—a plan which, he estimated, would bring in $600,000,000 additional revenue. Since then, however, the Treasury deficit has been mounting.

An inkling of the Democratic viewpoint was given by Representative Garner, foremost speakership candidate, when he challenged the opposition of Hawley to restoration of the gift tax. Hawley believed such a levy unlikely because it had been enacted and repealed. Informed of this, Garner said he would be glad to debate that with the Oregon Republican.

Senator Thomas, of Idaho, a Republican member of the finance committee, returned to Washington with the announcement that he opposes a sales tax, but will favor increases in the surtax on large incomes, larger inheritance taxes and a gift levy.

"It isn't wise to operate a country in peace times with a deficit," he said.

Police Post Urges Public Enemy Act

Search - and - Seizure Law Revision Made Part of Program.

The new public enemy act, a new search and seizure act and a new law restricting sale of firearms are several of the more pressing pieces of legislation to be brought to the attention of the approaching Congress, according to the Washington Police Post, official organ of District Post No. 29, American Legion, composed exclusively of members of the metropolitan force.

In addition District police would be aided by a complete revision of Federal Court procedure, by elimination of grand juries and authorization of Police Court judges to sit as committing magistrates, the publication says.

Under a public enemy act known professional gamblers and men with criminal records would be compelled to show legal livelihoods or go to jail, it is stated. The search-and-seizure act would be designed to legalize searches in which law breaking is discovered.

Formally recommended by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, newly appointed major and superintendent of police, District Commissioners yesterday appointed two police inspectors, one captain, an acting captain, a lieutenant, a sergeant, and 16 privates in the Metropolitan Police Department.

Capt. L. I. H. Edwards, personnel officer, was named an inspector to succeed William S. Shelby, while Capt. J. F. Beckett, of the Third Precinct, was promoted to replace Inspector Louis J. Stoll. Acting Capt. Edward J Kelly, assistant chief of detectives, was given the rank of full captain and placed in command of the Third Precinct. Lieut. B. W. Thompson, assigned to headquarters, was made an acting captain to replace Kelly at the Detective Bureau.

Sergt. Emil Daach, of the Third Precinct, and Private J. M. Larkins, of the Eleventh Precent, were promoted to the ranks of lieutenant and sergeant, respectively.

Edwards Moves Up Today.

All the promotions, save that of Capt. Edwards, are effective on December 1. Capt. Edwards becomes an inspector today because Inspector Shelby has already left the department.

Capt. Beckett will be transferred to headquarters and will become a special aid of Gen. Glassford. He also will take command of the special vice and liquor squad, now headed by Inspector T. R. Bean. Capt. Edwards will continue his duties as personnel officer and will also take over some of the work left by Inspector Shelby.

The advancement of Capt. Edwards has been rapid in the past eight years. He became a sergeant in 1923, after serving as an apprentice in the personnel office at headquarters, and in 1930 he was promoted to the rank of captain. Yesterday marked his twenty-eighth year in the Police Department.

Capt. Beckett has been a member of the force 24 years, and he likewise became a captain in 1930. He has received several commendations during his career.

The transfer of Capt. Kelly from detective headquarters is said to have been made at his own request. He has long been associated with noted criminal investigations and was formerly head of the Detective Bureau.

Mr. Christopher is expected to appear before Clerk of the Circuit Court Clayton K. Watkins, at the courthouse in Rockville today, to qualify. Mr. Christopher has resided with his parents at 6407 Delaware avenue, Chevy Chase, Md., for some time.

The commissioners selected Lacy Shaw, president of the board, to confer with the Social Service League and W. Ernest Offutt, supervisor of county aid, and select an emergency relief committee to function this winter in the county so that hysterical relief work can be prevented.

to retain British policewomen. In the following year she refused an offer to become professor of criminology at a California university.

In the thirteen years which Lieut. Van Winkle has been head of the Women's Bureau, she has seen it grow from a force of four women to one of more than twenty policewomen. The standards for policewomen have been raised and it has been placed on the civil service list. Her conception of the Women's Bureau has been patterned by similar bureaus in Cleveland, Detroit, Knoxville, Jacksonville and many other cities.

Although born in New York City, Lieut. Van Winkle lived most of her life in New Jersey. She is a graduate of the New York School of Social Work and was later head of the Newark City Home for Girls, a reform school. While in Newark, she was identified closely with charity and social work. In addition, she was president of the Women's Political Union of New Jersey and rendered signal service to the cause of woman suffrage.

After the death of her husband, Abraham Van Winkle, Mrs. Van Winkle traveled extensively and took an avid interest in social work, for which she received a degree of master of philanthropy from the College of Women of Rutgers College. Since her acceptance of the leadership of women's police work in Washington, Lieut. Van Winkle has been elected several times to the presidency of the International Association of Policewomen.

San Francisco, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—From southern California to the Arctic Circle winter had laid an ermine mantle over the Western mountains today and was accompanied by copious rainfall in the valleys and along much of the coast.

A. W. Stevenson, of Great Falls, Mont., pilot for the National Parks Airways, crashed west of Ogden, Utah, in a blinding snowstorm. He escaped injuries but his plane was badly damaged.

Of the fifty or more persons temporarily marooned in the mountains of California all had been rescued today with the exception of four men at Echo Lake Inn, in El Dorado County. These men may have to be rescued by airplane, but meanwhile it is believed they have shelter and plenty to eat.

Among the marooned were Noah Beery, the film actor, and three other men, who had gone with him to rescue Robert Elliott or Llano, in southern California. Elliott was rescued and Beery and his party got lost but were brought to safety late last night.

Montana, Wyoming and Idaho shared in the snow, which ranged in those States from a few inches to more than a foot. Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Utah shared in the rain.

The Yukon River, in Yukon Territory, 2,200 miles long, stopped running at 7:30 a. m. today with the temperature 27 degrees below zero. The main river and all tributaries are frozen solid and presumably will remain so until next May.

Police Trying to Link Trio With Dozen County Thefts

Three men have been charged with robbery in Marlboro, Md., and Prince Georges County police are trying to link them with a dozen other robberies in Prince Georges and Anne Arundel counties.

The three held are Ernest Diggs and William Hicks, Marlboro, and Edward Good, Baltimore. They have been charged with a $200 holdup of Moran's filling station in Hyattsville and the armed robbery of William Wise's filling station on the Crain highway near Marlboro.

At a hearing yesterday in Marlboro a huge pistol of the percussion-cap sort used in the Civil War was introduced. It was identified by Mr. Wise as the one used in the robbery of his station. The three men are held on bonds of $2,500 on each of the two charges.

Police believe the trio may also have had a hand in robbery of a tourist camp in Muirkirk and burglary of stores in Laurel, Berwyn and Meadows, Md. They may also be linked with a series of robberies in Anne Arundel County, in which a number of stores were fired after being burglarized.

CAPITAL FALL UNSEASONABLY WARM; RECORD MAY BE MADE the establishment of the bureau, and then only by one degree. Temperatures of 76 degrees were recorded November 16, 1897, and November 16, 1928.

The high mark, November 12, has been exceeded on three previous occasions, in 1879 with 77 degrees, in 1902 with 76 degrees and in 1912 with 77 degrees.

Warmest November day recorded here was November 2, 1929, when a temperature of 83 degrees, 24 above normal, was registered. The same month brought an all-time record for low November temperature, the thermometer registering 11 degrees November 30, 1929.

Average temperature this November has been 52.6 degrees. The warm November of 1902 exceeded this average by only two degrees in the first 16 days.

Although temperatures this month have been unusually high, no record has been broken in the amount of sunshine. There have been 87.2 hours of sunshine for the month so far out of a possible 154.6 hours.

In October, however, when the unusually warm fall weather first became noticeable, there was 70 per cent of sunshine, coming from clear skies for 242 hours out of a possible 346.1 hours.

Daily average temperature in October was 3.8 above normal. Highest for the month was 88 degrees, October 6. Warmest October day ever recorded was in 1927, with 93 degrees.

Octobers that have been warmer than the last were in 1879, 1881, 1882, 1900, 1918, 1919 and 1920.

September left Washington gasping after a long, severe summer. The month averaged 6 degrees above normal temperature. Warmest periods were from September 10 to 17 and 17 to 23. On eleven days the temperature was 90 degrees or above. The temperature was below normal only eight days. On 22 days it was equal to or above normal.

All parts of the United States, except the Gulf section, including most of Alabama and Florida, parts of Georgia, most of Mississippi and the lower Rio Grande Valley, have been unusually warm throughout the year. J. B. Kincer, chief of the division of agricultural meteorology, describes the year as the "most unusual for temperature in the history of meteorology." He ascribes high temperatures at present to high pressure over the Southeastern States and low over the remainder of the country.

High temperatures in Washington for the first eleven months of the year have been as follows: January, 64; February, 60; March, 60; April, 82; May, 92; June, 99; July, 97; August, 98; September, 97; October, 88; November, 75.

Warmest spot in the country has been Huron, S. Dak., with an average of 70 degrees a day for the first ten months of the year.

Average monthly temperature in Washington for the 10 months has been below normal in only one month, March. The monthly average for the entire country has been below normal only two months.

Mr. Kincer believes that if the next six weeks maintains the same average as the rest of the year all records for warm weather will be broken.

CITIZENS TO FIGHT BUS LINE'S PERMIT

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Efforts of the Arlington-Fairfax Railway Co. to obtain a permit to operate a bus line along Garrison road thence to Clarendon and on to Washington by way of Washington street, will be met with vigorous protest by residents of Garrison road, it was revealed last night.

Frank Davis, who will head the opposition when the hearing is held before the State corporation commission tomorrow morning at Richmond, Va., said last night the main opposition to the proposition was the fact that the right of way was not of sufficient width to permit passage of two buses at the same time and that there are no sidewalks.

Three important meetings in Arlington County will be held today.

The first will be the meeting between the newly elected officials of the county and the heads of the District of Columbia government. This meeting has been arranged by the Arlington County Kiwanis Club at the Little Tea House at 12:30 o'clock.

The principal speaker will be George W. Offutt, president of the Washington Board of Trade.

The November meeting of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County will start at the same hour at Calvary Methodist Protestant Church, Aurora Hills. Following a luncheon, Representative Howard W. Smith and State Senator-elect John W. Rust, of Fairfax County, will speak.

Tonight Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of the District of Columbia public schools, and Dr. Sidney B. Hall, superintendent of public instruction in Virginia, will speak at a national education week celebration at the Washington Lee High School. The meeting will be preceded by a turkey dinner at 6:30 o'clock.

Treasurer to Mail Tax Bills on Autos Nov. 27

Tax bills for automobiles will be mailed November 27 by J. Forest Walker, treasurer of Montgomery County, he announced yesterday. This is the same date that the commissioner of motor vehicles plans to mail application blanks for 1932 to the motorists of Maryland.

Persons paying their automobile tax may present it at any county bank or at the office of the treasurer in Rockville. The application blank for tags must be presented at the same time in order that it can be perforated to show payment of taxes. There are nearly 14,000 automobiles in Montgomery County.

MONTGOMERY JURY ENDS ITS INQUIRIES

163 Witnesses Examined and Three Cases Ignored; Reffitt Freed.

The Montgomery County grand jury yesterday completed its investigations and presented its report to Judge Robert B. Peter in Circuit Court at Rockville, Md. The judge informed members of the jury that should occasion arise before the March grand jury is sworn in they will be recalled.

The inquisitorial body reported it had examined 163 witnesses and had returned 55 presentments from the 58 cases presented for investigation. Three cases were ignored, among them the charge of manslaughter preferred against John F. Reffitt, whose wife was fatally wounded while struggling with him for a pistol with which he had threatened to commit suicide.

The grand jury reported it had visited the county buildings at Bethesda and Silver Spring and the county jail and almshouse, finding all in excellent condition. The body, however, reported that it believed some means of carrying excess water off the roof of the new courthouse should be provided. Otherwise, the jury believed the building a credit to the county.

Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley and the county police force were commended by the grand jurors, who stated that they believed the small number of cases brought before them was due to the efficiency of the police force. The body also commended the work of the recently established Bureau of Identification, of which Policeman Theodore Vollten is in charge, and recommended that the county commissioners render their aid in advancing this department.

State's Attorney Stedman Prescott was commended for his courtesy and consideration in advising the body and for his efficient preparation of cases to be investigated. Other officials also were commended for their cooperation. The report was presented to Judge Peter by Simon Peter Wagner, foreman.

Dissolution Asked By Dower Concern

Business Conducted at Historic House Has Been Discontinued.

The Dower House Corporation, which owned and operated the historic house near Rosaryville, Md. when it was used as a restaurant, will be dissolved if a petition filed in Prince Georges County Circuit Court yesterday is granted.

The bill, filed through J. Frank Lillard as president, states that the property has been sold and the business discontinued. The stockholders, who are Mrs. Matilda R. Duvall, Betty Bowman Christmas, C. L. Jackson and Donaldson Christmas, have assets of $7,224 in the corporation and no liabilities, the bill continues.

The Dower House, built as a hunting lodge by Lord Baltimore in 1642, was partly burned about a year ago. The ruins were sold to Eleanor Patterson.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. CHANGE IN GRANDI'S PLANS CAUSES FEUD

Official in New York Calls State Department Action "Petty Spite Work."

Signor Grandi's decision to come to Washington to meet President Hoover before the New York City official reception has resulted in a feud between the State Department and the City of New York authorities.

Maj. William F. Deegan, tenement house commissioner and chairman of the committee for the reception of guests of Matyor James J. Walker, called the action of the State Department "petty spite work." The major, furthermore, announced that a State Department official had been quoted as saying:

"When you visit a gentleman's home, you don't shake hands first with the chauffeur." This, the Tammany Hall politician said, indicated the feelings of the State Department officials with regard to the priority of the city's reception over the greeting of the Federal Government.

Held No Basis For Fact.

The statement attributed to one of the State Department officers charged with arranging the Grandi visit in conjunction with the City of New York, has no basis for fact, it was authoritatively stated yesterday at Secretary Stimson's office.

The facts of the case are as follows: The initiative for the Grandi program was given by the Italian minister of foreign affairs. He believed that as he was coming to visit the President and stay with Secretary of State Stimson, his first thought should be of them. Accordingly, he decided to forego the New York City greeting until his return from the Capital.

Previously Approved.

All these details were previously approved by Warren Delano Robbins, chief of the division of protocol, and by Capt. Gene Regnier, military aid of Secretary Stimson, who went to New York in advance of the Grandi arrival and arranged the reception with Mayor James Walker and his tenement house commissioner. Neither Mr. Robbins nor Capt. Regnier, nor any one of the State Department made the statement attributed by Maj. Deegan. Upon investigation, the words attributed incorrectly to the Department of State were found to have been used by a newspaperman describing the White House plans for receiving Grandi to another newspaperman on a direct telephone wire in New York.

Through a misunderstanding the New York journalist interpreted the remark of his colleagues to an authoritative statement from some one in authority in Secretary Stimson's office. A letter describing the incident was received from the newspaperman in question at the office of the Secertary yesterday.

Press Legion Post Names M. A. Coles Commander

The National Press Club Post of the American Legion last night elected M. A. Coles commander for the coming term. Other officers elected are Soterios Nicholson, first vice commander; Stuart S. Havs, second vice commander; H. E. Radcliffe, adjutant; William Wolff Smith, finance officer; H. R. Baukhage, chaplain; Edward M. Lewis, sergeant-at-arms, and Paul J. McGahan, member of the department executive committee.

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, retired, conferred a past commander's badge on Justice James M. Proctor.

NATIONS SAY TRADE BEGINS RECOVERY

centers reported a better tone for the second successive month.

In Canada, "general business conditions are reported to be fairly good, with an appreciable pickup in wholesale and retail trade." In Toronto, more men were employed in industrial plants in October than during the same month last year.

Confirming all these scattered signs of a world-wide recovery, the regular monthly survey of the American Federation of Labor reported yesterday that "business sentiment is distinctly better" at home.

"A month ago business was on the verge of a panic," this review continues. "Since then the beginnings of organized efforts to meet depression problems has steadied the public mind. The President's credit organization to check bank failures has increased confidence at home; conferences between ministers of the leading nations have facilitated measures to deal with world problems and to improve world confidence. The President's plan to liquidate frozen real estate investment is hailed as another constructive measure."

Capacity to Pay.

Venturing into the field of foreign relations for the first time since its monthly economic survey was established, the A. F. L. indorsed the now developing plan to revise the war debts and reparations settlements on the new basis of "capacity to pay."

"Business activity can not reach high levels until the problem is settled," the review said on this point. Characterizing the European debt question as "the shadow in the background," it continues:

"Premier Laval's visit to the United States has paved the way for reconsideration of reparations under the Young plan and Germany already is taking steps toward that end."

The A. F. L. also found encouragement in the fact that the movement toward shorter working hours, to spread available employment as widely as possible, is gaining headway rapidly.

The cotton industry was the principal beneficiary of the October expansion in United States exports. Of the total increase of $25,000,000 in foreign shipments, cotton accounted for $16,000,000.

Bases of Increase.

Abnormally low prices in American markets, together with generally expanding demand in both Europe and the Orient, led to a more than normal seasonal increase in foreign buying here.

Total United States exports of all commodities for the first ten months of 1931 were $2,046,731,000, against $3,279,346,000 for the same period of 1930.

Imports from all countries were $1,787,657,000, compared to $2,648,679,000 during the first ten months of 1930.

The favorable balance of foreign trade was $36,000,000 in October this year, against $79,529,000 in October 1930. For the first ten months the favorable United States balance was $259,000,000, against $630,000,000 for the corresponding period of 1930.

HOOVER AND GRANDI OPEN DISARMAMENT TALKS TODAY

Program for Grandi In Washington Today

The Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs and Signora Grandi will take up their residence at the Hotel Mayflower today. They will remain there until the departure of the Italian statesman's special train for New York tomorrow night.

An important change was made in Signor Grandi's program yesterday to enable him to be the guest of the Overseas Writers' reception at the Hotel Carlton. The appointment he had made for his conference with President Hoover was postponed until today.

9:15 A. M.—Signor Grandi goes to the White House for his talk with President Hoover, postponed from 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

1:15 P. M.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will entertain Signor and Signora Grandi at luncheon.

4:30 P. M.—The Italian Embassy will be the scene of the Italy-America Society's reception to Signor and Signora Grandi.

8 P. M.—The President will be host to the Italian statesman and his wife at an official dinner at the White House.

ceptance by certain reservations, but M. Briand declared that "unless and insofar as governments do not forthwith indicate their sentiments, any objection to this course will not be considered valid."

Importance of Question.

The youthful colleague of M. Briand declared to the American correspondents yesterday:

"The attitude of the Italian government in the disarmament question is known to everybody, I hope. We think in Italy that the question of disarmament is the most important question existing now in the relations between countries, and that it is high time for everybody to reach some practical result."

Signor Grandi also indicated his government regards settlement of the Franco-Italian impasse on naval limitations as of importance, too. The Italian government is still basing its case on the memorandum of March 1 which met with rejection by the French government. France considers it has the right to construct 84,000 tons of warships in 1935 and 1936 to be placed in commission at the expiration of the proposed Franco-Italian agreement. This, according to experts from the Italian naval ministry and the British admiralty, would give the French war fleet a great superiority in the Mediterranean.

Practical Results Achieved.

The Italian foreign minister, who has brought the practice of the new school of "personal diplomacy" to a new art in Paris, London, Geneva, Angora and Budapest, declared, however:

"During the last assembly of the League of Nations I proposed a truce in armaments as a beginning of a demonstration of good will by everybody. Of course, the proposals so made by the Italian government were more drastic, more specific, but we might say that the practical results of the above truce, above all in the moral field, have been achieved."

Secretary Stimson, after a conversation on his balcony, brought Signor Grandi to the press conference and presented him to the correspondents. The Secretary said:

"Signor Grandi, may I have the honor of presenting to you the American press representatives who are here. These are the gentlemen I confront every day and they have treated me very well."

Then he added with a smiling admonition:

"I will turn over to you the American press. Treat them kindly."

The Italian statesman recalled his days of journalism and then pleaded:

"I know your job, gentlemen, and I beg of you to know my job, too. It is very difficult for a minister of foreign affairs to enter political affairs as directly as he would like to do."

Praise of Stimson.

Then the statesman from Rome, with an easy gesture, pointed to Secretary Stimson, who stood smiling by his side, and said:

"During the London conference Mr. Stimson worked for the general peace of the world and his work must not be forgotten, as we in Italy do not for get it."

"I beg you not to be inquisitive with me."

Secretary Stimson immediately replied and his words were considered very significant for those who remembered the restrictions that Mussolini has put on the Italian press:

"Signor Grandi, I am sure they are very happy for this opportunity to meet you and I am glad on my part to have you meet them, the representatives of the American press, its freedom and its inquisitiveness. They form a great factor in our national life and in the last resort we depend on them for the public opinion which is to control the Government."

The Italian statesman smiled at the Secretary's rejoinder and then continued earnestly:

"Gentlemen, my only purpose in coming here was the peaceful cooperation of all nations in the world and the recovery and the return to welfare and prosperity of all the nations.

"I am disposed to everything you may ask me. I feel that I am here among friends and I am at your disposal."

Still Seeking Agreement.

He declared that Italy is still working for some concrete result with France on the reductions of the London treaty before the opening of the General Disarmament Conference, scheduled for next February at Geneva.

"You know Italy feels that such an agreement will be useful and welcomed by everybody in Italy. I have worked for it. We are working for it and we hope for some practical results."

However, the Fascist leader believes that Italy has almost exhausted her suggestions for a compromise proposal on what features of the naval reduction plan that still remain unsolved could be bridged by a compromise formula until the meeting of the Geneva conference. He indicated that Italy feels the next step should come from Paris.

The conversations of the day began with a formal visit to Fort Myer where Signor Grandi, Secretary Stimson and Italian Ambassador de Martino were received with military honors, a cavalry guard and a seventeen-gun salute. At Arlington he placed a magnificent wreath of red roses and yellow chrysanthemums and then gave the Fascist salute to the Unknown Dead. Then the party went to make the calls of diplomatic usage, to the Chief Justice and the Secretary of State. Immediately following the State Department visit, the Minister held his press conference and was taken afterwards to the Italian Embassy, where the guests included Belgian Ambassador Paul May and Minister Radeff of Bulgaria.

U. S. Grain Exports Cut To 2,325,000 Bushels

(Associated Press.)

Grain exports last week from the United States amounted to 2,325,000 bushels, against 3,140,000 bushels the previous week and 756,000 during the corresponding week of last year.

Commerce Department figures yesterday gave the following comparisons between last week's exports and those of the week before: Wheat, 1,960,000 bushels against 2,773,000; barley, 17,000 against 80,000; corn, 150,000 against 130,000; oats, 198,000 against 157,000. Wheeler Leaves Capital To Defend Forum Head

(Associated Press.)

David K. Niles, director of Ford Hall forum, Boston, who was arrested at Lawrence, Mass., last week, and charged with "intimidation and sauntering" in connection with textile strikes, conferred yesterday with Senator Wheeler, who has offered to defend him.

The Montana senator left Washington last night to appear in court for Niles Friday. Niles told him he had gone to Lawrence merely to observe reported brutalities. While he was here Niles also conferred with Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, and Representative Dickstein (Democrat), New York.

Air Corps Seeks Own Song, One Expressive of Daring

Army Pilots, Like Other Service Veterans, Sometimes Feel Disposed to Sing, and So, Are Looking for Music and Words.

The Air Corps wants a song.

Army pilots, like most young men in good health, feel disposed at times to vent their native effervescence in harmony. Gathered around quarters at air races and meets, on maneuvers—in fact, wherever Air Corps officers get together, the urge to sing often comes upon them. But, their souls tingling with pent-up melody and their faces fixed to give it voice, they are thwarted.

There's nothing to sing!

Of course, the notes of "Sweet Adeline" may be gently trilled by some self-designated quartet, the entire gathering may rose "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here" until the rafters ring, but those two old faithfuls and others of their genre lack the touch of one's own intimate tune. As for "Hinkey Dinkey Parlez Vous" and those memory-ridden melodies of war days, they belong to another generation. The Army pilot today is a youngster who trotted behind the band in knee breeches in 1918.

Other services have their songs, all of them expressive of the spirit of the arm. "The Caissons Are Rolling Along" has a swing and rhythm reminiscent of chattering axles and clinking trace chains. Infantry, Cavalry, Engineers, and the others may sing to their hearts' content of the glories of their service, but the Air Corps, newest combatant branch of the Army, is mute.

In the past, Air Corps officers and some civilians, smitten with sudden inspiration, have composed songs calculated to warm the cockles of flying hearts and titillate the tonsils of flying throats. These, however, have not hit the mark. In every case, they have been entirely too funeral in tempo. Dirges, sonatas, spirituals and the like simply won't do.

Neither does the flying branch of the Army care for anything ribald or in the Die for Dear Old Rutgers spirit. What, then, must be the qualifications of a song which will be carried on to immortality between earth and sky?

Such a song must express the spirit of youth and daring. It must lend itself to close harmony when arranged for the male quartet. It must be singable by large gatherings of youngsters without regard for the fact that possibly 99 per cent of them can't sing anyway. Its words must be vigorous and vivid, yet easily pronounceable even after a banquet tendered by the Chamber of Commerce of Buffalo. It must fit the Air Corps, whatever that may be.

Of course, most service songs are born spontaneously. The Air Corps once had such a one which threatened to become popular. An unfortunate accident to its composer dulled the zest for it among his colleagues. The title was "Ten Thousand Dollars Going Home to the Folks."

When, and if, an Air Corps song which will catch on through the corps and become its own is written, the composer may have to keep as his reward only the memory of accomplishment. He will probably be forgotten as have been the composers of other service songs.

And as for any monetary emolument—the Air Corps, which can't get enough money to give its pilots necessary flying time, would search long and unsuccessfully for funds to pay for vocal expression, however badly it's wanted.

GRANDI'S AID SEEN ON GOLD STANDARD

Ready to Support Hoover in Maintaining Stand, Is Report.

(United Press.)

Italian Foreign Minister Grandi is prepared to offer President Hoover Italy's full support for maintenance of the gold standard, the United Press learned yesterday from official Italian sources.

A communique reporting accord on this point is to be expected before Grandi leaves the United States, it was said.

Premier Mussolini and President Hoover both have made special efforts in recent weeks to uphold the gold standard as the best means of stabilizing the banking structure and international finances. Italy was forced to resort to strenuous measures for more than a week following the British abandonment of a gold basis in September, but succeeded in protecting its position.

Since that time the Italian financial position has been improved by favorable commercial factors, according to official sources.

There is no question of Italy seeking a foreign loan at this time, the United Press was authoritatively informed. Italy has recently reduced its foreign short-term obligations to less than $30,000,000. Even if a loan were necessary for government operations, it could be floated at home, it was said.

E. R. Tinker Named Fox Film President

Wall Street Banker Enters Field as New Interests Join Company.

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Edward R. Tinker, prominent investment banker, today was made president of the Fox Film Corporation. Mr. Tinker is a former president of the Chase Securities Corporation, and is now president of Interstate Equities Corporation, and chairman of the executive committee of the Bancamerica-Blair Corporation.

He became a director of Fox Film this year, along with Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the governing board of the Chase National Bank, and other new interests in Fox. Interstate Equities is an investment trust, affiliated with the Bancamerica-Blair Corporation, and it has participated in recent financing for Fox Film.

Harley L. Clarke, Chicago public utilities man, who acquired control of Fox through General Theaters Equipment Corporation, as a climax to the threatened receivership after the stock market crash of 1929, retired as president to become chairman of the board of directors.

amount of disappointment among Democrats here yesterday.

Influential Democrats in Washington—prospective Speaker Garner, for example—are still confident that a Democrat will capture the Wurzbach seat, but they think that their party would have a much better chance if one man had been pitted against the Republican candidate.

The Democrats who have filed for the Wurzbach seat so far are as follows:

Carl Wright Johnson, San Antonio lawyer, who is backed by the principal Democratic organization in that city.

R. M. Kleberg, manager of the King ranch, the largest ranch in the world, one of a million or more acres, and which boasts that 100 miles separate its front door from its front gate.

Seek Dry Laws Modification.

Maj. N. L. Maloney, a retired Army officer, who has lived in San Antonio for seventeen years or so, and who is running on a platform calling for a modification of the prohibition law.

Judge Thomas Smiley, of Karnes County.

William R. Fox, of San Antonio.

Two other Democrats are thinking about getting into the race—Wayne Davis, past commander of the Texas Department of the American Legion, and Maury Maverick, member of an old Texas family.

For a time it appeared that several Republicans might get into the race. Yesterday, however, the Republicans held a caucus and decided to put up one man—Charles W. Anderson, who was for many years campaign manager for the late Representative Wurzbach.

Texas was always a "Solid South" State until the 1928 election, when it voted for Herbert Hoover. For that reason, the election of Harry Wurzbach in 1920 on a Republican ticket and his subsequent victories for reelection constituted a political enigma for Northerners.

Large German District.

The answer was that Wurzbach was of German descent. In San Antonio there is a large German district. When the Civil War broke out, the Germans, together with some others, formed a regiment, and Harry Wurzbach's father led that regiment into action with the Confederate Army.

Originally, Harry Wurzbach was a Democrat. In 1920 he beame a Republican, and the German-American voters, angry with President Wilson, voted for Wurzbach almost en masse. Because he had a strong personality and because his party was in power, the voters of the district kept him in office thereafter.

Representative Garner and others, however, insist that there are five Democratic votes to every Republican vote in the Fourteenth Texas District, and that is why they are predicting that a Democrat will be elected next Tuesday.

JOHN C. MELLIS FUNERAL.

Retired Employe of Government Printing Office Buried.

Funeral services for John C. Mellis, retired employe of the Government Printing Office, who died Sunday, were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his residence at 616 Maryland avenue northeast. The Rev. Alfred E. Barrows, pastor of the Eastern Presbyterian Church, officiated.

Mr. Mellis was the son of the late John and Helen Vare Mellis, natives of Scotland. He was employed at the printing office more than 40 years, retiring a short time ago. He was a member of Columbia Typographical Union No. 101. Surviving him are a brother, George F. Mellis, and four sisters, Miss Jessie A. Mellis, Miss Margaret Mellis, Mrs. Charles E. Myers and Mrs. Hugo Eisenbeis.

Poor Telephone Connection Balks Signora Grandi's Talk

Wife of Visiting Italian Foreign Minister Unable to Converse With Her Two Children; Has Busy First Day in Capital.

(Associated Press.)

Home-loving Signora Grandi was disappointed yesterday—a forty-minute attempt failed to get a clear telephone connection across a stormy sea to her children in Italy.

So she didn't hear the voices of her son, Franco, 6, and her daughter, Simonetta, 4. But she didn't give up hope, and turned from the telephone with the remark that she would try again today.

Signora Grandi's morning was spent in a sight-seeing whirl with Mrs. Stimson around Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument, and Hains Point—a vista of rare beauty in clear weather but yesterday dimmed by fog.

They circled the Capitol, too, catching only partial concept of its grandeur with paving and construction operations in full swing around Capitol Hill.

That trip left only time for a quick change from one costume to another at Woodley, the Stimson home, and Signora Grandi, who had come in green-coated, whisked out red-cloaked for luncheon at the Italian Embassy.

After that lingering event was over, she grabbed her first breathing space to try to talk to her children—only to realize that tea at Woodley was urgent, and that 4:10 p. m. in America was 10:10 p. m. in Italy—past her children's bedtime.

Storms over the English Channel were blamed for the failure to get a speedy and clear connection.

Washington caught only brief but glittering glimpses of the beautiful signora. True to an older tradition of womanhood, she tried to efface herself completely from the limelight. She granted no interviews, permitted no advance announcement of her personal program. She did not go with her husband to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Fragile flowers, small yellow orchids and lilies of the valley were selected in compliment to her at the luncheon at the Italian Embassy.

Beautiful was the background arranged for her dining last night, the Pan-American Union patio, of tropic trees and gay-plumaged birds—with a round table circling an Aztec fountain.

Grandi Protest Group Asks Talk With Hoover Saturday

(Associated Press.)

Audience with President Hoover to protest against the visit of Foreign Minister Grandi, of Italy, was requested yesterday by a group of anti-Fascists for next Saturday.

A statement by the international committee for anti-Fascist protest said the appointment was sought through Theodore G. Joslin, one of the President's secretaries. Joslin said last night he did not care to discuss the matter.

The organization said its position was the same as that expressed in a resolution adopted by the American Federation of Labor in 1927. It added the federation had opposed Fascism in America.

"If the activities of the Fascisti were confined to Italy," the statement said, "there would be the fullest justification of our representatives' welcome to Signor Grandi. It is the real menace of the encouragement of Fascist propaganda in the United States to which we object. * * *

"Signor Grandi represents Fascism openly on his visit to America and we consider that any further spread of that doctrine is dangerous to American democracy when the elected representatives give at least tacit support."

Cantor as Witness Upsets Courtroom

Appearing in ErlangerSuit, His Story Sends Jury Into Uproarious Laughter.

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Eddie Cantor, appearing as a witness in surrogate's court today, made jury and spectators laugh so hard and so long that the surrogate threatened to clear the courtroom.

Cantor appeared as a witness for Charlotte M. Fixel, who is attempting to have herself declared the common-law wife of the late Abraham L. Erlanger, that she may sue for dower rights in his estate. Cantor said he had known Erlanger 16 years and that Miss Fixel had been introduced to him as "Mrs. Erlanger."

"Your profession?" inquired Max D. Steuer, Miss Fixel's attorney.

"It is hard to say—it has always been doubtful—but I am supposed to be an actor."

"Please tell what happened, in your own way," Steuer directed, as Cantor told of meeting Erlanger and Miss Fixel in London one day.

"Why—he put his hands up and wanted to box me," Cantor began raising his own hands in a boxing posture. He then explained that he and Erlanger used to box together.

McLean Will Press Suit, Says Lawyer

International Law Is Held Applicable; Contempt Action Promised.

Paris, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Edward B. McLean, Washington newspaper publisher, will continue his divorce proceedings at Riga, his attorney said today, despite a restraining order issued yesterday by the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

"When the papers are served on Mrs. McLean," said the attorney, "I am sure that the Washington court will recognize the principles of international law jurisdiction."

(Associated Press.)

Attorneys for Mrs. Edward B. McLean, wife of the publisher of The Washington Post, said yesterday that if her husband proceeds with his Latvian divorce action contrary to an American court injunction "he will do so at his peril."

"The District of Columbia Supreme Court has jurisdiction of McLean personally," Nelson T. Hartson, counsel for Mrs. McLean, said. "If he returns to this country having gotten a divorce abroad, we will see to it that he is prosecuted for contempt."

Hartson said the injunction issued Monday to restrain the publisher from seeking a divorce in any foreign country was part of an earlier suit in which McLean submitted to the jurisdiction of the court.

A MODERATE TAX INCREASE.

Higher taxes may now be regarded as a certainty. The administration has made every effort to avoid the necessity of placing a greater burden upon the people in this time of depression, but the prospective deficit is so large that new sources of revenue must be tapped. President Hoover has put every department on economy rations, but tax collections have fallen so far below normal that a readjustment is unavoidable.

Senator Watson and other Republican leaders are reconciled to the inevitable. Their pronouncement in favor of higher taxes does not involve a change of sentiment. Until recent weeks they hoped that higher levies might be avoided by an upturn in receipts and rigid economy on the part of the administration. As it has developed, however, the capital gains tax, which allows individuals to deduct their losses in capital from their income taxes, has wiped out extensive obligations that otherwise would have been due to the Government. Existing levies will probably not yield sufficient to finance the Government for some time. The party in power can not consistently ignore a prospective deficit of $2,000,000,000 in the Treasury.

The most interesting question at this stage is what form of new revenue legislation will take. In view of the past success of the existing law it may be assumed that President Hoover will not recommend extensive new taxes. During normal times the income tax and customs duties yield several hundred million dollars more than is needed to operate the Government. It would not be wise for Congress to attempt to wipe out the deficit in a single year by levying enormous imposts that would retard business recovery. The first qualification of the supplementary tax should be moderation.

Attention will undoubtedly be given to the capital gains tax. As it stands this measure has been canceling taxes on large incomes that should have been flowing into the Treasury. Prior to 1916 taxpayers were allowed to deduct their capital losses only against their capital gains under this measure. Now they may deduct capital losses against the entire tax on their income. This blunder on the part of Congress has cost the Government millions of dollars from taxpayers who are most able to pay.

A sales tax on luxuries has many appealing features, although it will be extremely difficult for a Congress that is susceptible to political pressure to select the luxuries that should bear the tax. Senator Smoot's statement indicates that an attempt will be made to evolve a luxury tax that will command the support of Congress. If that should fail, Congress may be expected to revise the income tax with special emphasis upon the upper brackets.

A NATIONAL LAND POLICY.

A conference of signal importance to the United States is being held in Chicago this week under direction of the Department of Agriculture. After listening to experts on all phases of the subject, the conference will attempt to outline essential steps toward a national policy of land utilization.

Until recent years the Government as well as private interests have proceeded on the theory that more land should be under cultivation. Valuable lands were disposed of as homesteads. Pioneers were encouraged to push out into the unoccupied areas and reclaim new farms. Fear was expressed that all the tillable land soon would be under cultivation and that the increasing population would result in a shortage of food. Consequently, extensive areas of unprofitable land were converted into farms. About 986,000,000 acres are classed as farm lands; but all of the food and fiber needed to feed and clothe the people can be produced on a little more than one-third of that area.

It is everywhere recognized now that the agricultural plant is too large. Overproduction is the chief cause of the depression from which farmers have been suffering for ten years. Abnormal production was stimulated by the World War. Nearly 27,000,000 acres formerly used to grow feed for horses and mules have been turned to other uses by the advent of tractors and automobiles. More productive crops are now planted. More milk and meat are obtained per feed unit consumed. At the same time the increase in population has been curbed through immigration restrictions and a lower birth rate. The modern problem is, therefore, to take land out of cultivation.

Secretary Hyde frankly admits that what agriculture needs is more game reserves, more airports, more and larger golf courses, and more city farmers who don't produce much on their large estates. The time has come, he says, for retirement from cultivation of lands which the pioneer subdued, but which stubbornly refuse to yield to his grandchildren a reasonable standard of living. Much of this submarginal land is being taken over by the States in payment of delinquent taxes. Some areas are being abandoned voluntarily.

The conference in Chicago is trying to develop a policy for utilization of these submarginal lands. Such a problem can not be left to private owners, for they will use land only when it yields immediate profits. If nothing is done, erosion will carry away the soil from these abandoned lands and a valuable asset will be lost. Much of the land in question serves as watershed, and might profitably be planted with timber. A program of conservation and utilization for the public welfare is in order. The Federal Government is interested in the preservation of certain areas for scenic and recreational purposes, for game and forest preserves; but much of the responsibility for constructive utilization of submarginal lands will fall upon the States. If the Chicago conference can impress Congress and the State legislatures with the necessity of a constructive land policy, it will perform a great national service.

JAPAN'S VIEWPOINT.

In discussing Japan's policy in Manchuria officials of the foreign office in Tokyo made the interesting announcement that annexation of Manchuria to their country would be considered undesirable. Japan raises this point to refute the argument that control of Manchuria is the motive behind her present conduct toward China. It is pointed out that if Japan were to annex Manchuria she would immediately be held responsible for conditions there and the present disorder and brigandage would not be tolerated by other nations. The world is lenient with China, but such conduct would not be accepted from so strong a nation as Japan. She would be expected to make Manchuria as safe and peaceful as Korea.

This undertaking would require more expense than Japan is willing to assume. Manchuria extends over 385,000 square miles, whereas Korea's area is only 85,150 square miles. In Korea there are as many Japanese administrative officials as there are British administrators in the whole of India. The task of governing a territory four times the size of Korea could not but prove a tremendous burden. Japan is already heavily taxed to support her present army and navy and additional expenditures in this direction would not be welcomed by her people.

For many years Japan has maintained a small defensive force in south Manchuria along her own railway. This body has numbered from 7,000 to 10,000 soldiers, though under her treaties with China 15,000 might legally have been kept there continuously. This force, Japan contends, has been used in the same way as American, British, Japanese, French and Italian marines were used to launch a defensive attack on Shanghai in 1927. It remains to be seen whether Japan will give effect to this viewpoint by withdrawing her troops from Manchuria as soon as order can be restored.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

The annual report of Gov. H. Burgess of the Panama Canal, which has just been filed with the Secretary of War, shows that the canal, in common with everything connected with world trade, has suffered a considerable loss of business. During the year ended June 30, 5,529 commercial vessels passed through the canal. This was a decrease of 656, or 10.6 per cent, as compared with the previous year. Tolls levied during the year amounted to $24,645,456. This was a decrease of $2,431,433, or 9 per cent. The cargo carried through the canal showed a greater loss, reaching 16.5 per cent.

On the whole, the business of the canal has not suffered as seriously from the depression as have other enterprises related to transportation and trade. It is noteworthy that, while all the major trade routes made less use of the canal, the traffic between Europe and the West Coast of the United States and Canada shows a slight increase.

While the primary function of the canal is the transfer of vessels from ocean to ocean, the average person is surprised to learn the number of supplementary services to shipping that are carried on by the canal force. These secondary functions include the maintenance of repair shops, dry docks, coaling stations, fuel oil plants, chandlery supplies and commissaries. The governor, furthermore, is charged with the administration of public health, immigration, customs, postoffice, schools, police, highway maintenance, steamship inspection, control of commercial aircraft, &c.

The net income from tolls and other receipts classed as canal revenue for the last year amounted to $14,847,227, a loss of about 18 per cent. Based on an interest-bearing capital indebtedness of $535,571,809, the net revenue was equivalent to approximately 2.75 per cent. The net revenue from the auxiliary operations adds about $1,600,000 to the total.

Gov. Burgess reaches the conclusion that, considering the capital invested, the canal is not earning the annual interest charge at 4 per cent. Since extensive additional expenditures are necessary to bring the canal to its highest efficiency, the time has not yet arrived to consider a reduction in tolls.

INDEPENDENCE AND SUGAR.

Soon after Congress convenes it will be asked to consider the future status of the Philippine Islands. The Filipino legislature has appointed a new independence commission and given it a free hand to accept any proposition that Congress may offer. Members of the delegation will leave Manila within ten days so as to be in Washington soon after Congress convenes.

Every previous commission that the Filipinos have sent here has demanded immediate, complete and absolute independence. That attitude continued as long as independence seemed remote. Now when it appears that Congress may be in a mood to act a Filipino delegation is rushing to America for the apparent purpose of protesting against immediate independence. The politicians have taken sudden fright at the prospects of acquiring the responsibilities of a separate nation. They will ask Congress to extend the autonomy of the islands and give them an opportunity to experience a measure of independence before being left to their own resources.

It is interesting to note that the question turns largely on the sugar industry. In the United States the sugar interests have led the movement to cut the islands loose. So long as they remain under the wing of Uncle Sam they ship sugar into the American market without duty. Imports of this commodity have increased rapidly in recent years. The industry has grown to such an extent that the islands would be crippled economically without it. As a result it is quite probable that American agricultural interests will be lined up in favor of Philippine independence during the coming session while the delegation from Manila fights it.

Much of this change in sentiment can be traced to a report issued recently by Urbano A. Zafra, Filipino sugar expert, who has been in the United States studying the situation. In 1930 the Philippines exported 737,196 tons of sugar to the United States and only 6,783 to China and Japan. Politicians, who chose to ignore the economic issues until recently, have been telling the people that they could easily find a market in the Orient for their sugar should the United States raise a tariff wall against it. But Mr. Zafra points out that Java produces sugar much cheaper than do the Philippines. Hence, they have almost no hope of extending this trade eastward. With loss of the American market, which takes 99 per cent of all Filipino sugar exports, the industry would be ruined.

The Filipino people have never realized that immediate independence might bring economic chaos. Now they are beginning to see that the politicians have led them into a trap. It would not be surprising to see the whole independence movement collapse when its economic consequences are more thoroughly understood.

The term "political machine" is proper, considering that most of them have flat tires, are always out of gear and are run on gas.

William Hale Thompson may assist Senator Johnson's presidential campaign, but it's bad to incur a "Big Bill" just as you start.

Foreign statesmen come to the United States to show their affection for Uncle Sam. With all his vaults, they love him still.

Only a small percentage of the people have ridden on a Pullman. We are among those who have never slept on one.

It is said that politics makes strange bedfellows. Not only that, but their noise disturbs the rest of the country.

Chicago says that it is a city of sociable people. We have noticed that gangsters often take each other for a ride.

Inventing electricity must have been a hard job, but not so hard as trying to read an electric light bill.

America is one of the youngest of world powers; in fact, it has not yet been weaned from the bottle.

JAPAN'S AIR POWER

From the London Times.

The prominent part played by Japanese service aircraft during the conflict in Manchuria draws attention to the rapid progress that has been made by Japan in aviation during the last few years.

The development of Japanese aerial forces, particularly the imperial naval air service, is of special interest to Great Britain, since it is only ten years ago that the British aviation mission to the imperial Japanese navy, consisting of some 30 experts headed by the Master of Sempill, undertook the organization, equipment and training of the then in embryo naval air service. Great advances have been made during the last ten years, numerically in so far as personnel, aircraft and air stations are concerned, and in a technical sense from the point of view of the types of aircraft and engines in service. According to the latest available figures, dated July 1, 1931, the air power of Japan comprises a total of 16,821 effective personnel and 1,639 aircraft, exclusive of training and experimental machines.

In the first instance, aircraft, engines and equipment required for the air services were obtained from abroad. Broadly speaking, the naval air service decided to follow the traditions of the imperial navy in being linked up with the royal navy, and aircraft used in connection with British naval operations were employed to a very large extent, although certain preliminary training machines of Japanese design and construction were utilized. The army, on the other hand, which had had considerable connections with both France and Germany, concentrated on aircraft from France. Both naval and military air services now purchase designs of aircraft and engines with a view to their manufacture either in the naval or military arsenals or by aircraft constructing firms. The Hispano-Suiza engine has been under construction in Japan for many years in appreciable numbers, as also have certain engines of the air-cooled variety for which Britain has earned such a great reputation, notably the Bristol Jupiter and certain designs of Armstrong-Siddeley.

The Japanese navy was the first navy in the world to lay down an aircraft carrier. Today the naval air service has several first-class carriers, and these craft have been used fairly intensively during maneuvers. The naval air service is also interested in airships and has an excellent airship shed, which recently housed the Graf Zeppelin at the central training establishment, some 50 miles to the north of Tokyo. Finances, however, have not permitted a large airship program, and at the moment only one or two small non-rigid airships of the blimp type are available. Both naval and military airmen have shown themselves capable of carrying out long flights by day and by night under difficult conditions.

POST HASTE.

The Paris procedure appears to be that members of the League of Nations Council meet the American Ambassador in single file and then go into a huddle to consider the "Dawes plan."

It might be just as well to send Mr. Owen Young over also and fix up both plans at once this time.

"Grandi reaches Washington under heavy guard." We trust this report did not cause Rome to think he had been mistaken for a member of the Camorra.

Speaking of winter sports, the necessity for increased taxes will result in the finest exhibition of buck passing between a Democratic House and a Republican Senate that the Capitol has ever witnessed.

A KEY.

The telegraph key which has been in use by our Presidents for the past 25 years to signal the official opening of important events is taking an important part in the making of American history, says the Wall Street Journal. The gold telegraph key, presented to President Taft for use in opening the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, is mounted on a slab of Alaska marble, studded with nuggets from the first gold discovered in Alaska. It was used by President Wilson to set off the blast which blew away the Gamboa Dike, opening the Panama Canal, and for the opening of the Panama-California and Panama-Pacific international expositions. President Harding used the key on a number of occasions. President Coolidge tapped it to register the opening of important waterways, bridges, tunnels and industrial developments during his administration and President Hoover's use of the key promises to rival the record of President Coolidge.

A Leaky Faucet Isn't a Tragedy if You Ever Had to Thaw Out a Pump.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE basis of all complaint is comparison. If we seem resentful because we have little, the true cause of our complaint is that others have more. Our bread and meat would seem a feast if others lived on bread alone, yet we salt it with our tears because more fortunate people dine on pastes of goose liver and fish eggs.

Not one of us above the level of actual want is independent enough to measure his success by comparing his possessions with his needs. We compare our sufficiency with the overabundance of Fortune's favorites and feel abused because we haven't more than we can use.

Do you realize that the "poor" of today get far more out of life than the well-to-do of our fathers' generation?

Ordinary middle-class people were pathetically "green" 40 years ago. There was no radio to keep them in touch with the world. Few of them knew how to use a telephone. Nearly all of them were frightened by a telegram. Not one in ten felt the need of a daily newspaper, and few families "took" more than one magazine. The theater was considered wicked and music in church, except that of an organ, was sacrilegious.

Only farm people and the richest of town folk owned private vehicles. The class that now fills the highway with flivvers was content to hire a horse and buggy at rare intervals, and none but the worldly went riding on Sunday.

Smelly "coal oil" lamps provided illumination, and when your girl went into her bedroom to put on her hat she asked you to "excuse the light."

There were few bathrooms and fewer indoor lavatories. People bathed in the galvanized tub used for washing clothes, or used a wash basin and a rag.

Typhoid and smallpox decimated communities. Parents were lucky to save one child out of five when scarlet fever or diphtheria "broke out." Every cut became a sore and sores were chronic. Legions died for want of operations, and surgeons expected the stitches to "rot out."

We don't know the meaning of hard times. Six months of the life our fathers thought good would fill our hearts with gratitude for the joy of living in this time of "depression."

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Senator Lewis Favors Jim Reed.

Letter by Howard T. Oliver, in New York Herald Tribune.

Mark Sullivan had an excellent article in your issue of November 9, "Roosevelt Foes Actively Oppose His Nomination for President—Baker Inactive; Sees Lewis and Reed Candidacies as Gesture Merely." Mr. Sullivan is one of our most astute analysts of American politics, but he had an unhappy choice of words in referring to James A. Reed's presidential candidacy as a "gesture."

Mark Sullivan may be right in referring to Mr. J. Hamilton Lewis' presidential candidacy as a "gesture" because Mr. Lewis has been quoted in the public press as advocating the nomination and election of James A. Reed, but the Lewis "gesture" does not help the Roosevelt campaigners.

Jim Reed is not one to indulge in idle "gestures," as the internationalists, pacifists and proleaguers can well certify.

Roosevelt vs. the Field.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

An entertaining writer who does a political feature regularly for Collier's Weekly, under the pen name of "The Gentleman at the Keyhole," undertook last week to estimate the relative strength of Gov. Roosevelt and Newton D. Baker as prospective candidates for the Democratic nomination for President. He gives two Eastern States to Roosevelt: Maine and New York. Iowa, in the Middle West, is reported "favorable," with Minnesota and the Dakotas in similar mood. Colorado and Utah are definitely for the governor, and the three Pacific Coast States, California, Washington and Oregon. Contrary to the general impression that the South was strongly Roosevelt, only two Southern States, Georgia and Kentucky, are so listed.

It May Help Hoover.

Boston Transcript.

It is not an unreasonable speculation that the coming session of Congress may prove of distinct political benefit to President Hoover. The issues with which the next Congress may deal—the moratorium, foreign debts and reparations, silver, unemployment, prohibition, taxation, Philippine independence, &c., even the tariff—are distinctly nonpartisan. The tariff comes nearest to the party line, but if the Democratic majority fails to put over a revision, it will be charged with incompetence and bad faith, and if it does succeed in getting a tariff bill through the House, it will be accused of throwing down tariff protection at just the time it is most needed.

Long Road to Repeal.

New York Times.

"The people" in the populous States and a lot of other States can vote against prohibition as much as they like. What of it? Their vote is powerless so long as the people of thirteen States are true to the amendment. The antiprohibitionists would fight for another decision. Time is on their side. Prohibition enforcement is their best ally. Both parties must be on their side before the amendment is repealed, if ever it is to be repealed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Pacific Coast Observer Says Japan Is Moderate in Her Demands—European Nations Are Worse Aggressors in China.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to bluntly say that the meddlesome, domineering attitude of the League of Nations in the present Manchurian disturbance is as apt to kindle a real war as to prevent it. The general assumption that Japan has no good grounds for drastic action is so evident an ex parte conclusion that it strongly encourages China in her refusal to discuss her opponent's suggestions for direct conference between the two parties directly concerned, and contributes a persistent irritant to both national pride and military honor in Japan.

That nation is only too well aware that European interference in Asia's affairs has in the past never been separated from selfish schemes for the white man's advantage.

Not a single one of Japan's present critics but has grown great by annexation, and several of them at the expense of China. It is safe to assert that had a great European power or the United States incurred the tremendous expenditure of men and money which Japan invested in her war with Russia the victor would have promptly, and with a high sense of righteousness, taken full possession of both Manchuria and Korea as the just reward for such an effort. That Japan has been content with less for so long merely proves that, so far, she has failed to fully assimilate the instructive examples so freely furnished by her "Christian" colleagues in the League.

China and Japan ought to be permitted to settle their domestic troubles after their own fashion, and until we can show clean hands it might be well to recommend in more moderate terms that type of international policy of which our history shows so little. REV. ROBERT C. McADIE.

Man's Attempt to Procure World Peace Termed a Feeble and Futile Effort.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: How pitiful and utterly futile is man's attempt to procure world peace by means of his own feeble instruments, namely, peace pacts, disarmament conferences, world courts and leagues! The Manchurian trouble reveals clearly that as long as hatred, envy and jealousy possess the hearts of men, peace can not be maintained through human efforts. If the present war clouds blow over, let not man become puffed up with pride, but, rather, let him humble himself before Almighty God, who alone is capable of bringing peace to the earth.

Commends the Editorial "Dawes in Paris"—Thinks Dawes Would Make Good Secretary of State.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial which appeared Friday, November 13, entitled "Dawes in Paris," is good, especially the part which reads: "The representative of the United States is the peer of any foreign statesman. He speaks with force and clear-sightedness in his own right. He acts under general instructions from the President, who now has in Paris a representative upon whose discretion he can safely rely."

Whatever possessed our Republican party to wish Stimson on President Hoover as Secretary of State?

Alien War Veterans Should Receive the World War Adjusted Compensation Certificates.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Neutral alien veterans of the World War who are now citizens of the United States should be entitled to the benefits of the World War adjusted compensation certificates. These veterans were willing to become citizens during the war, but were not given the chance. If they were good enough to become soldiers, they are good enough to share the rewards. I do not think it is fair. Why can't a man claim that which belongs to him?

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

UNCHANGED.

In the early days of struggle when the home was small and new
We cherished little visions of the things we'd some day do.
We found our joy in friendship and we found our strength in care,
And we found our tears in sorrows every family has to bear.
But, my darling, looking backward, do you ever think it strange,
Although fame and fortune alter, joy and sorrow never change?

Here we are still looking forward after five and twenty years,
To the same glad little visions, to the self-same smiles and tears,
Finding pleasure where we found it in the days of long ago,
Fretting still o'er disappointment, needing friends to share our woe,
Hoping still to see our children safe from hurt and cruel shame,
With the home a little richer, but its problems still the same.

Once we thought we'd cease to worry and perhaps in future years
We should find some source of pleasure free from sorrow's sighs and tears,
But the month has never happened that we have not had to share
A common family burden or a neighbor's, weight of care.
Time may alter fame and fortune and hang treasures on the wall,
But life's duties, joys and sorrows never seem to change at all.

GERMANY PUTS BAN ON EXCHANGE LEAKS

Import and Export Evasions Drain Reichsbank Through Loss of Gold.

Berlin, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—New restrictions designed to stop every loophole through which foreign exchange has been lost were announced today, and immediately became operative.

A supplementary ordinance, signed by President Paul von Hindenburg, empowered courts to deal by special accelerated process with persons attempting to evade the regulations. Fines up to $75,000 are provided for the heads of offending firms, to be assessed personally, and no such familiar excuses as "a clerk's regrettable oversight" will be accepted henceforth.

Exporting houses are required to notify the foreign exchange commissioner of their sales abroad and to report payments received thrice monthly to the Reichsbank.

Importers are required to utilize to the full whatever credits remain available to them, and to avoid making extra application for foreign exchange to pay for goods bought.

The Reichsbank's coverage dropped today from 27.8 per cent to 26.7 because of a loss of 72,100,000 marks in foreign gold holders. The new coverage is the lowest on record.

A leading official of the bank said one of the reasons for the shrinkage was that exporters found ways to evade the old regulations under which foreign exchange was supposed to be handed over to the Reichsbank.

The government realizes restrictive measures will affect business adversely, this official said, but there is no other way to stop the drain on the bank's resources.

Gandhi to Remain For End of Parley

Heartened by Talk With MacDonald, He Decides to Prolong His Visit.

London, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, heartened by a talk with Prime Minister MacDonald, today reconsidered his decision to leave for India Thursday and agreed to remain until the round-table conference ended.

Lord Sankey, chairman of the conference, decided to prolong the session another week after several delegates had protested that the views of the principal representatives must be heard before a constitution could be drafted for India.

"This leaves me in a fog," said Gandhi, "but I am ready to spend the winter in England if necessary to secure some tangible results from these meetings."

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Maud Irving Tait, Springfield, Mass., aviatrix, and James P. Moriarty, attorney, obtained a marriage license today.

They said they would be married tomorrow before sailing on a West Indies and South American cruise on the Mauretania.

Miss Tait, long active in aviation and holder of a transport pilot's license, came into prominence when, flying a locally built plane, she won a trophy at the national air races at Cleveland in September and again last week when she sought to set a new world speed record for women fliers at Detroit.

Miss Brooks Will Make Debut in Baltimore.

Miss Louise Brooks, daughter of Mr. Walter B. Brooks, jr., and Mrs. Lionel Atwill, will make her Baltimore debut at the first Bachelors' Cotillon, which will be given at the Lyric in Baltimore on December 7.

Miss Brooks is one of the 30 young girls fortunate to receive invitations to the first german, which gives her the right to call herself a debutante. While the cotillon does not give out the list, because it wishes to avoid any possible offense to those not invited, it is known that only 30 of this season's debutantes have been invited.

Ten social arbiters of Baltimore sitting in executive session recently slashed the list of girls submitted to them from the 62 invited last year to half the number. There will be two germans this winter, the second taking place on January 4.

The cotillon is one of the oldest dance groups in this country, dating to Revolutionary times. The list includes debutantes of New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore. Miss Brooks will make her debut in Washington and Philadelphia, as well as in Baltimore.

TANGLE MAY AFFECT VERSAILLES TREATY

U. S. Indictates She Is Relaxing Stand for Evacuation of Japanese.

Paris, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—A new and menacing issue was thrust today into the Manchurian peace negotiations.

This issue was the possible effect of agitation to change the Treaty of of Versailles in the event the League of Nations Council fails to uphold Japan's demand that China recognize the sanctity of all compacts existing between the Tokyo and Nanking governments.

Along with this new issue came two other factors that confused the search for the elusive compromise that might bring peace to Manchuria.

There were indications the United States was relaxing its firm stand for Japanese evacuation of the disputed area. And there were rumblings from Russia.

News that Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commisar for foreign affairs, has protested to Tokyo regarding Japanese army activity in the region of the Chinese Eastern Railway—the Russian sphere of influence in Manchuria—led to the belief that Russia would not remain aloof in case the league failed to stop the Japanese advance.

Would Have Reaction.

The fear that failure to uphold Japan's stand for the sacredness of existing treaties would react against other international agreements found expression in the Rightist Press of Paris.

This newspaper comment loudly applauded Tokyo's position as the bulwark of the European status quo and branded as a "dangerous principle" the Chinese proposal to arbitrate the validity of treaties imposed by force of arms.

The recognition of existing treaties is one of the five conditions laid down by Tokyo for evacuation of Manchuria. At a private meeting of twelve of the council members—the Chinese and Japanese representatives did not attend—it was decided to ask Japan to define exactly what it means by the validity of treaties existing between the two governments.

The council will ask whether this point in the Japanese demands has any connection with the security of Japanese lives and property, and, therefore, whether it must be met before evacuation can be accomplished.

Sze Points Out Stand.

Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese representative, tonight took cognizance of the confusion resulting from the introduction of this new issue of the possible effect on agitation to change the Treaty of Versailles.

Dr. Sze left it be known that China regards Japanese activities in Manchuria as violations of the league covenant, of the Briand-Kellogg Pact and the Nine-Power Treaty, and expects the league and the signatories of these compacts to maintain their sanctity.

In addition to the treaty problem, there is the matter of the special rights of the great powers in China. Observers said China's position might be interpreted as a move to end the privileges of extraterritoriality enjoyed by those powers.

Ambassador Charles G. Dawes denied himself to interviewers, but the impression was gained at his headquarters that the Washington Government now regrets having worked with the league so intimately at the last session of the council, and tends to favor forgetting all about the council's request from Japan to withdraw her troops by a fixed date.

Active in Negotiations.

Again today Gen. Dawes refrained from sitting with the council, but was active in private negotiations. Dr. Sze visited him and came away from the interview looking very pleased. Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japan's delegate, also conferred with him.

Among others with whom the American Ambassador discussed the situation were Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league; Japanese Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira, and Rene Massigli, French international expert.

Although some observers expressed the opinion there might be Soviet intervention "to save China from the invaders," Dr. Sze filed with the league an official denial of charges that the Nanking government is negotiating with Russia for military supplies.

"These rumors have been spread by the Japanese," his note said. "They are absolutely false."

JAPAN DENIES CLAIM OF CHINA'S ADVANCES

derstood that Gen. Mah retained the liberty to send Heilungkiang troops as bandit suppression patrols into the area thus evacuated.

He asked that the Japanese army guarantee that the army of Chang Hai-Peng be refused permission to use the Taonan-Anganchi Railway and in the event such guarantee was given he undertook not to obstruct the operation of the road.

This reply answered Japanese demands that Gen. Mah be the first one to withdraw.

The Japanese said they had intercepted a message from Gen. Mah to Chang Hsueh-Liang, deposed governor of Manchuria, expressing the conviction the Japanese would drive to the north when the Nonni bridge has been repaired and declaring his determination to resist to the utmost.

Snow Falls on Front.

Snow fell today on the Nonni front where the two main forces of Chinese and Japanese troops face each other in positions prepared against the possibility of a major engagement.

All northern Manchuria is in the grip of winter and from the plains of Siberia come biting winds. Soldiers in the fields are without shelter, and there are no trees at the points where the troops are thickest.

military authorities have decided to press the cabinet for additional reinforcements for service in Manchuria, it was reported today.

The Tokyo strategists look upon the military situation as growing continually more dangerous. Latest Mukden dispatches telling of the refusal of Gen. Mah Chan-Shan to accept the Japanese cabinet's peace proposals declared the Chinese commander had advanced a set of counterpropositions.

Note to Debuchi.

In a note to Ambassador Debuchi at Washington and other diplomatic representatives, the government declared it had no intention of raising the "twenty-one demands" in any direct negotiations with China.

These demands, submitted in 1915, concerned the disposition of Shantung; railway and leasing privileges for Japanese in South Manchuria and eastern inner Mongolia; the joint administration of certain districts, and other matters interpreted by the Chinese as violations of their sovereignty.

Shanghai, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—China must abandon its "weak-kneed" attitude toward Japan or perish, Hu Han-Ming, former chief of the Nanking government's executive branch, and leader of the Nationalist party, declared today.

"If the government continues its weak-kneed policy of nonresistance, irresponsibility and inertia in the face of continually more serious invasions of Manchuria by the Japanese, the whole Chinese race and nation must soon disappear," the Kuomintang leader said.

(Associated Press.)

The opinion that if Japan continues alleged militaristic activities China should "struggle to the very last" in defense of national existence was expressed last night in a statement by China's leading political party.

The strongly worded statement of the fourth national congress of the Kuomintang party, made public by the Chinese Legation, also charged that Japan had looked upon "international agreements as mere scraps of paper."

It added that Japan had not only failed to withdraw her troops, as requested by the League of Nations Council, but has "constantly increased their number."

MEDALS FOR RADIO DICTION.

THE great unseen radio audience has reason to be highly alarmed. Medals are being given to announcers for "good diction, pronunciation and general effect on taste and scholarship!"

* * * *

These awards are pretty painful to the radio listeners, most of whom feel that the station announcers are stilted enough without decorating them for it.

* * * *

What radio needs today is a medal for the station announcer who Can Forget All About Diction and Just Present the Program as If He Were Among Friends.

* * * *

This department hereby announces the Elmer Twitchell award to the radio announcer whose voice comes nearest to impressing the unseen audience as something that can be used without defrosting.

* * * *

Points to be considered as they follow:

(a) Ease and apparent relaxation.

(b) Absence of snow and ice on peaks at all seasons of year.

(c) Complete and obvious underemphasis of style, personal dignity, importance to industry, prestige, reputation, &c.

(d) Tendency to be natural and pull an occasional boner.

(e) Apparent disposition to regard radio audiences as his equals, or nearly so.

(f) Complete absence of all manners and tones that would indicate prominence in early years as a boy elocutionist.

(g) Sharp antipathy to medals, ribbons and decorations of all kinds when used as rewards to radio speakers.

(h) Willingness to fight any man or institution that expresses opinion publicly or privately that he has a scholarly delivery.

* * * *

MR. TWITCHELL also is prepared to award medals, rosettes, badges, cigars and trading stamps to the following radio performers:

1. One silver-plated medal to the radio announcer who shall be the first to revolt from precedent and leap into his introduction without a single word about any soap, salad oil, tobacco product, tooth paste or eyewash.

2. One monogrammed razor strop to the first radio station that shall carry out a complete program without the use of chimes.

3. Two barrels of hard cider or its equivalent (48 hours through the Swiss Alps on a merry-go-round) to any national advertiser who shall put on a program with the distinct understanding that there be no theme song.

4. One hundred thousand dollars in gold to the first football announcer to get through any three successive periods of a football game without having the ball in possession of the wrong team.

* * * *

Exactly!

WHAT America needs is a little more confidence in its confidence that the worst is over.

* * * *

British workingmen are up in arms because they have to pay 16 cents for a pint of excellent beer. The lucky stiffs!

* * * *

A Maryland hunt club has banned liquor before or during fox hunts. The foxes have complained that even by running a zigzag course they could not keep out of the way of some huntsmen.

* * * *

Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, landed in America without a parade up Broadway, New York. This makes him the most original visitor from a foreign state in years.

* * * *

SWANK WOOLEN SUIT.

Of course, you'll want a suit of rough woolen, now so voguish and so exceedingly popular for college and sports wear.

It's a Spanish title mixture with brown wooden button trim. Don't you like the flapped patch pockets? The sleeves are smart, buttoned snugly toward the wrist.

PLANTS IN YOUR LIVING ROOMS.

ABOUT the middle of August your porch plants were all in good condition. Every leaf or frond was in that clean, glossy state which signifies perfect health. For the last few months they have been on the porch in a more or less shady location and the warm sunshine and frequent showers have done much for them.

Now, about the middle of November, you see signs of a decided change. You have taken your plants into the house and are forcing them to live in a new atmosphere where the air is hot and dry and the sunshine scant—away from all soothing showers, in a place where they rarely receive sufficient ventilation.

Such treatment your plants have resented and now their leaves are both brown and drooping. This is, indeed, discouraging and instead of trying to remedy things, you, like many others, become disheartened and take even less care of them, finding consolation in saying: "I never did have any luck with flowers." So as the weeks go by your plants become more and more dejected.

If the hands of our clock cease to rotate we look at it, being familiar with its mechanism, and know that it has merely run down. When we look at a number of half dead plants we do not always know what is the cause of this apparent lack of vitality, as such a condition is not the result of an immediate retarding of the functional activities but rather a development so gradual that we failed to detect the change until the entire constitution of the plant has been undermined.

Many persons make the mistake of thinking that all plants need to keep them healthy is sunshine and water. Of course they do require these essentials, but that is not all.

Each plant has its individual requirements which must be understood and ministered to. All hardwooded plants, for example, should have their foliage regularly washed. This is especially necessary in homes that are heated by furnaces, for such heating systems entail much dust which settles in the pores of the leaves and chokes the plant.

All hardwooded plants should also always have the surface soil in their pots loosened each week. This admits more air to their roots and helps to prevent the loam from becoming acid.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

WHITE PATCHES ON THE SKIN.

VITILIGO is one of the names given by physicians to a condition of the skin in which patches thereof lose their pigment, becoming white in color. The disorder goes by still other names, as one would expect, since at best it is a symptom or an effect and not a disease in itself, and since it has been noted all over the world and among all sorts of people.

The change in color is the only symptom, and no particular harm is done except as there are objectionable changes in personal appearance. So long as the white spots are limited to parts of the body which are usually covered by clothing there is generally no effort made to find either a cause or a remedy. When, however, the white spots are located on the face, and especially when small areas of beard or head hair change color, the help-wanted flag is run up.

The common advice given is to dye the white spots with the juice of walnut hulls until the shade of the affected skin is about that of the nearby areas. In nearly all cases the advice to follow this method is based on good common sense.

Dr. H. W. Francis, of Bancroft, Neb., found himself with vitiligo in 1918. It was on his face and beard and it made him quite unhappy. He was thoroughly examined and nothing was found wrong except that he had no free acid in his stomach secretions. He had some abdominal symptoms, and these, with the absence of acid, caused him to begin taking diluted hydrochloric acid. He took 15 minims, well diluted, three times a day after meals. He began this in 1925, and by 1927 his vitiligo had disappeared, completely cured.

Since then Dr. Francis has seen three other cases of the same trouble. One was a professional friend with whom Dr. Francis was accustomed to compare spots, exchange experiences, and discuss possible treatments. This friend, witnessing the good results Dr. Francis was having, tried the same treatment on himself and with the same good results.

Since no one else has any cure to offer, and since this acid, properly used, is harmless, there is no reason why it should not be tried. Scores of people try it every day for other disorders. Why not take a chance and try it in cases of vitiligo?

Dr. Francis insists that the acid used must be of good quality and he adds that, in his experience, much of that offered for sale is not. It is possible to get muriatic acid in capsules now.

NO HARM IN SWIMMING.

J. B. S. writes:

1. Is it harmful for an expectant mother to go swimming the first few months?

2. I had to have a blood transfusion after a Caesarian operation. Do you think it will be necessary for another when the next one is performed?

REPLY.

1. No.

2. Of course, an answer would merely be a wild guess and of no value. I am sure you are doing some wishful thinking and I will join you in it. Wishful thinking is harmless enough except when it upsets judgment and leads to neglect. But why the Caesarian? They are going out of style.

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, Nov. 17.

THE metallic note in fashions for late afternoon and evening gets more and more pronounced. Not only are lame (lah-may) dresses and lame (lah-may) afternoon blouses and trimmings being seen more and more, but metallic toe nails are blossoming forth!

You know about lame (lah-may) blouses and gowns. Let's see a little bit about some of the others. Metallic shoes, for instance, are not only made of gold and silver kid, metal brocades and metal nets, but are made solidly of sequins, knitted solidly into a fabric that's pliable and beautiful. And gold or silver kid shoes have straps and trimmings made of jewel-studded plaques of gold or silver.

Gold or silver kid is being used for beautiful gloves, too, either plain or combined with decorative tops of gold or silver mesh. And sometimes, as a further adornment plain or colored strass or sequins are dotted over the mesh surfaces, or are embroidered in lovely, vari-colored designs or borders. 'N' a silver kid glove I saw very recently had a silver mesh cuff, which in turn was trimmed with a ruffle of delicate silver lace! Gorgeous, n'est-ce pas?

Then, bags! Diamante bags, bags of solid copper beads, strass and pearl bags, gold and silver mesh bags, and large silver rectangles that require much polishing on the part of the French-maid-who-is-Spanish! And stockings? Oh, yes! Of gold or silver net, my deahs, with or without insets of metallic lace as you please. And toe-nails that peep from open-toed evening sandals? Painted gold or silver, as you wish.

What will you make your dressy coat of during these early winter days, so that it will be modish, becoming and not too impractical? Well, whatever yours is going to be, I'll bet you'd like to be the proud owner of the coat I have sketched today, from Patou. This is of negre brown velvet, with a standing collar, little cuffs and narrow border of astrakhan in exactly the same shade of brown. Would you button your coat about you? Perish the thought—Miladi Moderne ties it well over at one side as the latest touch.

• • • •

Of course, for formal coat perfection, you'll concentrate on the monotone effect—for it is at least twice as smart as contrasting colors for this particular type of thing.

• • • •

Now, having shown you a big velvet coat, I decided to illustrate a little one, too—a bolero of black velvet to go over a black velvet gown with strass laurel leaves around the neck!

• • • •

How would you like some suggestions for interesting things you can make for your home? Just drapes, table runners, sofa pillows—but all with a Personality. And which should delight you, they are all easily made and all very inexpensive to make. And, oh, yes, you only have to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the leaflet, and see for yourself! Let's not forget Christmas, what? For home things are very acceptable these days, and something that makes up inexpensively yet looks like millyuns of, well, dollahs!

Au revoir!

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

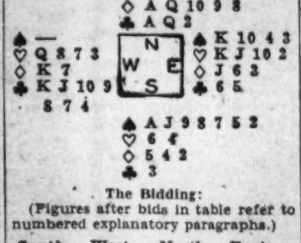
"OUT WHERE THE WEST BEGINS."

What Kipling described as "the joy of the doing" is ever present in the play of difficult hands at Contract. This is the reason that the game gains and retains its tremendous hold upon the public, whether that public is a cosmopolitan one like in the great cities, or an agricultural public as in some sections of the great West.

Today's hand, which came to me from Mrs. Joseph Oeschger, a San Francisco Bridge teacher, was played in a rubber game by a group of San Francisco men, notable for their skill at the Contract table. Mr. John Coleman held the South hand and had ample opportunity to appreciate the truth of Kipling's sage observation.

Both sides vulnerable.
South—Dealer.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1◇	Pass
1♠	2♣(1)	3NT	Pass
4♣(2)	Pass	6♠	Dbl.(3)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—This bid was to play an important part in the subsequent development of the hand.

2—South felt that his hand might be nearly worthless at notrump, while he could utilize North's outside strength with spades as trump.

3—In view of West's bid and East's apparent certainty of a trick in spades and probability of a trick in hearts, the Double can not be too strongly condemned. There appears a prospect of a 2 trick set.

West selected as his Opening lead his fourth best heart. This was won by the Ace in Dummy and the Queen of spades led for a finesse. East refused to cover and South also ducked, and the unfortunate distribution of the trump suit was immediately disclosed.

The second round of trumps was won in the closed hand and South now led his singleton club and finessed the Queen. This appeared safe in view of West's bid of clubs. The Ace of clubs was led, on which South discarded his remaining heart. The last club was led from Dummy and trumped in the closed hand. Mr. Coleman now led a diamond and when West played the 7 he was marked with either K 7 or J 7; probably the former in view of the bidding. The Queen finesse was taken, a heart led from Dummy and trumped and another diamond led from the closed hand, West's King falling to the Ace. The last heart was now led from the Dummy and trumped, thus eliminating all hearts from the East hand as East had been forced to discard a heart on the third round of clubs in order to retain the Knave of diamonds.

On his eleventh turn to play, Mr. Coleman led his last diamond and East was compelled to lead a spade, thus giving him his contract of six spades doubled.

"The Slam bid they reached was rather dangerous," comments Mrs. Oeschger, "although the Defense Overcall of two clubs, vulnerable, made the two finesses look rather safe to North."

I entirely agree.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: Why should Third or Fourth Hand hold 3 honor-tricks to bid one after previous bidders passed?

Answer: Partner, by passing, has shown less than 2½ honor-tricks. No chance for the odd unless the combined holding is 4½ to 5 honor-tricks; also, opponents may be able to make game or part-score.

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF November 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:10 a. m., from 2:30 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 7 p. m.

Those who are engaged in business and the professional worker are advised to take stock of their positions on November 18. A move is indicated wherein existing conditions can be bettered and new prospects opened up. It will not be a lonely time—old friendships will flourish and new associations formed.

Children born on this November 18 will be endowed with good vitality, and will have strong, positive, forceful personalities. When aroused they will show firmness, energy and enterprise, ambition and self-reliance. They will have good opinions of themselves and will like the good opinions of others, even their flattery.

You have a very quick, sympathetic and inspirational nature, with a tendency to go to extremes. A certain amount of restlessness is shown, and hastiness, especially in speech. Sunshine, literal and metaphorical, affects you favorably and makes your spirits rise mercurially under almost any circumstances. Your mentality becomes stimulated, your vivacity is aroused, your smile is spontaneous and you are glad to be alive, and show it. Not such a pleasant picture, however, can be drawn when life seems cold and drab. You are then inclined to wilt, and your personality is not an attractive one. The corners of your mouth droop, your interest in life lags and your mind functions slowly. Success is a tonic to you: failure is a complete knockout.

No one can do his work with a greater degree of efficiency than you, but you must be in a working mood. When interested in anything, you throw yourself unreservedly into your task and express much originality. If you be a woman you have an artistic and dainty touch, and your home and dress reveal this gift. You abhor dirt, but untidiness does not annoy you. An early marriage would not be advisable for one of your temperament. You will not know your own mind in affairs of the heart until you have reached an advanced age of maturity. You will always remain very romantic.

Successful people born on November 18:

Asa Gray, botanist.

Dorothy Dix (Mrs. Elizabeth Gilmer), author.

John A. J. Creswell, lawyer.

FRANCES M'DONALD

Second Chance Husbands.

DEAR Frances McDonald:

After bearing with the usual treatment a woman receives from a drinking husband, I returned to my parents, taking my two children with me and breaking up my home. Since then everything has been pleasant for the children. They receive great love and care and I, too, am living a serene and normal life in my parents' home.

But now my husband, who would not work even when sober, claims that he has been shamed by his family into feeling the disgrace of having his children supported by others. He wants us to come back and start over again. This my people oppose in no uncertain terms. They declare that if I ever go back to his clutches they are through with me and will be so disgusted with me that they will never take me in again or even wish to see me. This I know they would carry out, as he was all they claim when I did live with him. Never cared what became of the children or me and did as he pleased and thought I had to stand for it.

However, if he would be different I would gladly return and have my own life and own home. The decision is a grave one for me, as I have no one else on earth to turn to, and if he were to be as he was he would not care what became of me. Yet men have changed. And he is my husband. Do you believe I should refuse him his chance? And do you believe he would change or just break my heart and leave the children homeless? I must decide at once. Please answer promptly and frankly.

WIFE AND MOTHER.

His "chance," as you term it, does not depend upon your returning. His chance is his to take or leave. You are not the one to determine his fate as a man. That is his job. He should be supporting his children, of course, and if he is not he is not worth the paper on which you have written for advice concerning him. When he has shown his sincerity by assuming his children's support, by rehabilitating himself as a human being, reestablishing himself with his fellow man, and making a place for himself in a man's world, he might then be in a position to approach you for forgiveness and an opportunity to prove his desire to live decently and normally and rear his children as children deserve to be reared—in an atmosphere of love and respect. At present he is acting true to form in assuming that whatever he wishes should be the order of the day regardless of the feelings or the rights of others. And he will probably go on acting true to form by going back to his beloved habits and blaming it all on you.

If you are weak you will return to him—and as a result forfeit whatever respect he may be feeling for you as a result of your having left him. In that case you may expect your life to be just about ten times as impossible as it was prior to your separation. If you are possessed of even rudimentary character you will take no such chances with your children's welfare and your own self-respect.

Let him do all the "proving." Let him take his chance or leave it. But you stay right where you are, in the only home where you have been respected and accorded the treatment any decent woman deserves. These heroes who clamor so loudly for "second chances" usually never deserved even a first chance. If he is different, let him prove it.

7 LOST IN FOG SAVED BY YOUTHFUL PILOT

16-Year-Old Boy Brings a Boatload Ashore Safely as 200 Seek Victims.

Port Norris, N. J., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—A 16-year-old schoolboy was acclaimed a hero tonight by seven persons whom he piloted safely through a fog in which they had been lost on Delaware Bay for 20 hours.

Enthusiastic townspeople blew whistles and sounded sirens at news of their safety.

Harper Chance, youthful pilot of the 28-foot motor launch Colonial, told of anchoring when the fog rolled in on the party near Cape May Sunday afternoon, and how on Monday he guided the boat cautiouly to the Fourteen Foot Bank Lighthouse by the sound of its fog horn. There the party was found today by a Coast Guard patrol boat and brought ashore.

Three young women in the party, Millville High School teachers, added their ecomiums to those of the four boys, students in the high school.

"We weren't terribly uncomfortable at any time during the trip," said Miss Isabelle McCaughey, 25. "We started out with sandwiches and water Sunday afternoon, but had eaten those when Sunday night came.

"The boys were very kind to us, giving us their coats to cover us while we tried to sleep during the night. Monday morning everybody was hungry, but when we got to the lighthouse the keeper prepared a big meal for us. We had fish, potatoes and some of the best homemade biscuits I ever tasted.

"None of us suffered any great hardship, although Miss Ewan got a little seasick Monday morning."

Members of the party in addition to Chance and Miss McCaughey were Miss Hannah Ewan, 21; Miss Alma Moyer, 26; Irwin Ewan, 18, Miss Ewan's brother; Marshall Roe, 18, and his brothers, Kenneth, 15, and Harwood, 17.

They had been sought by three seaplanes, two dozen Coast Guard and privately owned boats and more than 200 men when they failed to return Sunday night after embarking at 2 p. m. for a cruise down Delaware Bay.

About The Showshops

With NELSON B. BELL

IT CAN hardly be denominated the thrill that comes once in a lifetime, but the nerves ought to tingle a bit, at that, at the announcement from the National Theater that the ticket sale for the impending engagement of the Ziegfeld "Follies," beginning Monday evening, November 30, will be opened at the box office of Mr. Rapley's E street playhouse next Monday morning November 23, at 9 o'clock sharp—or en punto, as we say in the pure Castilian.

In keeping with the policy of former years, there will be no reservation of seats for the "Follies" made either by mail or telephone. So that everybody may have an equal chance, the policy of "first come, first served" will be rigidly adhered to.

Great interest centers in this particular engagement, since this edition of the "Follies," the newest from the Ziegfeld workshop, will be the first to have reached the Capital in five years.

Line will form to the right—and probably run around the corner into Thirteenth street and up to F!

The Fox Theater last evening at the 7 o'clock performance played host to approximately 100 of the officers and crew of the British cruiser Delhi, now docked at the navy yard alongside "Old Ironsides."

For those of the ship's complement unable to attend the performance at the theater, Managing Director Harry W. Crull sent several acts and the line girls from the Fanchon & Marco "Exotique" Idea, now playing on F street, down to the ship to put on a special show.

And did the plans for that Morris Gest presentation of the "Return of Peter Grim" script to Al Jolson on the stage of the Belasco Monday night at 9:30 get all snarled up? You're asking me!

It never would have recurred to me without the kindly reminder of Mr. William Ullman, that Hale Hamilton, who appears as the village banker in support of William Haines in "The New Adventures of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," at the Palace this week, was the original "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" in the play of that name produced years ago by George M. Cohan.

It is Mr. Ullman's further recollection that the Blackie Daw of that original stage cast was the William ("Stage") Boyd, who was later so prominently cast as Sergt. Quirt in "What Price Glory," and now is almost exclusively identified with pictures.

And that radiant young woman you just passed in the hall was Maxine Doyle, the mellifluous mistress of ceremonies at the Earle, who this week is celebrating the completion of a year's continuous service on Thirteenth street and getting the thrill of her life out of the audience reaction to her specialty in the gala vaudeville program assembled for the week.

You could light matches from her eyes.

It would have helped tremendously, apropos of nothing whatever, if in setting yesterday's review of "As Husbands Go," at the National, the compositor had only turned the "n" in "prolonged" upside down and made it "prologued," as it was intended. But then, I suppose we can't have everything!

It has not, I believe, been recorded in the public prints, but Louise Groody, headlining the vaudeville at the Earle, in association with Neville Fleeson, the composes, is not tripping the light fantastic in her act and for an exceedingly—one might almost say excessively—ample reason.

In alighting from her train upon arriving in Washington, Miss Groody, quite as famed as a dancer as she is as a singing comedienne, in some unaccountable manner fractured the great toe on her right foot. It was with difficulty that she negotiated the first Saturday afternoon performance, but you know that old axiom of the theater—"the toe may be gone, but the show must go on!"

While I am not at all certain that it has any place in this column, you may be interested to know that Meyer Davis is coming down from New York tomorrow to direct his own orchestra at the reception in honor of Foreign Minister Dino Grandi at the Italian Embassy on that evening.

For the last few days the Davis offices have been literally scouring New York to secure the very latest popular Italian dance music for this event, so that the musical program for the evening may resemble that heard at a social function in Rome.

Both concert and dance music will be featured in the program, which will extend well into the small hours of the morning. Besides the popular Italian dance music of the day, a group of new tangos will be introduced, while the playing of the Fascist hymn will mark the early part of the reception.

Personal nomination for the best number to dedicate to an irritating singing comic (?) in town this week—the meat clever songs:

You know, "Give Me Something to Dismember You By!"

DENSE FOG IMPEDES CAPITAL AIR TRAVEL

Only One Plane Is Able to Reach Washington From New York.

Dense fog, which has blanketed the Eastern Seaboard for two days, yesterday halted all commercial flying from Washington and tied up marine traffic in the Chesapeake Bay region. Even automotive traffic in the South was reported hampered by fog and smoke from forest fires.

Only one plane got through from New York yesterday, and it, piloted by Howard Stark, flying the mail for the Eastern Air Transport Co., was forced to land at Washington Airport, because of the poor visibility over Bolling Field.

Stark landed at noon after a trying flight from Newark, where he departed at 9 o'clock. He was due in Washington at 11 a. m.

One Plane Gets Through.

One plane got through from Richmond with 500 pounds of mail, but was finally forced down at Hadley Field, New Brunswick, N. J. Lawrence Jamieson, piloting the ship, was unreported for five hours after leaving Richmond at 6 a. m. for Washington, Camden and Newark. He was heard to pass over Bolling Field at 7:02 a. m., but the fog was so thick he did not attempt to land.

Jamieson cruised over Hadley Field for an hour and a half before he could bring his ship down. The radio beacon gave him his position, but the fog blanket kept him from landing his ship immediately.

The Ludington Lines reported that one plane came through from Baltimore, but no Ludington ships left Newark Airport for Washington. The fog is getting worse, rather than lifting, airport officials report.

Another Forced Down.

A second ship was forced down at Hadley Field after a trip from Cleveland with a half a ton of mail, according to Associated Press reports. J. S. Martin, of the National Air Transport, maneuvered over Hadley Field for 20 minutes and then brought his ship down on the New Market race track, a mile west, rather than risk smashing his plane against a hangar. He said he had visibility of not more than 10 feet.

Three steamships dropped anchor in the Chesapeake yesterday when the fog became so dense navigation was impossible, the Associated Press said. The ships are the Allegany, inbound from Boston; the tanker George H. Jones, coming in from Baton Rouge, and the coastwise passenger vessel, Willboro, also inbound. The maritime exchange reported the British steamer Hartbridge, due in from Russia, as unheard from, but officials expressed the belief she had not entered the bay, but had anchored outside the Virginia Capes.

Kiwanis Plans Ladies' Night.

A surprise program is promised for the annual ladies' night entertainment of the Alexandria Kiwanis Club tomorrow evening at 6:30 o'clock at the George Mason Hotel.

BAFFLING INSANITY CAUSE HELD FOUND

Three New York Scientists See Nerve and Brain Cell Damage to Blame.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 17 (U.P.).—At a time when cases of mental disorder are filling nearly half of the hospital beds in the United States, three New York scientists reported to the National Academy of Science, in session at Yale University today, that experiments prove the so-called functional types of insanity actually result from nerve and brain cell damage.

Heretofore the medical profession has expressed its inability to find organic causes for these types of insanity by terming them "functional" in nature.

Dr. Wilder D. Bancroft, professor of colloid chemistry at Baker Laboratory, Cornell University, discovered early this year that so-called functional insanity was due to coagulation or thinning out of the albumen-like substance of the brain and nerve cells.

Experiments at his suggestion were immediately started at the State Hospital at Willard, N. Y., by Dr. H. Beckett Lang, director of clinical psychiatry of the State Hospital at Marcy, N. Y., and Dr. John A. Paterson, of the Willard Hospital.

Applying the principle of thinning out the coagulated brains of certain mental patients by administering sodium rhodanate and thickening the brain structure in other cases with sodium amytal, the two physicians met with immediate success, they said.

They reported today and gave case histories of 46 patients they treated over a period of several months, all but eight of whom responded favorably.

In making public the results of their work, the physicians told the assembled scientists that this is "no cure all" for the age-old problem of insanity, but that it demonstrates that many cases thought incurable heretofore are capable of cure as progress is made in the new method.

HARKER TRIAL HANGS ON THEFT TESTIMONY

said that Harker's face was unmarked before his arrest.

Edwin R. Donaldson, microanalyst of the District government, stated from the witness chair that spots on the shirt Harker was wearing when arrested were human blood. The shirt was offered as evidence.

Under questioning by Rover, Harker told minute details of his beating by the officers. He said he was struck 25 or 30 times with a piece of rubber hose wielded by Mostyn. He said that Mostyn made him handle a screwdriver and a piece of the cash register which was evidence in the lunchroom larceny.

Upon his release, after talking with his mother, he went with his lawyer, McComas Hawkin, to the office of Dr. H. W. Moffitt, where his bruises were treated and photographed.

The trial will continue this morning with cross-examination of Harker by defense attorneys.

Prosecutor Rover said he expected to complete the Government's case today.

Wheeler Asks Inquiry On Wheat "Bear Raids"

(Associated Press.)

The Senate agricultural committee was asked yesterday by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, to inquire into the "bear raids" on the wheat market last summer at its November 24 meeting. Grain operators who sold short were taken to task by President Hoover at the time. Investigation seems likely.

Wheeler said if the committee fails to take up this inquiry, he would introduce a resolution ordering a special investigation of the wheat market operations during the last year.

The "bear" operatons were blamed by Government leads and others for the great drop in prices at the time farmers were harvesting the grain crop.

'Taste Blindness' Found Widespread in Humans

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 17 (A.P.)—Discovery of widespread "taste blindness" among human beings was reported to the National Academy of Sciences at Yale University today.

Another discovery, also reported today, gives promise of taking the poisonous effects out of powerful medicinal drugs, without losing curative properties.

Suggestions, Futile, Flood Room of Hiccough Victim

Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—How widespread human sympathy can be for a man helplessly fighting a persistent affliction is being exhibited here.

Ezra R. King lies on a cot in the general hospital, gradually becoming weaker from ten days of incessant hiccoughing. Suggestions for his cure were pouring in tonight from all parts of the country. The walls of his room were "papered" by letters and telegrams.

Already hundreds of suggestions have arrived, and the frequency of their arrival is increasing. Telegraph offices were swamped with proposals sent by wire, and the postmaster and police department were flooded with letters.

Some sympathizers even sent in little boxes of pills.

Advice ranged from some of the best that physicians could offer to those from believers in charms.

A friend in Cleveland told King to put a coin between his toes. From Argo, Ill., came the suggestion that he press his hands behind his ears. There were suggestions from Tampa, Fla., and Los Angeles, Calif., that he be given aromatic spirits of ammonia.

A physician in Boston said he had cured the hiccoughs by holding a paper bag tightly over the patient's mouth until carbon dioxide fresh from his breath caused a reaction in his lungs which would stop the disturbance.

From Hartford, Conn., came the information that the eating of a quart of ice cream had cured an 8-day hiccougher. Other suggestions included standing King on his head, binding a bandage tightly around the region of his diaphragm, having him stick his fingers in his ears while he drinks a glass of water, and holding a spoon on his tongue.

He was given soup, but he could not hold it on his stomach. Injections were given to him to make him sleep, but the hiccoughing did not abate.

REPUBLICAN UNITY URGED BY BUTLER

Columbia President Lists 14 Declarations of Principle and Policy.

New York, Nov. 17 (U.P.).—An appeal for unity in the Republican party, augmented by his own suggestions for a suitable 1932 program, was made tonight by Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and prominent figure in National politics, in an address before the National Republican Club.

Butler listed fourteen "declarations of principle and policy" which he said the party should adopt if it expects to command the respect of a majority of voters in next year's election.

"There has been no Republican national organization, in the true sense of those words, since the convention of 1912," the university president declared.

Cites Lack of Caucus.

He pointed out that there has been no caucus of Republican senators since 1908 and that "the recommendations of a Republican President, no matter what their character, are quite likely to be tossed aside by a nominal Republican majority in either house of Congress."

His fourteen "declarations" follow in brief:

1. Prompt and unconditional repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

2. Reconstruction and reduction of existing tariff schedules for the purpose of developing American industry, trade and transportation, of maintaining the standard of living, of reducing unemployment and of aiding the vast agricultural areas of the country to market their produce at reasonable prices. "The sound arguments by which we have for 60 years supported the unconditional protective tariff are now turned against us by events," Dr. Butler said.

3 Balancing of the budget of the Federal Government, first, through rigid economy in making appropriations, and, second, through the imposition of such taxes, primarily upon the accumulated wealth of the country, as may be required to meet the necessary expenses of the Government year by year.

4. Wholehearted cooperation with the League of Nations, Permanent Court of International Justice, and the Bank of International Settlements.

Asks War Debt Parley.

5. Examination anew, in international conferences, of the whole question of reparations and intergovernmental war debts.

6. Immediate steps to disarmament.

7. Submission of the proposal for a constitutional amendment to bring a newly elected Congress into session within two months of the time of its election, to the States, with the urge for ratification.

8. Establishment in the several States of a system of social system to safeguard men and women against the risks of modern industry.

9. Development of natural resources of the people without permitting either monopoly or exploitation of the people whose natural resources they are.

10. Enactment of legislation to protect railways from unfair and unregulated competition in interstate commerce.

11. Thorough study of industry leading to adjustment to new conditions; either amendment or modification of the Sherman antitrust law.

12. Calling of international conference on monetary standards.

13. Formulation of a plan to adapt farming to new and well-nigh revolutionary conditions.

14. Curbing and simplification of the "huge, costly and wasteful bureaucracy which has grown up at Washington."

Seamen in Hospital As Rabies Kills Two

Naval Officials Think Sixteen Sailors Will Recover From Infection.

Manila, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Sixteen enlisted men who in two days have seen two shipmates die of rabies were under treatment today at the Canacao Naval Hospital, at Cavite, some in fear the same fate awaits them. Officials believe the men will recover.

Four more, bitten or otherwise exposed to rabies by a pet dog brought aboard the United States destroyer John D. Edwards in violation of orders when the ship was at Chefoo, China, October 16, have been taken to the hospital. They and three attendants of those who died have been given the Pasteur treatment as a precaution.

As a result of the tragedy, orders against bringing pets aboard have been issued to destroyers and submarine squadrons.

Rhode Island Governor Calls for Extra Session

Providence, R. I., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Gov. Norman S. Case today issued a call for the Rhode Island Legislature to meet in extraordinary session next Tuesday to consider legislation for the relief of unemployment.

No effort will be made to adopt special tax legislation to raise funds for relief, but authority will be sought in the Legislature to take money now in the general treasury and lend it to towns and cities to provide work for unemployed on State and municipal projects.

NAVY ROTATION PLAN TO BEGIN NEXT JUNE

(Associated Press.)

To keep expenses down the more, the Navy will initiate its "rotation plan" of operating the United States fleet next June in the destroyer and submarine classes.

Fifteen destroyers now decommissioned at the Philadelphia Navy Yard will be advanced to reserve status under orders issued by Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations.

Preparations for rotating the destroyers will begin about January 15, when work of recommissioning the vessels will be started.

Rotation in the submarine class will include, in addition to reserve assignments recently announced, placing in reserve at the Mare Island Navy Yard about June 15 the Barracuda and the Bonita, submarines of the fleet type serving with the battle force. Submarines previously announced for withdrawal for reserve assignments included six from the Asiatic fleet.

Placing the fifteen destroyers into reserve commission will take care of part of the crews of the cruiser Rochester and aircraft tender Jason, which are to be scrapped.

Four of the fifteen destroyers will go to the West Coast, and with six from the Asiatic fleet, will be in reserve in the battle force as a rotating nucleus.

Eleven will remain on the East Coast, two of them with the training squadron of the scouting force. The remaining nine will be kept at Norfolk for future rotation.

The aircraft carrier Lexington will relieve the aircraft carrier Langley in the Atlantic next summer, following the departure of the Langley for Asiatic waters.

The Navy Department announced the Langley, commanded by Capt. A. W. Fitch, would operate with the scouting force until the end of the fleet concentration off San Pedro, Calif., next March. The ship will go to the Asiatic station about August 15.

The Lexington, commanded by Capt. E. I. King, will leave San Diego for Hampton Roads about July 25.

STOCK PRICES RALLY AS TREND REVERSES

Advances Wipe Out Portion of Recent Losses; Some New Lows Recorded.

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Stocks rallied quietly in the afternoon trading today, and the averages closed higher for the first time since November 9.

Gains were modest, just about canceling yesterday's losses. There was not much spirit to the advance, but the fact that rails were able to recoven early declines encouraged those who had been feeling that the recent reaction was running out of steam, doubtless the new advance in wheat and corn, which the market ignored on Monday, was a factor.

New York Central, Union Pacific, Rock Island, and Southern Pacific sold at new lows in the first hour, and numerous other carriers sagged a point or so. Several important railroad dividend meetings are on the calendar for the next few days, and favorable action in some instances is expected.

Leniency Aids Market.

However, sellers were unwilling to press the decline aggressively, giving the group a breathing spell which helped the entire market. New York Central, after dropping to 39¼, rallied and closed with a small gain. Atchison, Southern, and Chesapeake & Ohio were up a point net, although Union Pacific was off 2¼ and the preferred lost 6 points.

Radio and R-K-O steadied; both trading actively. Motors and oils firmed, the former helped by expectations of greater manufacturing activity, the latter by increases in gasoline prices. Texas Corporation, on which the regular dividend was declared, rose a point. United States Steel, Borden, Allied Chemical, Dupont, Consolidated Gas, American Smelting, Coca-Cola, and Bendix finished with gains of a point or more. American Telephone, with a dividend meeting coming tomorrow, sold off a point and then rallied, up nearly 2 at the last. Westinghouse was heavy. Sales totaled 1,490,860 shares.

Last month brought a larger favorable trade balance than did September, although the margin was small enough when compared with happier years. The rise in exports this October was more substantial than in 1930, a gain being seasonal, although it is normally of larger proportions. European purchases of staples, especially cotton, figured prominently in the increase shown.

Other Loans Decrease.

The weekly statement of reporting member banks was interesting in that it showed the continued progress of deflation. Seurity loans dropped $19,000,000, while "all others" decreased $70,000,000. The latter item includes both commercial borrowings and bankers' acceptances, so that the decline doubtless reflected in part disposal of bill holdings on the strength of higher prices; nevertheless it is apparent that the demands of business for credit are still far from vigorous.

Foreign exchanges were rather heavy. Shanghai and Mexico rates dropped sharply on the additional shimp in silver and the Japanese yen weakened. Sterling was heavy and the French franc sagged. German and Dutch currencies improved.

Wheat's net gains ranged from about 1½ to 2 cents a bushel, the average finding support from cold weather in Canada, strong cables and a bullish Australian crop estimate. Corn was even stronger, averaging around 2½ cents higher. Cotton closed steady, 1 point lower to 3 higher.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS.

Chicago, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Net earnings of the Associated Telephone Utilities Co. and subsidiaries for the quarter ended September 30 were $212,838, compared with $821,411 for the like period of 1930.

Cincinnati, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—An extra cash dividend of $4 a share to common stock holders and the regular semiannual dividend of $4 on the same stock was voted today by the board of directors of the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railway. Both payments will be made December 26 to stockholders of record December 5.

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Directors of Remington Rand, Inc., today postponed action on the preferred dividends to a special meeting to be held December 8. American Surety Co. has omitted the quarterly dividend of $1 due at this time.

The meeting of directors of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines today was rou- dend will be taken up at the December meeting.

Northern Pipe Line Co. has declared a dividend of $1.50 on its $50 par capital stock, payable January 2 to stock of record December 21. On July 1 a dividend of the same amount was paid and in addition an extra payment of 50 cents was made out of nonrecurring income.

Jewel Tea Co. has declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of $1 on the common stock. The extra is payable December 15 to stock of record December 1, and the regular dividend is payable January 15 to stock of record January 2.

The Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railway Co. today declared an extra dividend of $3 a share on the common stock, in addition to the regular semiannual payment of $4. Both are payable December 26 to stock of record December 5. A year ago the company paid a special dividend of $50 a share while in preceding years a $3 extra was paid.

Texas Corporation declared the regular quarter dividend of 50 cents a share, payable January 1, to stock of record December 4.

BOND MARKET SAGS AS U. S LOANS GAIN

Average Loss Is Fractional, Despite Wide Drops in Foreign Issues.

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—General, if moderate, gains in Liberty and United States Treasury loans featured the bond market today as the price trend in other groups was irregularly lower on a limited turnover.

The Government issues wavered uncertainly on quiet trading until the second half of the session when the tone became firm. The Treasury 3½s of 1940-43 and of 1943-47 and the Treasury 3s of 1951-55 were the only members of the group to develop any activity however. Sales in this group approximated $1,350,000 out of an aggregate turnover of $9,045,000.

Foreign obligations provided many of the widest fluctuations. Colombian loans furnished a good example of the irregularity of the trend. Colombia Agricultural Bank 6s and Colombia Mortgage Bank 7s of 1946 lost 6⅞ and 3½ points, respectively.

The two issues of 6s of January and October, 1961, of the National government gained 1 to 2 points, respectively. Argentine bonds were fractionally lower as a rule. German 5½s and 7s were strong but many other issues of that nation receded.

Although second grade rail loans provide a number of wide losses, corporate bonds as a whole closed with narrow, irregular losses. Net losses of 1 point or more were recorded in Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, of 1960, Boston & Maine 5s, of 1967, Central of Georgia series C 5s, St. Paul 5s, of 1975, Rock Island 4s, of 1934, Missouri Pacific series H 5s and General 4s and New York Central new 4½s.

The list as a whole was not so weak as these losses might indicate. The average closing price of 60 representative corporate issues was 83.7, a net decline of two-tenths of a point.

High grade bonds of all groups were steady to firm. American Telephone 5s of 1965, Atchison general 4s and Standard Oil of New York 4½s were unchanged, as were various other loans of similar high rating.

TECH HIGH'S football team rented another wing of the Hall of Fame yesterday afternoon at Central, before 2,000 fans, when it captured its fourth straight high school championship and its eighteenth consecutive series game by giving Business High an ignominious 65-0 flogging.

It was supposedly a charity game, but Business received little of that celestial potion from the determined Tech phalanx, which mowed down the Stenogs much in the manner of a Swiss avalanche. While all precincts had not been heard from at a late hour early, it was roughly estimated that the high school students, and a sprinkling of oldsters, had contributed about $300 at the box office. The disposition of this fund will be decided upon today by the Board of High School principals.

Tech Scores in First Two Minutes.

The good ship Business yesterday was launched just two minutes (and five plays) before it ran aground, keeled over and disappeared beneath a veritable flood of touchdowns, as Tech, catapulting its underslung backs from the maze of complex spinner plays, battered the oft-maligned Stenogs to an orange pulp.

Business' half-hearted claim to fame can be hinged only on the first five plays of the game, when, after it had received the opening kick-off, Flynn, Strasser and Cavanaugh carried the ball to midfield on two first downs. That was the end of Business' season. It did not score another first down, nor come within 15 yards of the center of the field—with the Tech goal still another 50 yards away.

Tech started from that point and there was no stopping it. The team showed no mercy, played at all times as if the score were 6-to-6, and goal to go, and looked like the proverbial million dollars. Several bearded first settlers claimed it was the greatest Tech team ever. Certainly no Tech, or for that matter, any teams, ever took their men out more thoroughly than Tech busted Business' boys yesterday. There seemed to be no great difference in the weight of the two, but when the Techs hit a man, it was work for Business' medicine kit. Defensively, you could not have sprayed a hose through the Tech line.

Tech Uses Raft of Substitutes.

Much of Tech's consistent vigor can be laid to the raft of substitutions. Tech players went in yesterday, who have sat on the bench, burning with zeal, for years. It is little wonder that once in the game they began to make up for long unhappy hours spent watching more favored teammates run and block themselves into the papers.

Meikeljohn, Tech end, scored three touchdowns off passes during the game and Capt. George Sachs captured individual honors for the year by scoring two touchdowns, bringing his year's total to six. Gormley scored two more, and the rest of the

Spinal Injury Fatal To Alabama Center

Nicholas, Freshman Player, Succumbs After Game Against Varsity.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Nov. 17.—James Nicholas, 20-year-old freshman at the University of Alabama, died at a hospital here early today from complications resulting from a spinal injury received in scrimmage between the freshman team and the varsity Armistice Day.

Nicholas, weighing close to 200 pounds, was a reserve center on the freshman eleven and received a dislocated vertebra when he dived beneath interference on a play directed through the center of the line by the varsity.

Little hope had been held for his recovery since the accident last Wednesday although Nicholas had retained consiousness up until a short time before his death at 3 o'clock this morning. At his bedside were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Nicholas, of Winchester, Ind., and members of the university coaching staff.

Coach Paul Burnum of the freshman team said Nichols had developed rapidly as a player and was a brilliant prospect for the Crimson Tide varsity next year. Before entering the university Nichols had been a star on the high school team at Fort Wayne, Ind. His injury and death was the first major accident in 39 years of football history at the University of Alabama.

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The death today at Tuscaloosa of James Nichols, center of the University of Alabama Freshman football team, brings to thirteen the number of deaths from football this fall. His death was the second in the South.

Famed Alabama Backs to Test Local Varsities

At left, "Bad Dave" Boykin, full back on the University of Alabama Rose Bowl Team, which will meet the varsities of Georgetown, Catholic U. and George Washington in the charity game at Griffith Stadium December 12. At right, Pooley Hubert, former Alabama quarter back who holds the distinction of throwing the 58-yard forward pass that was caught by Mack Brown, now a movie star, to beat the University of Washington in the Rose Bowl. Hubert is eager to test his passing skill against the local teams which will be met in three 20-minute games. The advance sale for the game which started Saturday has exceeded the early demands for any other game in local history. A block of tickets for Baltimore fans was requested of the game committee yesterday.

A. A. U. GETS PACT WITH Y. M. C. A.

Mutual Recognition of Amateur Status Is Voted.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 17. (A.P.).—The amateur Athletic Union adopted a "basis of friendly and active cooperation with the Young Men's Christian Association" at the closing session of its forty-third annual convention here today.

Hereafter the status of an athlete as established by one of the organizations will be recognized by the other, through the convention's approval of a report submitted by a committee headed by Gustavus Kirby, New York attorney, who is adviser to the I. C. A. A. A.

The committee reported a similar group from the Y. M. C. A. had agreed in advance to the "basis of cooperation," and that its organization intends to provide registration of athletes similar to that of the A. A. U.

Paid Officials Still Non Grata.

One exception to Y. M. C. A. rules was made in framing the accord. The A. A. U. declined to waive its rules which disqualifies for amateur competition officials who accept money for their services.

New York was selected over Chicago as the meeting place for the 1932 convention.

The track and field committee reported the final tryouts at Stanford University for the U. S. Olympic team would be designated as the 1932 senior championships and recommended that the junior championships be held with the senior.

The committee allocated to New York the indoor junior and senior track and field championships, to be held under supervision of the National Track and Field Committee.

It did not approve adoption of the metric system but recommended its use whenever possible in forthcoming events, because of the approaching Olympic games wherein the system is employed.

The Women's National A. A. U. basket ball tournament was awarded to the Southern Association, to be held the last full week of March at Dallas, Tex.

The sessions today saw sanctioned A. A. U. boxing competition limited to three rounds and alteration of rules to permit rounds of less than three minutes.

Under the new rules, the judges and referees are required to give a decision in boxing matches at the close of the third round, without the former privilege of ordering a fourth.

Avery Brundage, Chicago, was re-elected unanimously to his fourth term as president of the A. A. U. Daniel J. Ferris, New York, was chosen to his fifth term as secretary-treasurer. Ferris has been connected with the A. A. U. for 25 years.

STRIBLING BOUT OFF.

Atlanta, Nov. 17 (A.P.). — "Pa" Stribling, father-manager of Young Stribling, tonight said he had been advised late today that a promoter with whom he had signed for a bout between Young Stribling and Leo Lomski on December 1, in Portland, Oreg., no longer holds a license. He said he had not attempted to complete the match with other Portland promoters.

AustraliaTurf King To Race at Caliente

Phar Lap, Wonder Horse, Winner of $300,00, En Route to Mexico.

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Phar Lap, Australia's wonder horse, has been shipped to New Zealand en route to Agua Caliente, where he will run in the Agua Caliente $100,000 handicap early in March.

Phar Lap, a big 5-year-old, has won close to $300,000, and a victory in the rich Mexican stake would send him past Sun Beau as the world's greatest money winner.

Phar Lap lost his last race in Australia, the Melbourne Cup, where he was asked to pick up 150 pounds for a 2½-mile journey, giving away from 50 to 25 pounds to his rivals.

Norfolk High Grid Team Suspended

Coach Bans Squad for Breaking Training; May Cancel Contest.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The annual Thanksgiving Day football clash between Maury and Wilson High Schools was menaced today as a result of the action of Coach Lester Kibler in suspending the entire Wilson squad pending an investigation of reports that various members of the team had been guilty of violating training rules.

Coach Kibler announced his decision when the players reported for practice yesterday afternoon. He advised members of the squad that all practice sessions slated for this week had been canceled, pending his investigation. He ordered the players to turn in their uniforms.

"I am quite sure that all members of the squad are not guilty," said Mr. Kibler today. "If there are enough survivors to form a team after the guilty ones have been punished, we will meet Maury High School on Thanksgiving Day. Obviously, if the entire squad is ruled ineligible we will be forced to cancel the Maury engagement."

The reported infractions of training rules are said to have occurred last Friday night when a number of Wilson gridmen attended a party in celebration of their victory over Roanoke High School Friday afternoon.

Coach Kibler's action created a furore in both Portsmouth and Norfolk today as the Maury-Wilson tilt has been the outstanding gridiron spectacle of the two cities for many years.

VILLANOVA'S PROWESS IS TOLD G. U.

Scouts Bring Tales of Star Ends and Fast Set of Backs.

By JACK ESPEY.

JUST a well-balanced football team, one with no particular weakness and no outstanding quality. That is how Georgetown scouts describe the Villanova College eleven which Coach Tommy Mills' machine encounters next Saturday in Villanova, Pa.

Villanova, they say, has a number of exceptionally capable players around whom the Wildcats have built their attack and defense, and Georgetown will be especially attentive to these men as play progresses.

The Villanova ends, Terry and Bryce, are repored to be wing performers above the average. Each weighing about 190 pounds, they represent much of the effectiveness of the Wildcat ground offense. Both, too, are adept forward pass receivers.

Three Wildcat Backs Highly Regarded.

Georgetown also holds much respect for three Wildcat backs—Casey and Donahue, half backs, and Potts, full. Casey is a stellar passer, Donahue is a proficient blocker, while Potts is a punter of extraordinary merit. Potts, in addition, means plenty to Villinova's offense because of his blocking ability.

In the line Villanova's outstanding player is Ventura, a guard. Hilltop scouts report that this lad executes his duties as thoroughly as any guard they have seen this year.

With a good mental picture and an earful of Villanova, the Hilltoppers are slated to hold their first scrimmage of the week this afternoon. The freshmen will serve as the opposition, equipped with the Wildcats' attacking repertoire as revealed by the scouts yesterday when they held a rehearsal while the varsity underwent a drill in signals, blocking and charging.

Mills Sees Visitors As High Hurdle.

Coach Mills reiterated yesterday his opinion that Villanova will prove as hard an opponent as any Georgetown has met thus far. A duplication of its fiery performance against West Virginia last Saturday will carry his team a long ways against Villanova, he added.

Trojan Coach Sees Defeat By Irish

Believes Notre Dame More Powerful Despite Injuries.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Coach Howard Jones has no misgivings about the Notre Dame football team his University of Southern California squad meets at South Bend next Saturday.

"There is every reason to believe," he said before departing late today with his staff of five assistants and a squad of 36 men, "that the team we buck up against Saturday is much stronger than the one which trounced us 27 to 0 last year.

"On the other hand, there is nothing to indicate my boys are any better than they were that day. Knute Rockne's eleven made us look so bad.

Psychology Stuff Is Wasted.

"But we are not falling for any of Coach Hunk Anderson's psychology stuff. I think George Melinkovich is probably the best fullback in the country, but if he is definitely out of the game, as they say he is, I am sure that Notre Dame has any one of about eight fullbacks who can easily fill his shoes.

"We heard too much about fullbacks and saw too much of one Bucky O'Connor last year to give Hunk much ear before this game. From what my scouts have seen of the so-called Irish, I don't see why we should shed any tears in their behalf."

Admits He Could Use Two Good Ends.

Jones wasn't willing to say much about his team, either offensively or defensively, but admitted he could have used a couple of good ends this season. He gave the squad another lengthy workout this afternoon, stressing defense.

A workout will be held at Tucson, Ariz., tomorrow morning. Another is scheduled for Hutchinson, Kans., Thursday afternoon, and the final practice session takes place at Chicago Friday afternoon. The Trojans will remain in Chicago until the morning of the game.

2 Backs and Guard Of Notre Dame Hurt

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Coach Heartly Anderson today began the task of rebuilding Notre Dame's second team in preparation for the big battle of the season with Southern California's Trojans Saturday.

When the Irish left Baltimore after last week's game with Navy it was known that George Melinkovich, regular full back, might not be able to play this week. Two more shocks were delivered last night. It was revealed that Mike Koken's "lame back" was caused by three badly bruised vertebrae, and during practice Bill Pierce, substitute guard, suffered a severe arm injury.

In place of Koken, who has served nobly as Marchmont Schwartz's understudy, Anderson today had Frankie Laborne. Jim Leonard was used at full back and probably will start against the Trojans, while Joe Pivarnik was assigned to Pierce's second team guard job.

The shifts gave the Irish a reserve eleven of eight sophomores and three juniors, all of whom will be available next season.

Melinkovich was in uniform, but did only a little light work. There is a possibility that he can be used Saturday, but Koken definitely is out. He was confined to his bed today and will be kept there the remainder of the week.

In the moving up made necessary by the second team vacancies Bernie Leahy was placed at full back on the third team, Julian Acers moved to left half and Tom Mahuffey took over Pivarnik's guard post.

Buckeyes Alone Willing To Meet Northwestern

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Ohio State was the only team to volunteer to play Northwestern in a post season charity football game. Kenneth L. "Tug" Wilson, director of athletics at Northwestern, said today in commenting on Michigan's protest of the schedule.

"Northwestern voted against the schedule which was adopted and talked in favor of a Northwestern-Michigan game on the theory that it was the best natural game in the conference this year," Wilson said, "but during the entire meeting, of which I was chairman, there was only one school which expressed any willingness to play Northwestern and that was Ohio State."

CHOCOLATE IN BID FOR TITLE

Canzoneri's Crown at Stake Friday; Sell-Out Predicted.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—"Keed" Chocolate, spectacular Cuban Negro, will duel Tony Canzoneri 15 rounds for the lightweight championship in Madison Square Garden Friday night, the first warrior of his race to battle for that crown since Joe Gans slipped from the fistic heights 22 years ago.

Back in 1908 in Colma, Calif., the blond terror of the lightweights, Battling Nelson, gave the Wraith of Baltimore a chance to regain the crown Gans won from Frankie Erne in 1901 and lost to Nelson in 17 rounds in San Francisco July 4, 1908. But a plague already had touched the lungs of the great Negro warrior and he fell before Nelson's savagery in 21 rounds.

moment rose to challenge the fighting supremacy of the lightweight Nordics until Chocolate, the little, grinning newsboy from Cuba, came along. Friday night he gets the chance given to Gans in a 15-round battle with Tony Canzoneri, the champion.

Already the Garden is talking of the first sell-out in almost two years and a gate of $60,000 at moderate prices. Furthermore, Chocolate is conceded an even chance to take the lightweight title from the popular little Italian who won it from Al Singer on a half-minute knockout last year and twice since has whipped Jackie Kid Berg in its defense.

To add to the picture of two of the prize ring's cleverest little men in action, two synthetic titles may be tossed into the battle pit along with the highly prized lightweight crown. Chocolate is the junior lightweight champion, although the class is not recognized in New York State, and Canzoneri, by weighing 130 pounds or less, can bring his title into the dispute. Chocolate, expecting to scale 130 pounds himself, also can claim in victory the 140-pound junior welterweight championship Canzoneri won from Berg.

Garden Buys Original Title Belt.

Another touch, linking the present-day picture to days almost as far back as the Gans era, was the purchase by Madison Square Garden today of the lightweight championship belt last worn by Freddie Welsh, the Englishman Benny Leonard knocked out to win the title in nine rounds in 1917. Welsh, now dead, bequeathed the belt to his widow and the Garden bought it to present to Friday night's conqueror. Welsh won the belt from Willie Ritchie in England.

W. & M. to Play Army, Navy Elevens in 1932

Williamsburg, Va., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Athletic authorities at the College of William and Mary today announced the football schedule for 1932 with the comment that it is the hardest gridiron program ever planned for an Indian eleven.

The schedule includes games with the Navy and three of the Virginia Big Four, with a midseason game with the Army. A game with George Washington University has been arranged to be played in Washington, before President Hoover, if he accepts the invitation, as a George Washington Bientennial football feature. The game was considered appropriate because of William and Mary's priorities, and the name of the George Washington University.

September 17—Randolph-Macon, at Williamsburg; 24, Guilford, at Williamsburg.
October 1—Navy, at Annapolis; 8, Roanoke, at Williamsburg; 15, V. P. I., at Richmond; 22, Washington and Lee, Norfolk; 29, Army, at West Point.
November 5—V. M. I., at Norfolk; 12, Emory and Henry, at Williamsburg; 19, George Washington, at Washington; 24, Richmond, at Richmond.

Booth Likely To Oppose Harvard

Injured Yale Captain Practices But May Not Start Game.

Harvard Hopes Rise as Star Blocker Rejoins Squad.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Fog and threatening rain prevented the Yale football team from scrimmaging in the bowl today, and it was considered possible that the squad might go against Harvard Saturday without another scrimmage practice.

Instead, Coach Mal Stevens put his men through an intensive drill on blocking the expected Harvard forward passing attack. Six teams were in action, two representing the Crimson, in both offensive and defensive passing drill.

Capt. Albie Booth, recovering from injuries suffered 10 days ago, played on the varsity for a while, but later gave way at left half to Bob Lassiter. Booth then worked out in the second back field, with Sullivan at guard, Taylor at right half and Ingraham at full back.

Every indication pointed to Booth's participation in the Harvard game, although Lassiter was favored to start. Coach Stevens said he probably would not announce the line-up until Thursday night.

Star Harvard Blocker Rejoins Squad.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Bernie White, Harvard's best blocking back and spearhead of its sure-fire off-tackle plays, rejoined the squad today and participated in every task Head Coach Eddie Casey demanded during the first real workout his undefeated players have had for their objective game with Yale.

White wore a white jersey, which indicated he was not in shape for contact work, but Casey has no idea of scrimmaging this week. In fact, he is content to have his varsity play tag football in facing the Yale formations run off by the scrubs.

The Harvard regulars made an excellent showing against the Yale plays and was roundly praised by Arnold Horween, who retired as head coach after last season. Horween's chief comment, however, was devoted to the Crimson's high caliber blocking and tackling.

Princeton Scores Against Scrubs.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 17 (U.P.).—Princeton's varsity, starting practice for the Yale game, November 28, scrimmaged against the scrubs today and scored three touchdowns. Passes and short off-tackle bucks accounted for the scores, although the varsity still looks weak on offensive.

Army Returns to Fundamentals.

Fordham Primes for Bucknell Game.

New York, Nov. 17 (U.P.).—Fordham held its first workout today in preparation for Saturday's game with the undefeated Bucknell Team. Maj. Cavanaugh was not satisfied with Fordham's aerial game against N. Y. U. and stressed this feature in today's drill.

Dartmouth Starts Today.

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—After a three-day layoff, Dartmouth will return to its knitting tomorrow in preparation for the Stanford battle. Stan Yudicky will participate in the workout as will every other member of the squad except Aarne Frigard and Larry Durgin. These two casualties both may recover from their hurts in time to play against the Westerners ten days hence.

Fight to Oust Hickey As A. A. Head Is Draw

Chicago, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The move to oust Thomas Jefferson Hickey as president of the American Association of Professional Baseball Clubs collided with the stonewall of a deadlock at the annual meeting of club owners today.

While nothing definite was revealed from the secret meeting, it was understood that Hickey received the solid support of four club owners while as many were opposed to him. Those familiar with American Association procedure openly predicted that the deadlock would continue tomorrow with the result that Hickey would be given a one year's contract.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE advance seat sales indicate that Washingtonians are taking kindly to the triple-decked charity game on December 12 when the University of Alabama's Rose Bowl team will oppose the varsities of Georgetown, Catholic University and George Washington in three twenty-minute games for the benefit of the District's unemployed.

The game committee, composed of members of the unemployed group and representatives of the three local institutions, is intent on a two-fold purpose, raising funds for the relief of the needy and providing the Capital with a novel and interesting football spectacle which will afford Washington fans an accurate comparison of the much-mooted strength of the three local varsities.

The fan who sits in the bleachers or distant seat will have only himself to blame. The choice seats are still on sale both downtown and at Griffith Stadium, and until December 1 a 50 cent reduction on each ticket will be in force. The extremely nominal charge for the game, with seats now selling at $1, $1.50 and $2, is commensurate with the depression of the times and the committee is to be congratulated on its scale of prices. Should the choice seats fall into the hands of speculators, the fans who are tardy in their reservations, will have no complaints, for grandstand seats are now available in all sections of the park.

Annapolis will be the scene of one of football's greatest shows on Saturday when the Midshipmen entertain the Southern Methodist eleven of Texas.

Fans who saw the Navy play the Methodists at Baltimore last year witnessed an unforgettable display of forward passing by the Mustangs, which wiped out an early Navy lead and beat the Midshipmen. This was the same passing attack which nearly upset Notre Dame last year, Rockne's team barely eking out a 14-13 victory with the helpful aid of a penalty on a forward pass which was knocked down but ruled completed on account of interference.

The Methodists will move in on Annapolis with an aerial circus that defies any other descriptions. They toss passes with seemingly reckless abandon, but with mystic accuracy that has bewildered the best of opposition. Long passes, short passes, passes with high trajectory and low trajectory, forward passes behind the line and lateral passes, and even backward passes, are included in the Methodists' repertoire, and the effect is a cross between basket ball and lacrosse.

Especially effective is a strange pass that the Methodists worked consistently against the Middies last year. This consisted of a double passing gesture in which the quarter back flung the ball to an end, who moved just a few yards out on the line of scrimmage, and then receiving the ball, pivoted and pitched it far to the other side to some back who was lingering there, and not by accident either.

In Mason, Spargue, and Jorgan, the Middies will face a trio of backs who for sheer fleetness of foot can outrun any on the Navy eleven. Their gains last year carried them wide of the Navy ends and down the field until the sidelines alone stopped their advances. Most of these fellows, playing sans head gears, are veritable demons backing up the line and present a colorful spectacle with their flying tackles. Each is a defensive full back in his own right.

Braves Send Maguire To Louisville Team

Boston, Nov. 17 (U.P.).—The contract of Freddy Maguire, Boston Braves second baseman, has been transferred outright to the Louisville Club of the American Association, Judge Emil Fuchs, Braves' president, announced tonight.

Judge Fuchs said the transfer was due to an effort being made to improve the Braves' batting.

Dartmouth-Yale Play-Off Proposed

Seek to Match Teams in Round Robin Tourney for Charity.

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Official sentiment was divided tonight as to the merit of suggestions that Yale and Dartmouth play off their spectacular 33-33 tie as a part of the round-robin charity football series in the Yale bowl Saturday, December 5. Brown and Holy Cross also will participate in the round-robin.

The proposal that Yale and Dartmouth be arbitrarily rematched was advanced at a luncheon today given by Owen D. Young, chairman of the committee on mobilization of relief resources.

John M. Cates, director of athletics at Yale, failed to approve the plan.

"There would be little gained by a second game," he said. "It might easily result in another tie. Since the contests in the tournament will be only twenty minutes in length, anything might happen. I think the method of determining the opponents by lots is the soundest one."

Sentiment among the Dartmouth student body seemed to favor the idea, but no official comment was forthcoming.

John J. McEwen, coach of Holy Cross, announced he would not offer any objections to the plan, although Holy Cross, already having played Dartmouth and Brown, would have preferred to meet Yale.

20,000 at Upperville See Word of Honor Win Race

Col. Pierce's Gelding Captures Llangollen Cup as Huge Throng Witnesses Events at Whitney Estate.

UPPERVILLE, Va., Nov. 17.—Fully 20,000 witnessed the inaugural race meet of the Piedmont Fox Hounds, held today at Llangollen, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney, near Upperville. Sporting people came from all parts of the United States to witness the timber and brush races over the rolling fields of the historic estate.

The Llangollen Open Steeplechase Cup race, feature of the day, handicap for 4-year-olds and upward, was won by Word of Honor, black gelding by Ormondale out of Lady Doreen, owned by Shelby T. Harbison, of Lexington, Ky., and ridden by J. Clyburn. The owner received the Llangollen Gold Cup, presented by Mrs. Payne Whitney. The rider received a trophy and the trainer received $100. Time was 6 minutes, 20 seconds.

Stonedale, chestnut gelding, by Manager Waite out of Gosaip, owned by Malcolm McGiffin, outran a field of seven, three of which fell, in the Piedmont Gold Cup Steeplechase over Aiken fences. The horse was ridden by Mr. James Ryan. The owner received a gold cup donated by Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney. Time of the race was 6:48.8.

The Ayshire Cup for horses that have been hunted at least one season with any of the following hunts: Warrenton, Orange County, Casanova, Middleburg, Blue Ridge and Piedmont, was won by Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Thornbrack and ridden by J. V. H. Davis. This horse is a chestnut gelding by Irishman, out of Catinette. Time of the race was 9 minutes and 31 seconds. Plate presented by late Gen. James A. Buchanan.

Clyde Sukeforth Shot In Eye While Hunting

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 17 A.P.).—Surgeons believed today there was a chance to save the sight of the right eye of Clyde L. Sukeforth, 29, Cincinnati Reds first-string catcher, accidentally shot yesterday while hunting rabbits near here. One of the shotgun pellets penetrated Sukeforth's eye, the physicians said. Surgical dressings will be removed Friday.

Clyde Sukeforth entered the big leagues after two seasons of play with Georgetown University's varsity baseball team in 1922 and 1923. He was the regular catcher on the Hilltop squad and in high school was selected as the all-state catcher in Maine.

Two Ruled Off Race Tracks In Fatal Doping at Pimlico

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 17 (U.P.). The Maryland Racing Commission today barred V. Sutro from all tracks coming under the jurisdiction of that body for life, because of the fatal "doping" of his horse Pourboire on November 6. A colored stable hand named John Torian, named as an accessory, was also ruled off for life. Sutro's horses, Tansy and Wildale, were also barred.

Trainer P. B. Codd, in whose care Pourboire was at the time, was not present when the doping took place, but for negligence had his license suspended until December 1.

The commission also upheld the recommendation of the Maryland Jockey Club and suspended Jockey Laverne Fator until November 20, and Jockey H. Louman until November 30 for rough riding at the Pimlico meeting. The report follows:

"In connection with the fatal doping of the horse Pourboire at Pimlico November 6, we rule off of all courses under the jurisdiction of the Maryland Racing Commission V. Sutro and the horses Tansy and Wildale the property of Sutro; also the colored man John Horian, known as "Sunshine."

The stewards' investigation shows that Sutro and Torian were wholly responsible for this doping. The Stewards' investigation further shows that P. B. Codd, who acted as trainer for this horse on this day had not been to the stable or given any orders about the horse, but as trainers are

Extra Point Decided But 3 Dixie Conference Games

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The extra point after touchdown, subject of much debate among gridiron coaches, has decided but five games involving Southern Conference teams this season. Three of these games were between conference teams and the other two changed the final complexion of intersectional contests. Maryland beat Virginia in early season, 7 to 6, and later Florida won from Auburn, 13 to 12, and Virginia Military Institute beat Clemson, 7 to 6. Georgia won from New York University, 7 to 6, while Georgia Tech lost to Pennsylvania Saturday, 13 to 12.

With the Dixie season almost completed, fourteen tie games are found on the record books, but only five of these were between Southern Conference teams. Florida and North Carolina and Virginia and Virginia Polytechnic battled to scoreless deadlocks, while Florida and South Carolina played a 6-6 tie; Kentucky and Maryland each scored a touchdown without making the extra point, and Georgia Tech and North Carolina finished their free-scoring game at 19-all.

Other tie games include Auburn, 7, Wisconsin, 7; Clemson, 0, Presbyterian, 0; Duke, 0, Davidson, 0; Mississippi, 20, Southwestern, 20; Sewanee, 0, Southwestern, 0; Virginia, 7, Randolph-Macon, 7; Virginia Polytechnic, 6, William and Mary, 6; Virginia Military, 13, Citadel, 13, and Washington and Lee, 6, William and Mary, 0.

FRIGATE BIRD, OFF LAST, WINS BOWIE 3-YEAR-OLD PURSE

Politen Pays $47.90 in Scoring Upset in Third Race.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Nov. 17.—Frigate Bird, Foxcatcher Farm's cantankerous Man o' War gelding, which had delayed the start several minutes during which he had unseated J. Renick, raced to the front in the stretch and won the Yarrow Brae Purse, feature today, by a length. Le Mar Stock Farm's Mouthpiece, favorite, was an easy second, and Mrs. B. Starr's Whipper Cracker third.

Seven 3-year-olds started in the feature. After Frigate Bird had been taken to the outside, the field soon was sent to the front. Mouthpiece turned the clubhouse in front, with Frigate Bird, off in action, second, and they raced to the stretch in this order with Whipper Cracker always close up. In the stretch Frigate Bird passed the leader and won in hand. He paid $15.70.

10,000 See Eager Play in Game Finish.

A crowd of about 10,000 was out for the second of Bowie racing, and the weather conditions were good, after the heavy fog cleared.

Overcoming a bad start and losing ground at the first turn, John Goff's Eager Play made a game finish under good handling by Jockey A. Prain, to win the sixth race going away. Bubola was second and Sun Shadow, which had delayed the start nine minutes, and then beat the gate, was third. The crowd voiced its displeasure with the starting, but the beneficiary got little benefit. Bubola, the favorite, led to the last strides. The winner paid $19.50.

Nevada Stock Farm's Lady General charged the leaders in the stretch and won the first race for maiden 2-year-old fillies by a head. H. Teller Archibald's Westy's Rose was second, by a neck, in front of R. A. Smith's Lucky Racket. The start was good, Westy's Rose going to the front. Lucky Racket was close up at the far turn, on the rail, while Lady General was fourth on the outside, held in restraint by Bejshak. In the stretch the leaders were bunched. At the finish Lady General just got up. The winner paid $8.80. The time was 1:07.

John F. Schorr's Frederick had things his own way in the second race for 2-year-olds. Mack Garner took him far out in front from the gate, and won by two lengths. He could have won by ten. Walter J. Salmon's Brave and Bold was second and Blue Damsel third. Hobnob was fourth.

Brave and Bold Gets Place.

Frederick was odds-on favorite, paying $3.50, and was timed in 1:12. Blue Damsel, the filly that fell with W. Nertney, injuries from which the star rider now is recovering, made a bid for place, but Brave and Bold kept going and he paid $20.60 for place. Frederick was entered for the claiming price of $5,000.

W. C. Dunford's Politen, classed as a winter horse, will go South with a good start and in fit condition, for he led all the way in the third race and paid $47.90. Trice was second and Colonel Crump, a field horse, third. Scarlet Brigade was fourth. Politen's race was all the more a surprise because the distance was a mile and a furlong, and 7 furlongs was supposed to be a route for him, from his previous starts this year. Trice was installed favorite, with Scarlet Brigade second choice. Politen ran the distance in 1:54 4-5. Trice finished fast, forcing Politen to a hard drive in the stretch.

C. V. Whitney's Pennate turned the tables on H. D. Bonesteel's filly, Vacillate, in the fourth race, Pennate winning by a half length from Seagram Stable's Solace, and Vacillate could only get third, with Wacket fourth. When the Whitney colt and Vacillate met at Pimlico, Vacillate was an easy winner because Pennate sulked. Workman got the colt in a running mood today. Vacillate left the post in front of the field, but Pennate passed her in the stretch, followed by Solace. Solace closed fast, Pennate only winning by a half length. Pennate paid $6.50, and ran 6 furlongs in 1:12.

John Lowe's Hold On won the seventh race by two lengths. Huntington, pacemaker, was second, and Era, a field horse, third. Vowed Vengeance was fourth. The start was good, Era going to the front. Passing the stand the first time Huntington went to the front.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADY GENERAL, $8.80, $5.60, $2.90; WESTY'S ROSE, $3.30, $2.30; LUCKY RACKET, $2.50.

LADY GENERAL, hard ridden to secure a prominent position in the early stages, swung to the outside of the leaders when approaching the home stretch, came determinedly under vigorous urging and was up in the final few strides. WESTY'S ROSE, ridden hard to shake off LEON LASS in the first three furlongs, drew clear when straightened into the home stretch, but weakened fast in the final sixteenth mile. LUCKY RACKET, caught in tight quarters early, secured racing room on the inside during the stretch run and was wearing the first down at every stride. LEON LASS forced a good early pace and held on well. MISS JAMISON was crowded back directly after the start. MAGIC DREAMER was forced wide for the entire journey. MOON MESSENGER and BESSIE S. quit. MAY LAWN raced very green.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FREDERICK, $3.50, $3.00, $2.40; BRAVE AND BOLD, $20.60, $6.00; BLUE DAMSEL, $3.10.

FREDERICK, away in the first flight, was hurried into a brief lead, saved ground while resisting keen contention from BRAVE AND BOLD in the first half mile, came wide into the home stretch, shook off BRAVE AND BOLD and drew into an easy lead. BRAVE AND BOLD, a keen factor for five furlongs, weakened during the closing stages. BLUE DAMSEL entered contention with a rush midway of the turn, saved a lot of ground when the leaders went wide, but could not make up any ground in the final drive. HOBNOB could never reach the leaders. BLACK JEWEL was done after four furlongs. MORGIL broke slowly and was outrun. LINE OF FIRE was never a factor. GRAND ACRE had a rough trip. JAMBALAYA showed no speed.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start fair from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:01. Off at 2:04. Winner, W. C. Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLITEN, $47.90, $19.90, $10.50; TRICE, $3.80, $3.00; COLONEL CRUMP (field), $7.50.

POLITEN sprinted into a good lead when reaching the back stretch, was rated during the final five furlongs until challenged, began tiring fast under severe pressure in the final stages and had to be roused sharply to stall off TRICE. Latter, hustled into early contention, came with good courage for the final issue. COLONEL CRUMP, a forward factor from the beginning, fought it out gamely until the end. SCARLET BRIGADE, away in a tangle, and carried wide at the first turn, was unable to reach the pacemakers when securing racing room. ANCODA lacked speed enough to reach contention. UNDERDUN had no excuses. BABOO broke in motion, but stopped badly after racing prominently for six furlongs. QUEENSTON broke very poorly.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:34. Off at 2:38. Winner, C. V. Whitney's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PENNATE, $6.50, $3.80, $2.30; SOLACE, $6.40, $2.70; VACILLATE, $2.10.

PENNATE, outrun in the first half mile, but closest in pursuit of the pacemaker, responded readily when put to a drive, wore VACILLATE down when straightened into the home stretch and had enough left to stall off SOLACE. Latter, away fast, dropped back midway of the turn, responded to punishment and finished with a belated rush. VACILLATE sprinted into a commanding lead early, saved ground, but faltered fast in the closing furlong. WACKET showed speed for the first half mile. EIL WEIR made up ground in the final three-sixteenths mile. The others were outrun.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,400; allowances. The Yarrow Brae. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:11. Off at 3:20. FRIGATE BIRD, fractious and straddling the stall gates before the start, was placed on the outside of the gate. He broke forwardly and, following close to MOUTHPIECE, displaced the latter when approaching the home stretch and, kept under urging, held the latter safe in front. MOUTHPIECE, hurried to the front, was rated along until forced to a strong drive, but was unable to keep pace with the winner when overtaken. WHIPPER CRACKER, closer up than usual in the early stages, held on well for the final test. ROYAL RUFFIN had no excuse. PARI MUTUEL was ridden hard, but could not stay when the final drive came. BOUNDING DEEP was forced back entering the home stretch when in tight quarters.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:51. Off at 4:00. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EAGER PLAY, $19.50, $7.30, $4.90; BUBOLA, $4.70, $3.50; SUN SHADOW, $4.00.

EAGER PLAY, sluggish in reaching full stride, moved up when leaving the back stretch, circled his company and, closing with good speed, wore BUBOLA down in the final sixteenth mile. BUBOLA, rated close up, raced the leaders into submission, but was unable to hold the winner, although holding on willingly. SUN SHADOW beat the barrier and took an easy lead, was rated in front, but was not good enough when put to a drive. RUANE closed gamely from a slow beginning. STAR CREST had no excuses. NOSTAW tired after six furlongs. FANTAD quit to a walk.

HOLD ON, racing into a forward position at once, followed in close pursuit of HUNTINGDON, responded willingly for the final drive and, taking command in the closing furlong, held sway thereafter. HUNTINGDON, rushed into the lead, raced under mild restraint while saving ground and held on well when challenged. ERA broke fast and clear, was kept in contention and was easily best of the others. VOWED VENGEANCE, in a tangle going to the first turn, settled in his stride and closed gamely. BIG SPRING hung after getting into the first division at the final turn. PING COATES was racing stoutly at the end. TANG stopped. HARVARD had no mishaps.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Bowie Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 17.—Bowie features the Bay Shore for older horses and the Vanity for 2-year-olds tomorrow, twin headliners, both at 6 furlongs.

Adolph Spreckels' veteran sprinter, JUDGE SCHILLING, will be favorite in the Bay Shore, and it appears nothing in the race can beat him. He has worked well for this engagement and in all his racing career has seldom failed to put in a lightning performance. He will run this race close to track record time. MISSTEP, a big money winner attempting a comeback, will be a dangerous contender. MISSTEP never looked better, has worked well during his Maryland invasion and may flash his old speed he showed against Reigh Count, Victorian and others in former days. HELIANTHUS should hold the others safe in the Bay Shore.

FIRST RACE—Maiden 3-year-olds and upward go in the opener, which appears a soft spot for ROBOT, which has run on New York tracks with better horses. DARK RAY is regarded the contender. PARSNIP is the favorite of the clockers. PLAY BILL has worked well, but refuses to extend himself in races.

SECOND RACE—BERBER is in the cheapest field in which he has run this year. He has up only 111 pounds. SWATTER, far below BERBER in class, seems best of the others, with SQUEEZE PLAY the only one likely to give him a battle for place.

THIRD RACE—GENERAL LEJEUNE, appearing several times on the entry lists in Maryland, but so far scratched, is entered again for the third race and is ready to show the same form he did in the spring. The Preston Burch colt ran his last race at Saratoga and showed class and should win this race. WAR PLANE has an outside chance, but is a bad actor, and getting him away from the gate is a problem. He ran third at Pimlico, after a bad start. MASKED KNIGHT is best of the others.

FOURTH RACE—In The Vanity, TRY AND AGAIN is selected, discounting her bad showing last time out. FLAG TRICK won her last race and should be the contender. DARK SEEKER is in top form and will figure in the race. BOSCOBEL and others of these 2-year-old fillies have speed.

SIXTH RACE—RUBIO had the edge. SALISBURY, if he starts, should make it a close race on his Pimlico form. RUBIO is partial to this track. BUBOLA, on the eligible list, has all her speed, and always is dangerous in this company.

SEVENTH RACE—WESTKO is selected in the curtain number. He trimmed a better field than this recently, and should be seriously challenged only by SCOT FREE, a repeater at Laurel. COADY may get third money.

was won by Bachelor's Drake, a brown gelding, owned by Allison L. S. Stern and ridden by J. E. Ryan. Money was given as a prize. The time was 5 minutes 26 and 2-5 seconds.

Nine horses started in the Llangollen Gold Cup, the rest being scratched. Two fell in this race. W. Hirst, riding Gaston, owned by N. S. Luddington, was hurt in a fall at a jump.

Seven horses started in the Piedmont Gold Cup, three fell, among these being Saltorello, owned by Mrs. J. H. Whitney and ridden by W. B. Street. Mr. Street was badly shaken up.

Three horses started in the Ayreshire and there were no spills.

The last race, the Blue Ribbon Chase, three horses started, two finished. The worst spill of the day was in this race, when J. Temple Gwathmey, riding his horse, Gunboat, was badly injured when his horse fell on him, striking his chest. His collar bone was broken and other injuries sustained.

The mule race, the last event of the day, was won by Buster Hall. Irvin Beavers was second and Johnson Clyde third. John Hay Whitney rode in this race.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitney had as their guests Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Myers, of Philadelphia; Mr. James Healey, of Washington; Maj. L. A. Beard, of Lexington, Ky.; Mrs. B. Dobson Altemus, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. LeGendre, of New Orleans; Mrs. Weatherall, of Philadelphia; Mr. Whitney's sister, Mrs. Charles Paxson, of New York, and Dr. Hudley Owen, of Philadelphia.

Functions on the Whitney card included a luncheon for officials of the race meet and a formal dance tonight. Preceding the dance, Mr. and Mrs. William Hitt, Mr. and Mrs. Dodge Sloan, Gen. and Mrs. William Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur White entertained at dinner.

TECH WINS FOURTH STRAIGHT GRID TITLE

ten touchdowns were divided equally among Hatos, Foley and Pisano.

Foley scored first on an 11-yard run around end, the fifth play of an advance of 70 yards. Sachs went over from the 2-yard-line for the second. Sachs scored the third touchdown with a crash at left tackle from the 7-yard stripe, and Gormley duplicated the play in scoring the fourth. Brinkman passed to Meikeljohn, unprotected on the 12-yard line, from midfield for the fifth. Hatos accounted for the sixth when runs of 10 and 25 yards brought the ball to the 4-yard line, whence he took it across. Edwards passed 7 yards to Meikeljohn for the seventh touchdown, and Gormley scored the eighth after a beautiful lateral off a forward pass had brought the ball from Business' 40-yard line to the 5-yard line. Pisano produced the ninth from the 4-yard line and Meikeljohn the last on a great pass from Brinkman, a 40-yard gain in all. Jack Rhodes kicked five placements.

Final Game of Season For Both.

It was the final game of the year for both teams. Tech was scheduled to play Bethlehem (Pa.) High on Thanksgiving, but canceled the game Monday because the Pennsylvanians have a Negro youth in their line-up. Yesterday's was Business second full year without a victory. Tech lost one game this year, to Swavely Prep, at Manassas, by the score 20 to 7, and defeated Baltimore Poly, Handley High, Episcopal, Western, Central, Eastern and Business.

PRESTIGE AT STAKE IN MARYLAND, WASHINGTON-LEE GAME

Old Liners Have Defeated All Rivals But Generals.

Steady Improvement of W.-L. Means Hard Game.

A CHAMPIONSHIP, mythical, but nevertheless a championship of which the owner well may be proud, will be at stake next Saturday at College Park when Maryland engages its homecoming-game opponent, Washington and Lee. The decision, barring a tie, will carry with it the championship of the northern group of colleges of the Southern Conference, composed of, besides the teams involved, Virginia, V. P. I. and V. M. I.

Maryland has defeated all but W. and L., while the latter has beaten Virginia and V. P. I. The Generals do not meet V. M. I.

Owing to the Generals' steady improvement of the past month, Maryland views the game as one of its hardest tests of the year and nobody at College Park is anticipating a repetition of last year's game in which Maryland administered the worst beating the Generals ever suffered at the hands of the Old Line.

Washington and Lee will present a football oddity in that two of its players are used both in the line and the back field. Bailey, nominally a tackle, and Tilson, who lines up at guard, are the two interchangeable players and both are husky boys. Bailey plays tackle on the defense and full back on the attack, while Tilson plays guard on the offense and backs up the line when the rival team has the ball.

Tilson Was Star Against Tigers.

"Tilson does about as good a job of backing up the line as any man I have seen this year," said one of the men who watched Washington and Lee beat Princeton last week.

Washington and Lee's triumph over Princeton is going to make it a tough team for Maryland to tackle Saturday and Coach Curly Byrd intends to be ready for a bruising battle.

Scrimmage is a rare thing for Maryland this late in the season, but the Old Liners are back in the throes of it right now and, after their week's rest, they appear to enjoy it.

The battles of Monday and yesterday between the first and second teams were football games to all intents and purposes, the teams kicking off as in a regular battle, the measuring sticks being in use and penalties being called.

Woods Takes Part In Scrimmage.

A pleasing feature of the "scraps" was the fact that Al Woods took part in the heavy going and appeared none the worst for wear. He had been nursing a bad leg ever since the first period of the Kentucky battle on October 17 and there was some doubt of his ability to stand up in scrimmage. He should be on the job Saturday and in Maryland's other two games of the campaign.

Pro Golfers Reelect Charles Hall President

Boston, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—The Professional Golfers Association today reelected its entire slate of officers with the exception of one. The exception was the election of Jack Martin, of Takoma, Wash., to succeed Robert Johnstone, of Seattle, Wash., as a vice president. The slate was headed by President Charles W. Hall, of Birmingham, Ala.

There were 46 delegates present from 23 out of 24 districts. The only district not represented was Texas. The convention continues through tomorrow.

District Pistol Club Lists Turkey Shoot

The Washington Psitol Club will stage a turkey shoot at 7 o'clock tomorrow night at the ranges of the National Rifle Association, 487 C street northwest. The distance will be at 25 yards, with either pistols or revolvers, and a turkey will be awarded to the high man in every group of 12.

The shoot is open to all marksmen in the city, regardless of affiliations.

ROUGH BOUT FORESEEN ON MAT

Steele, Dusek Meeting Tomorrow Promises Action.

RUDY DUSEK and Ray Steele, both of whom have supporters who claim they are the uncrowned champions of the rassle industry, will be tossed into the same ring tomorrow night as the feature of a card of five mat matches at the Washington Auditorium. The first event is at 8:30 o'clock.

Steele and Dusek will arrive this morning and are expected to work out during the day for the impending battle. Both boys are pure and simple sluggers, and devote more time to fisticuffs than to the art of the headlock and the arm strangle. It promises to be one of the two or three best bouts ever held here.

Ginsberg-Geicewicz Paired.

The strange combination of Benny Ginsberg and Alphonse Geicewicz was added to the card yesterday by Matchmaker Turner, who spent, evidently, several days before he was able to blend his nationalities in such a way that the result promised to be good to the last drop.

Mr. Geicewicz is alleged to be a recent importation and pretty much of an unknown, but Benny Ginsberg has thoroughly established his claim as the worst wrestler in the world on several occasions at the Auditorium.

Besides the crack headliners, and Messrs. Ginsberg and Geicewicz, Matros Kirlenko will oppose Chief White Feather, Steve Znoski will tangle with John Katan, and Herb Freeman, one of the smoother men in the game, will match "holts" with one Kankal Zalerniak.

Hitting the Head Pin

BECAUSE many local bowlers who planned to enter the Greater Washington Sweepstakes, which opens Saturday at the Arcadia, will not know their season's averages before the end of the week, the entry lists, which were to have closed last night, will be kept open until the moment of play next Saturday afternoon and night.

The sweepstakes is open to any bowler who averages under 110, and a special handicap has been granted "also ran" bowlers which will give them two-thirds of the difference between their average and 110. That more than 300 pin disturbers would see action in the giant maple rally was anticipated last night as entries continued to be received at Columbia, Convention Hall and Arcadia.

Play will open at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, at Arcadia, and continue at 8 o'clock that night. The second block will be rolled at Columbia on November 28 and the finale will be staged at Convention Hall on the night of December 5.

Nothing spectacular last night at the Arcadia's busy runways. Smith, of the Postoffice League Bears, took high game honors with 124, while his team was rolling a 520 game for squad honors. Vanderlip, of the Raccoons, with 333, won high set honors.

In the Columbia Heights League, at the same alleys, Rosenblack's 152 game topped the evening's efforts and enabled his team, the Liondale Shirts, to amass 1,703 pins for high set. Slicer, of Ford Electric, took high set with 372, while the Paramount Paint Co. was annexing team game laurels with 607.

Culp's 146 game topped the performers in the Men's Lutheran League. Chapelaine, of Grace, had a 365 set. Cup's team, Takoma Blues, was not among the team highlights for Trinity took high game with 553 and St. Paul high set with 1,589.

In the Ladies Lutheran League, also at Arcadia, Schutrumpf, of Christ Church, with 115, took high game prize and Menhorne, 309, high set honors. Christ Church won game and set honors with 512 and 1,350.

The Columbians last night broke the season's record in the Washington Ladies League, at Columbia, by bowling a 1,584 set and a game of 558. Polly Shugrue's 345 was the best individual stunt of the night and aided the breaking of the mark in no small way. During the course of the record breaking the Columbians beat the Beeques, 3-0. Billy Butler salvaged some glory for the victims with a 318 set.

The Hilltoppers and University Park took 2-1 decisions over the Cardinals and the Veterans Bureau teams, while the Shamrocks were winning, 3-0, from the Keenos. Evelyn Team's 119 and 305 were high in this match.

The same alleys played host to the North Washington Church League last night, in which Emory won three from Wallace Memorial; Columbia Heights and Gunton Temple won a 2-1 decision from Central Presbyterian and Petworth and Asbury won a 4-2 double-header match from First Reformed.

First Reformed, by the way, although beaten, stole most of the thunder, rolling a 607 game and a 1,644 set, aided by Smith's 350 mark and Minister's 144 game.

Another record toppled in the Commerce Inter-Bureau League last night, this one at Lucky Strike, when the Airways rolled a 1,610 set, made up of games of 534, 531 and 546, the latter a league record itself. Grove, of the Airmen, had a 137 game and Redmond a 347 set.

In the Personal Audit Review League, also at Lucky, R. No. 2 broke its league record with a crackerjack 1,620 set, including games of 552, 515 and 553. They beat the Deputy Commissioners 3 to 0, despite the efforts of W. T. Sherwood, who rolled 319.

It was all Acacia in the Insurance League. Lewis, of Acacia, with 150, took honors along high game lines and the team had a 557 and 1,609 for game and set laurels. Farber, of Equitable, demands some attention for his 362 set.

The Minions, Ionics, Quads and Agates were victorious in The Washington Post League yesterday afternoon, beating, respectively, the, Rubies, Pearls, Gothics and Picas. Hill, with 150, was well above his nearest rival for high game honors and he was instrumental in his team's 558 mark for high game honors.

Good scores were frequent at Convention Hall last night in the Masonic League. Pentalpha rolled a 615 team game and Barrister a 1,649 set, aided by Manning, who personally accounted for a 137 game and 373 set.

Ingraham, No. 1, with a 1,675 set and a 588 game topped the East Washington Church League, at Convention Hall, without undue trouble. Nick's pin spilling, 146 in a game and 368 in the set, brought fame to the First Brethren.

Also at Convention Hall, in the Marine Corps League, the Quartermasters rolled 554 and 1,544 to take game and set honors. Sturgis and Ramsay battled to a 331 tie for high individual set, and Ramsay annexed individual game rewards with 126.

Catonsville Winner In Field Ball Series

Hyattsville, Md., Nov. 17.—Catonsville High School girls' field ball team, Baltimore County champion, eliminated the Lackey High eleven, of Indianhead, Charles County title holder, from the State championship series in a 16-13 battle here this afternoon. It was a second-round game, Catonsville having previously defeated Ellicott City, Howard County standard bearer, and Lackey having downed Hyattsville, representing Prince Georges County.

Catonsville rallied in the second half to win, Lackey having a 9-7 advantage at the half.

PROVIDENCE TEAM TEST FOR C. U.

Friars Bring Experienced Grid Team Here Saturday.

Special to The Washington Post.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 17.—Tackling the strong Catholic University eleven, which has shown power this fall in compiling a record of six straight wins, will cause little agitation in the Providence College football ranks this week-end, as the Friars themselves have cut a wide swath in Eastern gridiron activities this season, bowing only to Rutgers and Holy Cross and collecting six straight to match the fine record of the Cardinals.

Facing formidable opposition is no novelty to the Friars for, in their ten years of grid activity, their teams have faced such aggregations as Holy Cross, Army, Boston College, Syracuse, Colgate (four times), Temple, St. Xavier, Duquesne, Rutgers, Fordham and a host of others. Although not successful in competitions with such powerful aggregations, the Friars have turned in some noteworthy performances.

Coaching Aids Improve Providence.

This fall, with the addition of Joe McGee and Tom Bride, the former end coach, and the latter back field mentor, to assist Head Coach Archie Golembeski, one-time Holy Cross great, the locals have reached new heights in football. The present machine is composed in its entirety of upper classmen, all of whom saw service in at least one game last year. Under the direction of Golembeski, McGee and Bride, the material has reached top condition and, as a result, six successive triumphs have been chalked up after hard opening games had been lost to Rutgers and Holy Cross.

This week-end, with the renewal of grid relations with Catholic University after an 8-year lapse, the Friars will be prepared to duplicate their 7 to 0 win over the Cardinals in 1923. With a powerful line, and two strong sets of backs, several of whom are capable of doing the hundred under 11 seconds, Providence will prove to be far from weak opposition for the high stepping Cardinals.

Although the charity tilt here next week against Rhode Island State, marking the first grid meeting between the two colleges, is of paramount interest, the Friars are making no secret of the fact that they want a win over Catholic University.

Friars Boast Fighting Grid Machine.

It will be a fighting machine which wheels into action this Saturday at Brookland and it will require a great Cardinal array to halt the ground-gaining activities of Mickey Foster, brilliant Providence half back and captain.

Intensive drilling here this week will be concluded on Thursday when the squad will sail to New York, and thence travel by rail to Washington, arriving in time on Friday to run through their paces at the Cardinal Stadium. While in the Capitol City the squad will make its headquarters at the Mayflower, and will be entertained by the Providence College Alumni Club of Washington.

Celtics and Apaches Drill at Park Tonight

Griffith Stadium will resound to the bark of the coaches' exhortations tonight at 7:30 o'clock when both the Northern-Celtics and the Apaches will practice in preparation for their games Sunday in the South Atlantic League.

The Apaches, under Coach Tubba Farrell, are getting in shape for Sunday's game against the Mohawks, in which they hope to down their bitter rivals and break the 7-7 tie which resulted in their meeting a month ago.

The Celtics are urged to report in full uniform and ready for a stiff drill. The team will encounter the Irvington gridders Sunday in Baltimore.

Gormley and Rhodes Unsung Heroes of Tech High Team

Post Staff Photos.

Johnny Gormley (left) and Jack Rhodes, who, as excellent blockers, have been largely responsible for the many gains made this season by Tech High School's back field stars.

Star Blockers Pave Way for Big Gains of Ball-Toters.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

JOHNNY GORMLEY and Jack Rhodes are a couple of Tech High football players. They trot out in dusty uniforms each week, "take out" their men with acute thoroughness and then, as they sprawl into the hard turf at Central Stadium, catch a worm's-eye view of Sachs or Hatos, or another of the Tech team's "stars" carrying the ball to fame, perhaps fortune and a chance at a free college education.

Gormley and Rhodes are the two finest defensive players in the high school series. Their stocky bodies lead the polished Tech interference. On Tech's famed spinner play-off tackle, Rhodes pops up out of his guard's berth, and, while the Tech backs are handing the ball back and forth in a manner as smooth as it is confusing to the enemy, Rhodes goes into their lead, followed by Gormley and behind him comes the prancing ball runner.

Rival College Men In Blocking

When Gormley and Rhodes "take out" players, they stay taken out. The boys block in a manner as impressive as college men. They play roles perhaps more important than the boys who hit the headlines, but the only glimpse of them you'll get in the action pictures of the game, are the backs of their necks, or one leg protruding from the edge of the picture.

Rhodes, particularly, is not good merely because he is part of as smooth a schoolboy grid machine as there is in the country. Last Thanksgiving, when the mauling Swavely Prep team scattered Tech's teamwork to the prevailing winds, Rhodes proved a demon of individual ardor. His place seemed to be nowhere, except where the ball was in motion. His tackles drove back the ball carriers five and eight yards before the two came to earth. He is really keen about the game. While he lay on the ground in the Tech-Western game, after clearing the way for a big gain by Sachs, an unheeding Western foot came down on his face, breaking his nose and laying his lips and chin wide open. He was back for the next game, a week later, wearing a noseguard and chin brace.

Gormley Is Praised By Coach Hardell.

Gormley hasn't carried the ball a dozen times all year. He's too valuable to be a ball carrier, is this boy who has just turned 17. "The greatest blocker on any Tech team since Bennie April, in 1923," is the praise Coach Hap Hardell heaps upon him. Next year, Hardell continued, Gormley will be rewarded for two years of playing what appears to be a minor role. He is going to be Tech's leading ball carrier.

While Draper, Lynham, Hatos, Sachs, Boyd, Flynn and Cumberland strike out with the ball in the direction of the goal, and the crowd rises on one another's feet to cheer them to the w. k. echo, give a heed or two to the boys who cleared the way, and safely removed the bunkers from the course.

Gallaudet Facing Season's Last Test

ShepherdGame Here Holds Final Chance for Blues to Score Victory.

Facing their final chance to inscribe a victory on their 1931 record, Gallaudet's Blues are drilling intensively for the game scheduled with Shepherd College at Kendall Green next Saturday. This will be the first and only home appearance of the Blues who have dropped six straight verdicts thus far.

Providing Capt. Monaghan and others who were injured last week round into proper physical condition, Teddy Hughes, Gallaudet's veteran coach, believes the losting jinx will be shaken off. Monaghan took no part in yesterday's drill as he sought to continue resting his injured knee.

Saturday's game will mark the close of the football careers of Monaghan, Williams and Hnatow. For three years Monaghan has been one of the best ends in this section. This season he has been alternating between end and half back. Against Shepherd he likely will perform in the latter position. Williams has been one of Gallaudet's back field mainstays while Hnatow has rendered valuable service in the role of substitute quarter back.

Shepherd has appeared here once before this season, having defeated American University, 13 to 6, on October 31.

In the recent club championship at the Beaver Dam Club there was a tie in the qualifying round between M. F. McCarthy and Henry Phipps, each with a card of 79. In the play-off yesterday, McCarthy won with a score of 38—38—76, as against 39—44—83 for Phipps. Playing in the afternoon for a second round in a four-ball match, McCarthy scored an ace on the fourteenth hole and chipped into the cup on the third, fourth and fifth holes. Altogether, it was a good day for McCarthy.

Eagles' Spirit High, In Spite of Losses

Hope to Break Ice Saturday in Contest With Randolph-Macon.

Weeks of adversity have failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the American University football players who have yet to win a game and who wind up their campaign next Saturday against Randolph-Macon at Ashland, Va. Beaten 61 to 0 in their last engagement by Johns Hopkins, the Eagles are pleasing Coach Walter Young with a marked display of spirit in practice, and Young, himself, expects the luckless Eagles to put up a terrific fight in the forthcoming finale.

Randolph-Macon, on a basis of comparative scores, appears to be both heavily favored and evenly matched against American. This seeming paradox is composed from the fact that Hampden-Sidney, a team that trounced American 49-0, bowed to the Ashland team, 7-0, while Lynchburg, which had difficulty in beating American, 12-0, extended Randolph-Macon before losing, 14-13.

American will regain the services of Ed. Parke, back field mainstay, for this game, but will miss Russ Lambert, 200-pound tackle who was injured in the Johns Hopkins clash. Parke has fully recoveed from a muscle ailment in his side.

Aviators Seek Berths In New Court League

Bolling Field and Naval Air Station will seek franchises in the newly organized Government Basket Ball League at the meeting to be held this evening at Vic Sport Shop.

Pete Pargen, manager of the Flying Gobs, stated his team was eager to seek circuit honors, while Bolling Field's management desires admission to the loop providing arrangements can be made.

With Playground Teachers already having applied, but one vacancy will be available should all franchises be approved by acting President Vic Gauzza. Four clubs have already definitely entered the new circuit.

Permanent officers, a tentative schedule, and arrangements for a gymnasium will be settled at tonight's meeting. All Government quintets desirous of obtaining franchises are invited to attend.

WORK FOR PALACE ELEVEN.

Unscored upon in five games, the Palace A. C. will hold a drill tonight at 7:30 o'clock in preparation for Sunday's Capital City League feature. The Palace outfit will be strengthened Sunday by the return of several players who have been out with ailments.

BUTLER REAL GRID FOE FOR G. W.

Fur Should Fly Friday Night When They Clash.

PRACTICALLY unknown here, but one of the good "little teams" in the Midwest, Butler's Bulldogs are priming a charge of dynamite they expect to explode here Friday night when they make their debut in this section against the George Washington Colonials in Griffith Stadium. It is the final game of the year for the visitors, who hope to wind it up with a triumph over the Colonials.

For the last decade Butler has been meeting a number of the bigger and stronger teams in its own section. And it has had moderate success in these ventures, too. For years it always met Illinois University and used to give Bob Zuppke's pupils most interesting tussles. Until a few years ago it also had a place on the Notre Dame schedule.

Butler Extended Violets In 1929.

In 1929 Butler came East and gave New York University a whale of a game before losing, 6 to 13. In the past two seasons Marquette, which has lost only once in this time, has been its biggest foe. On neither occasion has it been able to halt the Golden Avalanche, but in each game it played strongly. Only last Saturday it lost to Marquette, 0 to 21, in a hard-fought tussle.

Capt. Kenneth Booz, crack triple threat, is the spearhead of the Butler attack and the man who the Colonials will have to bottle up if they are to stop the Bulldogs. Booz is apt to put quite a kick in Friday night's game. He gets able assistance from one Carson Conrad, a strapping 6-footer of 185 pounds, who is a hard-running back and an excellent blocker.

The Butler forward wall is bulky and capable. The two ends, Ennis and Chickendantz, are 190-pounders, and both tackles, Mecum and Brandt, hit more than the 200 mark. The center of the front line is composed of three 180-pounders, Moore, Sohl, and Rufil, all of whom are outstanding forwards. This trio makes up in aggressiveness and ability what it lacks in weight.

Both Teams Use Warner System.

The Warner system, as exemplified by Harry Bell, who is in his second season as coach, is employed by the Bulldogs. Behind their husky forwards the Bulldog backs use all the tricky spinners, plunges, fake runs, passes, and laterals emphasized in that system.

Since the Colonials use the Warner system, the team with the better execution should triumph. Both appear to be on a par physically, and the game bids fair to turn into one of the best local contests of the year.

DALY TORONTO PILOT.

Toronto, Nov. 17 (A.P.).—Thomas D. Daly, former catcher of the Jersey City and Montreal Clubs of the International Baseball League and last year assistant for a short time to Steve O'Neill as manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, today was named as O'Neill's successor.

VIC'S TOSSERS DRILL.

The crack Vic's Sport Shop basketball team will scrimmage with the Jewish Community Center Big Five tonight at 9:30 o'clock at the Center. All of the Vics have been asked to put in an early appearance.

NORTHERN JRS. ACTIVE.

The Northern Juniors, 135-pound football team, wants a game for Sunday. Call Manager Colburn at Columbia 3562. The team will practice tomorrow night at the Park View Playgrounds.

25 Years Ago Today

NOVEMBER 18, 1906.

A bill will be introduced on the opening day of Congress of the coming session by Senator Albert J. Beveridge to prohibit the labor of children throughout the country, according to a speech by the senator at Richmond, Va., today.

An appeal was issued today by the Arlington Confederate Monument Association of Washington for funds to carry out their project of erecting a memorial shaft in Arlington National Cemetery to the soldiers of the Confederate Army.

William Randolph Hearst today declared he would never again be a candidate for office. He said, "I am for Bryan for President, and confidently expect his election."

Menia Rockefeller, 62 years old, a descendant of the oil king's ancestors, was found dead on a road of the Stephen E. Garretson estate by a Negro farm hand. Just how Rockefeller met his death during the night in an out of the way place is a mystery to the authorities. County Physician Long is inclined to believe he fell from his horse and was stunned and died from exposure.

60 PERSONS TESTIFY IN TWIN DROWNING GRAND JURY INQUIRY

Detail What They Know of Circumstances Around Fatal Boat Ride.

WIMBLEY AND CROWDER STILL HELD BY POLICE

Death Plot to Get Insurance Alleged After Death of Mother and Child.

Threescore witnesses went before the District grand jury yesterday to tell what they know about circumstances surrounding the drowning of Mrs. Elizabeth Traylor Wimbley and her 3-year-old daughter, Wilma Traylor, in Chesapeake & Ohio Canal September 17.

The woman's husband, Harry C. Wimbley, 32 years old, and John M. Crowder, 24 years old, are being held by police pending outcome of the grand jury's investigation.

Went on Excursion.

The picture that attaches of the United States attorney's office hope to depict for the jurors is this:

Wimbley and Crowder went to Dendron, Va., and got Mrs. Wimbley and her 3-year-old daughter on September 15.

The two were brought to Washington and in honor of Mrs. Wimbley's birthday all four went on an excursion up the canal. The canoe in which were Crowder, Mrs. Wimbley and the girl was upset in the canal and both Mrs. Wimbley and her daughter were drowned.

Policy Plot Charged.

Circumstances brought to the attention of police shortly after the drownings was followed by an investigation that led to the arrests. Police allege Wimbley arranged for an insurance policy on his wife and then plotted her death so that he could collect on that insurance.

Wilma Traylor was a daughter of Mrs. Wimbley by her first marriage.

Mrs. Larner Made Chief Beneficiary

Estate Will Revert to Five Daughters After Death; Church Is Named.

Mrs. Anna Parker Larner, widow of John B. Larner, president of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., is the principal beneficiary of Mr. Larner's estate, it was disclosed when the will was filed for probate yesterday.

She is to receive for life all the income from the estate, and upon her death it is to be divided between the five daughters of Mr. Larner. The daughters are Ruth L. Oliphant, Margaret L. Witherspoon, Isabella L. Scott, Anna S. Larner and Lucy P. Larner.

Several minor bequests were made in the will and a codicil. The daughters are to be given ten shares of the stock of the Washington Loan & Trust Co. now, the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church is to get $1,000, the Presbyterian Home of the District receives $500, and the George Washington University is given $800 to found a scholarship medal award in the law school. The Washington Loan & Trust Co. and Mrs. Larner are named as executors.

Women's ClubBody To Visit Children

Come-and-See Caravan to Be Held by Committee Tomorrow.

Under the auspices of the development committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs of the District of Columbia, a "come and see" caravan, composed of members of that organization, will be held tomorrow afternoon, visiting the Children's Country Home and the Washington Home for Children. Mrs. S. M. Shortall is chairman of the committee and officers and members of any affiliated clubs desiring to make the trip can arrange for transportation by calling her.

The caravan will leave the Roosevelt Hotel at 2 o'clock, going directly to the Children's Country Home, Eighteenth Street and Bunker Hill road northeast, where they will be greeted by board members and shown through the buildings. From there they will go to the Washington Home for Children at 4610 Forty-second street northwest, where tea will be served, and where the board members will also greet them and show them about the premises.

This is one of a series of "come and see" trips to Community Chest organizations being arranged for civic groups of the city.

Columbia Heights Reelects Officers

Association Urges District to Put Sign at Twelfth and Euclid Streets.

The Columbia Heights Citizens Forum last night with one exception, reelected its existing slate of officers at a meeting in the Wilson Teachers College. President Burd Payne reviewed the activities of the organization during the past year after the election procedure.

Payne was reelected president; W. W. Coulliette, first vice president; the only new officer elected, Russell G. Merryman, second vice president; H. V. Maybee, secretary; Vernon L. Brown, treasurer, and the Rev. G. G. Johnson, pastor of the National Baptist Memorial Church, chaplain. H. C. Phillips and C. E. LaVigne were again designated delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

A letter was read from Sybil Baker, director of playgrounds, indicating that work on recreational facilities at the Raymond School, Tenth and Spring road northwest, would be begun soon and that the District of Columbia unemployment committee would furnish the labor. A resolution was passed requesting the traffic department to erect a stop sign at Twelfth and Euclid streets northwest.

Lunchroom Fired On By 2 Gun Girls

Two gun-girls "shot up" a lunchroom with pistol bullets shortly after midnight yesterday, a taxi driver reported to Ninth Precinct police, but so far police have received no complaint of the shooting from the owner of the lunchroom, nor have they been able to trace the women described by the hacker.

The two women hailed his cab on the Benning road between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets northeast, John Gray, of 626 I street northwest, said. He was ordered to drive to Fifteenth and K streets northwest. When the cab reached the 1400 block on H street northeast, Gray recounted, one of the women leaned from the cab and fired three shots at the lunchroom.

Gray said he was ordered not to look back and the women made him drive to Thirty-first and M streets northwest, where they left him.

POLICE SEEK CLEW AFTER MAN DIES OF MYSTERIOUS HURTS

Victim First Said He Was Hurt in Football Game, but Changed Story.

A police investigation was being conducted last night into the death of Daniel J. Curtin, 27 years old, who died in Casualty Hospital yesterday from injuries he is said to have received Sunday when he either fell or was knocked down, and struck his head against an iron grating on the sidewalk.

An inquiry was begun after a number of conflicting stories were told police as to the manner in which the man was injured. Curtin was brought to the hospital Sunday afternoon by a woman who said her name was Dorothy Waters, of 440 Massachusetts avenue northwest. Treated for severe lacerations to the head, he was released after convincing police he was injured in a tussle with a companion while attending a football game in Griffith Stadium.

On Monday night the hospital ambulance was called to 635 K street northeast, where an interne found Curtin unconscious on the floor of an apartment occupied by Miss Annie O'Connor. He was found to have a fractured skull.

According to the story told by Miss O'Connor, Curtin, whom she had known for several years, came to her home earlier in the day. She said he explained the bandage on his head by declaring he fell while alighting from an automobile on Seventh street near F street southwest Sunday afternoon. He seemed to be in great pain, she said, and was reading a magazine when he suddenly collapsed.

Although semiconscious, he told police at the hospital that he attended the football game Sunday, and following the game left with several companions in an automobile. They parked on Seventh street southwest, he said, and it was then that he either fell or was knocked to the pavement.

Miss Loretta Hamilton, who took Curtin to the hospital Sunday and gave her name as "Dorothy Waters," told police last night the man came to her home covered with blood and said he had been "thrown from an automobile." She said she had never seen him before, but that he was a friend of Miss Hilda Beal, a roomer at her home. No explanation was given as to why Curtain went to the house.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Curtin, of 479½ F street southwest, and several brothers and sisters. Funeral services will be held Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock, with requiem mass at St. Dominic's Church at 10 o'clock. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Confessions Read In Slaying Record

Defense Fights Documents in Trial of 3 for Shooting Cabman.

Over strenuous protest of defense attorneys, members of the jury who are sitting in the case of Leonard A. Layton, Charles E. Washington and Charles E. Robinson, colored youths, charged with slaying Mannie Soloman, taxicab driver, yesterday heard read into the record of the case written statements concerning the part each of the trio played in the case.

The statements were elicited from the youths by members of the Headquarters Homicide Squad, who got their first intimation as to the identity of Soloman's slayers through the fingerprints of one of the defendants that were found on Soloman's cab window.

The case is expected to go to the jury today, John J. Sirica, Government prosecutor, having finished it from the prosecution angle late yesterday. Defense witnesses were on the stand in the afternoon.

Soloman was killed July 29 at Union and O streets southwest when he fought back at colored men who were attempting to rob him. He was shot through the neck.

Ninth street cuts horizontally across the bottom of the picture, while the Seventh street business district may be seen running parallel with the east front of the library grounds.

SCHOOL SITE RAPPED BY PETWORTH GROUP

Citizens Association Urges Board of Education to Reconsider Plan.

A strong protest against a proposal to erect a colored elementary school at Allison street and Rock Creek Church road northwest was filed last night by the Petworth Citizens Association at a meeting held in the Petworth School. A petition was directed at the Board of Education against the choice of the site.

The association pointed out that there were few colored families in the section to be served by such a school and for that reason the choice was an unwise one.

One member declared that not more than 25 colored students would be found in Petworth to attend the proposed school and said he felt that students would be sent to the school from distant sections.

The petition urged the Board of Education to reconsider the location of the school and to work out a plan whereby the students could be sent to schools in other sections.

Another petition, addressed to the Public Utilities Commission, urged that zone rates for taxicabs be worked out by the commission in conjunction with taxi owners.

Dr. George C. Havenner, executive vice chairman of the District Bicentennial Commission, spoke at length on the program for the celebration in 1932. He said that every hotel room in the city had already been reserved for the week of February 22, and that 131 organizations had already accepted invitations to hold their conventions in Washington during the bicentennial year. These conventions alone will bring 120,000 visitors to the city, he said.

Bus Pass System Declared Success

Sale Has Risen From 450 First Week to 646 Last Week.

The weekly pass system inaugurated by the Washington Rapid Transit Co. last month is proving a success so far as the passengers are concerned, E. D. Merrill, president, yesterday informed the Public Utilities Commission.

Sale of passes has risen steadily from 450 the first week to 646 last week, while the number of rides taken has increased from 7,528 to 11,448. The average cost for each ride has consequently varied from 6.61 cents to 6.16 cents, or an average saving of about 3.5 cents.

Sales of the $1.25 passes, which give the holder unlimited use of the buses, have almost tripled the sale of the 75-cent tickets, which are limited to certain hours.

Taxicab Driver Injured As Car Upsets in Crash

Harold Strickland, 28 years old, of 1350 Kenyon street northwest, suffered a possible fracture of the pelvis and internal injuries last night when his taxicab overturned in a collision with another automobile driven by Benedict Taratino, 68 years old, of 704 Seventh street northeast, at Seventeenth and R streets northwest.

Strickland was taken to Emergency Hospital.

Lindsay, Audience Thinning, Chants on to Win Plaudits

Singing Poet Sticks to His Stirring Rhyme and Bold Comment as Various Seat-Holders Depart, Annoyed; Gets Two-Minute Ovation.

Great figures of American history passed last night across the stage of Central High School in phantom form—too fantastically to suit the tastes of some members of the audience—as Vachel Lindsay, the singing poet, thrilled many members of his audience and annoyed other, with a melodious rendition of his own works.

Mr. Lindsay divided his program into two parts, one devoted to George Washington and the other to Lincoln. Comments he voiced in a preface to the poems and between each recital did not meet with the approval, apparently, of some of the audience. After each little speech a batch of prospective worshipers at muse of rhyme and free verse would rise and file from the auditorium. Finally, Mr. Lindsay invited those seated in the rear to occupy the seats in front.

About 200 members of the audience departed in all, the exodus beginning after Mr. Lindsay finished his introductory talk and continuing half way through the lincolnn program. Any discouragement that the poet may have felt for this retreat was fully compensated for after his chanting of "The Santa Fe Trail," when he was given a reception that would have flattered an opera star, and at the conclusion of the program, when the hundreds who had remained in the auditorium stood in their places and applauded for two minutes, until the poet returned to the rostrum.

Here are quoted excerpts from Mr. Lindsay's introduction, which obviously grated on the sensibilities of certain Virginians (?) in the audience: "Parson Weems wrote the first and worst biography of George Washington. The fact that it is the worst has not interfered with it still being published, bought and read. * * * The reason we are not cutting each other's throats now is because Washington had enough sense to hold Alexander Hamilton on his right hand and Thomas Jefferson on his left."

Here are some of the remarks with which he sandwiched his poems: "Thomas Jefferson's father acquired large portions of land in Virginia and thus made Thomas a gentleman, qualifying him for membership in Washington's Cabinet. If you are a Jeffersonian you read the newspapers, representing the free press, go to the talking moving pictures and buy wonderful jewelry in the ten cent store. If you are a Hamiltonian you go to the bank."

Mr. Lindsay praised Washington for keeping Hamilton and Jefferson together and declared you can never think of Washington without coupling the thought with these two great Americans. He asserted that every statue of Washington should be replaced with a bronze one as a proper tribute to the man. He assured his audience that through his poems it would "appreciate all the more the glorious opportunity afforded by the George Washington Bicentennial to extoll the Father of Our Country."

In one of his rousing poems, entitled "The Virginians are Coming Again," the troubadour painted the defeat of the Babbitts, representing commercialism and lowly ideals, by the younger generation.

In the introductory talk to this poem, Mr. Lindsay asked: "How many boys and girls have you known in the past ten years who have cut out individual careers for themselves despite Papa Babbitt?" He depicted Virginians not necessarily as Virginia-born persons but as a sort of legend of American heroes who will sweep across the coming years to place American life on a new pedestal. This commentary was one of the cues for a number of persons to leave their seats and stalk from the auditorium.

Besides Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson and Lincoln, Mr. Lindsay sang tributes to Poe, Pocahontas, Powhatan, Nancy Hanks, John Brown and Robert E. Lee. His best offering, "The Santa Fe Trail," was a vivid picture of the sweeping prairies of Kansas cut by an endless caravan of automobiles from all States. He sang the sound of the engines and the names on the license plates, and, from a milestone on which he pictured himself seated, he cooed the soft hum of the wind passing across the prairie.

Using the tactics of a song leader, he induced his audience to unite in his presentation of "John Brown," repeating his query, "What did you see in Palestine?" and then repeating his answer, "Old John Brown."

Lindsay has all the tricks of the evangelist and a certain amount of the talent of a dramatic actor. His powerful voice smashes its way through a room and fills it. He needs no amplifier and none was used last night. He knows the art of drawing an audience to his heart, even if he has the unhappy faculty of sending some of it away. He grins broadly at his own jokes and grins all the more when he sees some of the seats emptying. He was introduced last night by Prof. George B. Woods, of American University.

STEEL WORKER DIES IN 4-STORY PLUNGE

Another Man Falls Down Coal Chute; Painter Is Hurt.

James Sheely, 22-year-old steel worker, died late yesterday in Emergency Hospital from injuries received earlier in the day when he plunged four stories from the roof of an extension building of the new Department of Agriculture Building, Linworth and C streets southwest.

According to police, the youth, who was employed by the McDonald Steel Construction Co., apparently lost his footing while working in the rigging near the edge of the roof, and hurtled to the ground. He was taken to the hospital by fellow workers and died a short time later from a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Sheely, it was said, had been employed by the company for some time and was classed as an experienced steel rigger. He lived at 1008 N street northwest.

A fall down a coal chute last night sent John O. Jones, 44 years old, of 1669 Columbia road northwest, twice to Emergency Hospital. He remained the second time after he had collapsed in a barber shop from injuries first regarded as trivial.

The man, a collector, was making his rounds, which included an apartment house at 318 New York avenue northwest. He was walking along the side of the apartment when he stepped on a broken man-hole cover, which precipitated him down the coal chute, according to police reports.

Mr. Jones went to Emergency Hospital for treatment. He was found to have cuts and bruises and after first aid was allowed to leave. He collapsed later in a barber shop near I and Fourteenth streets, and was again taken to the hospital. This time he was admitted with a possible fracture of the pelvis.

John Apperson, 57 years old, of 112 C street northwest, is in an undetermined condition in Emergency Hospital suffering from severe lacerations to the head and a possible fractured spine, received yesterday when he fell six feet from a scaffold while painting a building at 1306 H street northwest.

Woman Cashier Alleged Larcenist

Realty Firm's Employe Is Declared to Have Taken $5,000 in 2 Years.

Mrs. Helen May, 33-year-old cashier of the Horace G. Smithy Real Estate Co., was arrested on a warrant charging her with grand larceny and was ordered held for action of the grand jury on $2,000 bond by United States Commissioner N. C. Turnage yesterday.

Mrs. May was specifically charged with theft of $56 and $70, though the warrant also contained the allegation that Mrs. May took in excess of $5,000 in the last two years.

Through Attorney Lucien Vandoren, Mrs. May pleaded not guilty to the charge. Principal complaining witness against Mrs. May, Mr. Smithy, president of the company, said that Mrs. May had made a statement to him involving another employe of the company. Assistant United States Attorney Charles Murray represented the Government at the hearing. Mrs. May lives at 3033 Sixteenth street northwest.

Bar Association Deadlocks On Admission of Women

The eternal feminine brought troubles to the District of Columbia Bar Association at a meeting last night, and debate over the question of whether women should be admitted to membership brought a debate which lasted far into the night. Every attempt to obtain a direct vote on the matter failed, and the question was deferred indefinitely.

The forensic battle arose soon after a special committee appointed to revise the by-laws had laid its recommendations before the body. These recommendations carried a new provision that women members of the District bar be prohibited from active membership in the association. It has heretofore been always an unwritten law that only male lawyers be allowed the privileges of membership.

Many defenders of women lawyers arose to say that the old restrictions should be lifted. Maj. Julius Peyser and Walter C. Clephane described the ban against women members as "archaic and backward." W. C. Sullivan, who presented the committee's recommendations in behalf of Col. J. Miller Kenyon, the chairman, was opposed by his brother, George E. Sullivan, who felt that female members would add to the prestige of the association. Col. Kenyon said there had been a division in the committee and that he personally favored lifting the restriction which has been practiced for more than 60 years.

By not acting, the association has now left itself open to receive applications from female lawyers.

Film Shows For Charity Begin Today

The Palace, Earle and Fox Theaters will put on special de luxe shows, which will begin at 11:15 o'clock tonight, including special feature pictures and stage acts. All of the neighborhood houses will sponsor special matinees in the afternoon.

EVERETT IS ELECTED BAPTIST MODERATOR AS PARLEY IS BEGUN

Columbia Association Will Change Calendar Year; Reports Heard.

W. W. Everett, vice president of Woodward & Lothrop's, was elected moderator of the Columbia Association of Baptist Churches, which opened the three-day sessions of its fifty-fourth annual convention here yesterday at National Baptist Memorial Church, Sixteenth and Harvard streets northwest.

Bishop William F. McDowell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who was to speak on the opening day of the convention, was unable to attend because of an unforeseen denominational matter arising in Philadelphia.

Other officers elected yesterday were the Rev. Gove G. Johnson, pastor of the National Baptist Memorial Church, vice moderator; S. B. Nottingham, clerk; E. B. Shaver, assistant clerk, and G. B Bryan, treasurer.

Decision was made by the convention yesterday to change the associational year of the association to conform with that of the Northern and Southern Baptist Associations, which runs from May 1 to April 30. The next meeting of the association will be held six months hence, instead of a year, to balance the calendar of the organization.

Reports of the executive board, the executive secretary, the treasurer and reports of institutional activities of the association also were heard at the afternoon session.

In the evening a report of the Bible school work and roll call of schools was heard. The feature of the night session was an address by the Rev. Loule D. Newton, D. D., pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist Church, Atlanta, Ga. A song service, exercises by the children of the Baptist Home also occupied part of the evening program, which was closed with a benediction by the Rev. W. D. Moore.

The association takes in most of the Baptist churches of Washington and nearby Maryland. Today's sessions will begin at 10 o'clock this morning. The convention will be addressed in the afternoon by the Rev. Austin K. du Blois, president of the Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Rider Charges in Suit Bus Driver Beat Him

Alleging that he was attacked and beaten by a driver of the Nevin Bus Lines, of 503 Fourteenth street northwest, Charles Hunt, 3604 New Hampshire avenue northwest, yesterday filed a suit asking for $10,000 damages from the company.

The alleged assault took place in Baltimore, the suit declares, when a driver for the company put Mr. Hunt off and then attacked him. Through Attorney David A. Pine, the plaintiff says the attack occurred last September 9.

Ban on Gasoline Venders Using Streets Is Rescinded

The order barring gasoline hucksters from the streets was rescinded yesterday by the District Commissioners upon recommendation of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride. The ban would have become effective next Monday.

The Commissioners also adopted the suggestion of the corporation counsel regarding the placement of gasoline venders on the same basis as other street hucksters. They instructed him to amend the police regulation governing the movement of these venders so as to include the gasoline hucksters.

At the same time they directed that the regulation which limit any huckster to 30 minutes in any one place be further amended so as to limit the venders to 30 minutes in any one block.

This amendment will place gasoline hucksters on the same basis as ice cream venders. Corporation Counsel Bride has already advised the Commissioners that they are without authority to require licenses of the gasoline venders, providing they make no sales on the streets.

The Commissioners, advised to rescind the order after a public hearing held by Mr. Bride failed to show that the gasoline venders constituted a fire hazard, impaired the movement of traffic or damaged the asphalt pavements to any material degree.

HOOVER AID PRAISED BY CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH RESOLUTION

Relief Program Is Termed Challenge to Nation for Support.

REV. STOCKDALE NAMED MODERATOR FOR REGION

Dry Law and Peace Efforts Upheld at Semiannual Meeting Here.

President Hoover's relief program was praised by the Washington Association of Congregational Churches at its ninety-eighth semiannual meeting last night in Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

A resolution declared that it calls for and should receive support as a challenge to the States, cities, and communities of the Nation. Christian employers were urged to face the fact of need in the spirit of the apostolic believers who held in common their substance to the measure of mutual consecrated service.

A resolution declaring that the prohibition law can and will be enforced when it is upheld without fear or favor by all officials and that the association is for this law enforcement was also indorsed.

Racial Problem Touched.

Interracial relations in this city should be put on a new basis by the churches here so that feeling between races will reach the full implications of Jesus' ideals of brotherhood, according to a third resolution adopted.

Efforts of the American Government in cooperating with the Council of the League of Nations in seeking to bring about a pacific settlement of discord between China and Japan, and through that action of maintaining the peace of the world, were also indorsed by the association.

The association went on record that it believes in the full validity of the individual mind and soul to seek for the meanings of God's and life's values in terms which will be most reasonable and acceptable to the personal man, and therefor it asks that the aims of its religion be that of sharing the spirit and mind of Jesus with other seekers rather than that of conquering other religions.

Reno School Site Decision Delayed

Selection Put Off Pending Expression of Opinion by Congress.

No further steps toward purchasing an additional school site in the Reno section will be taken until specific instructions are obtained from Congress, Maj. D. A. Davison, Acting Engineer Commissioner, announced yesterday.

Purchase has been postponed, he said, because of uncertainty on just what the several congressional committees wanted. Differences of opinion have been expressed regarding sites for the elementary and senior high schools.

One site at Thirty-eighth and Fessenden streets northwest is already being condemned, while two additional sites were being considered in the vicinity of the Reno Reservoir. School officials recently urged District Commissioners to purchase the land at once so that an appropriation for the school might be asked of the next Congress.
